

The Agency for the Protection of Personal Data invites all interested data controllers and processors to the webinar “Principles of Personal Data Processing” which will be held on August 22, 2024, from 10:00 to 11:00 AM. Registration is not required to participate in the webinar; you can directly access the webinar by clicking on the link <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89755373014?pwd=HTFqKxqy4NCPAb716rf0hluWidPaaR.1> (it is recommended to join 10-15 minutes before the start of the webinar). We emphasize that the number of participants is limited to 100.

The principles of personal data processing are at the very core of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). Article 5 of the General Data Protection Regulation stipulates seven key principles related to the processing of personal data, which data controllers and processors must adhere to when processing personal data:

1. Lawfulness, fairness, and transparency;
2. Purpose limitation;
3. Data minimization;
4. Accuracy;
5. Storage limitation;
6. Integrity and confidentiality;
7. Accountability.

These principles of personal data processing are the starting point for compliance with the General Data Protection Regulation. They represent fundamental comprehensive principles aimed at ensuring compliance with personal data protection regulations and protecting the rights of individuals (data subjects).

Understanding the principles of personal data processing is crucial for understanding the obligations under the General Data Protection Regulation. Before any processing of personal data, companies (data controllers) must ask themselves whether such processing of personal data is lawful, fair, transparent, necessary for achieving a specific purpose, whether the personal data held by the company is accurate, and whether it is retained only as long as necessary to fulfill a specific purpose, as well as whether appropriate measures have been taken to ensure a level of security for personal data that is appropriate to the risk.

The Agency for the Protection of Personal Data invites all entrepreneurs, micro, small, and medium-sized enterprises, and all other interested data controllers to free online training conducted by the Agency as part of the EU ARC2 project aimed at providing support for compliance with the General Data Protection Regulation. Although the project is primarily intended for this target group, the activities we conduct in the ARC2 project and the web tool Olivia can be beneficial to all organizations that process personal data, i.e., all data controllers and processors from the private and public sectors.

The main outcome of this project is the web tool Olivia, which contains 15 GDPR courses, theoretical and practical modules that can help you understand your obligations under the GDPR and in drafting basic documents that will demonstrate your compliance with the GDPR. Olivia is also an excellent tool for raising awareness about personal data protection within the organization, as it contains knowledge tests through which employees can test their knowledge, and if they achieve at least 80% correct answers, Olivia generates a certificate of successful completion of the module. We remind you that one of the most important organizational measures for the protection of personal data is regular employee training and raising awareness about personal data protection.

We invite you all to register and try out the content offered by the web tool Olivia:
