LEGAL GROUNDS

I Competence

In accordance with the powers granted to each supervisory authority by Article 58.2 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation, hereinafter GDPR), and as established in Articles 47, 48.1, 64.2, and 68.1 of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on the Protection of Personal Data and the Guarantee of Digital Rights (hereinafter, LOPDGDD), the Director of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection is competent to initiate and resolve this procedure.

Furthermore, Article 63.2 of the LOPDGDD states that: "The procedures processed by the Spanish Agency for Data Protection shall be governed by the provisions of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, this organic law, the regulatory provisions issued for its development, and, to the extent that they do not contradict them, subsidiarily by the general rules on administrative procedures."

II Preliminary Issues

Below is a detailed list of the relevant legal concepts for this Proposal for Resolution, in accordance with the definitions in Article 4 of the GDPR (the relevant parts are highlighted):

"Article 4 Definitions

For the purposes of this Regulation, the following definitions shall apply:

- 1) "personal data": any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person ("the data subject”); an identifiable natural person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identifier, such as a name, an identification number, location data, an online identifier, or one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural, or social identity of that natural person;

2) “processing”: any operation or set of operations performed on personal data or sets of personal data, whether by automated means or not, such as collection, recording, organization, structuring, storage, adaptation or alteration, retrieval, consultation, use, disclosure by transmission, dissemination, or otherwise making available, alignment, combination, restriction, erasure, or destruction;

The processing in this case has consisted of a set of operations for the retrieval and consultation of the personal data of the data subjects.

7) “data controller” or “controller”: the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that, alone or jointly with others, determines the purposes and means of the processing; where the law of the Union or of the Member States determines the purposes and means of processing, the controller or the specific criteria for its designation may be laid down by the law of the Union or of the Member States;

The legal entity that determines the purposes and means of the processing is CR ASTURIAS, as a provider of banking services, and the data subjects in this case are the clients linked to the banking entity through a contract. CR ASTURIAS collects the clients' data and decides on the purposes and means of the set of operations performed on personal data by automated procedures.

8) “processor” or “processor”: the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that processes personal data on behalf of the data controller;

CR ASTURIAS has entrusted RURALVÍA S.L., by contract dated 25/5/2018, with the execution of the necessary security measures for the set of automated operations for the processing of the personal data of clients, within the framework of its banking service contracts.

12) “personal data breach”: a breach of security that leads to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorized disclosure of, or access to personal data transmitted, stored, or otherwise processed;

A personal data breach has occurred due to the unauthorized access of a third party (a hacker) to the personal data of CR ASTURIAS clients.

The entity carries out this activity in its capacity as data controller, as it is the one who determines the purposes and means related to the processing of personal data, pursuant to Article 4.7 of the GDPR. Therefore, if it decides the “why” and the “how” the personal data should be processed, it must assume its responsibility.

Moreover, the data controller must also ensure the implementation of technical and organizational measures that guarantee the security of personal data when carrying out the processing. And must be able to demonstrate compliance with the GDPR and the LOPDGDD.

In this case, there is a security incident categorized as a personal data breach, which involved unauthorized access to personal data.

It should be noted that the identification of a personal data breach does not directly imply the imposition of a sanction by this Agency, as it is necessary to analyze the diligence of the data controllers and processors and the security measures applied.

Among the principles of processing provided in Article 5 of the GDPR, the integrity and confidentiality of personal data are guaranteed in paragraph 1.f). In turn, the security of personal data is regulated in Articles 32 and 33 of the GDPR, which govern the security of processing, notification to the supervisory authority, and communication to the data subject, respectively.

As previously mentioned, it is presumed that the data controller is the entity that has the actual capacity to exercise control over the data, who determines the why and how the data should be processed.

III Description of the personal data breach

CR ASTURIAS had an electronic banking application called Ruralvía Clásica for the purpose of providing online banking services to its customers.

For a customer to access the Ruralvía Clásica application and log in, they needed to enter their identifier, password, and NIF.

CR ASTURIAS wanted to change this application to a new electronic banking system called Nueva Banca Electrónica (NBE).

IV Violation of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR.

Article 5.1.f) "Principles relating to processing" of the GDPR states:

"1. Personal data shall be:

f) processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorized or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction, or damage, using appropriate technical or organizational measures ('integrity and confidentiality')."

The facts revealed in this procedure constitute a personal data breach consisting of a loss of confidentiality of personal data, considering that the regulations on the protection of personal data have been violated. The present facts have the data controller, CR ASTURIAS, as the respondent, as determined in the proven facts.

Thus, as stated in the seventeenth proven fact, regarding the personal data accessed by the attacker, the "Final Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, indicates that,

Although the personal data breach was detected on December 7, 2022, prior accesses to that date are confirmed, noting that the highest volume of accesses occurred between November 10 and November 23, 2022.

In this regard, in the aforementioned report of December 30, 2022, as stated in the eighth and fourteenth proven facts, it is indicated in section 1.4.2, "How was the problem detected or how did it happen?" that:

The attacker was able to access those personal data of CR ASTURIAS customers due to the lack of appropriate technical and organizational measures prior to the occurrence of the personal data breach. First, it should be noted that, as stated in the eleventh proven fact, regarding the causes that allowed the personal data breach, in the "Final Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, in section 3, "Cause Analysis," it states:

(...)

Secondly, in the fifteenth proven fact, the mitigating measures implemented are recorded, highlighting the absence of appropriate technical and organizational measures to prevent the occurrence of the breach, emphasizing, for these purposes,

In conclusion, and in accordance with all that has been indicated, it has been established that the violation of the principle of confidentiality that indeed occurred, as the attacker accessed multiple personal data of 9 customers of CR ASTURIAS, was possible due to the lack of appropriate technical and organizational measures revealed by the aforementioned vulnerabilities.

The documentation in the file provides clear indications that CR ASTURIAS violated Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, "Principles relating to processing," by failing to adequately guarantee the confidentiality and integrity of personal data as a result of the security breach that occurred.

In accordance with the evidence available in this proposal for the resolution of the sanctioning procedure, it is considered that the known facts constitute an infringement attributable to CR ASTURIAS, for violation of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR.

V Qualification for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR

The aforementioned infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR constitutes the commission of the infringements classified in Article 83.5 a) of the GDPR, which considers that the infringement of "the basic principles for processing, including the conditions for consent in accordance with Articles 5, 6, 7, and 9" is subject to sanction, in accordance with paragraph 5 of the aforementioned Article 83 of the cited Regulation, "with administrative fines of up to €20,000,000 or, in the case of an enterprise, an amount equivalent to a maximum of 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year, opting for the higher amount."

The LOPDGDD in its Article 71, Infringements, states that: "Acts and behaviors referred to in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 of Article 83 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, as well as those contrary to this organic law, constitute infringements."

And in its Article 72, it considers for the purposes of prescription that they are: "Infringements considered very serious:

1. In accordance with what is established in Article 83.5 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, the following infringements are considered very serious and will prescribe in three years, which involve a substantial violation of the articles mentioned therein and, in particular, the following:

a) The processing of personal data violating the principles and guarantees established in Article 5 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679.

VI Proposal for sanction for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR

In order to establish the administrative fine that should be imposed, the provisions contained in Articles 83.1 and 83.2 of the GDPR must be observed, which state:

"1. Each supervisory authority shall ensure that the imposition of administrative fines under this Article for the infringements of this Regulation indicated in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 is, in each individual case, effective, proportionate, and dissuasive.

2. Administrative fines shall be imposed, depending on the circumstances of each individual case, as an additional or substitute measure to those contemplated in Article 58, paragraph 2, letters a) to h) and j). In deciding on the imposition of an administrative fine and its amount in each individual case, the following shall be duly taken into account:

- a) the nature, gravity, and duration of the infringement, taking into account the nature, scope, or purpose of the processing operation in question as well as the number of data subjects affected and the level of damage suffered;
- b) the intentionality or negligence in the infringement;
- c) any measures taken by the data controller or processor to mitigate the damage suffered by the data subjects;
- d) the degree of responsibility of the data controller or processor, taking into account the technical or organizational measures they have implemented pursuant to Articles 25 and 32;
- e) any previous infringement committed by the data controller or processor;
- f) the degree of cooperation with the supervisory authority in order to remedy the infringement and mitigate the possible adverse effects of the infringement;
- g) the categories of personal data affected by the infringement;
- h) the manner in which the supervisory authority became aware of the infringement, in particular, whether the data controller or processor notified the infringement and, if so, to what extent;
- i) when the measures indicated in Article 58, paragraph 2, have been previously ordered against the data controller or processor in relation to the same matter, the compliance with such measures;

j) adherence to codes of conduct under Article 40 or to certification mechanisms approved under Article 42, and

k) any other aggravating or mitigating factor applicable to the circumstances of the case, such as the financial benefits obtained or the losses avoided, directly or indirectly, through the infringement. In relation to letter k) of Article 83.2 of the GDPR, the LOPDGDD, in its Article 76, "Sanctions and corrective measures," establishes that:

"2. In accordance with the provisions of Article 83.2.k) of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, the following may also be taken into account:

- a) The continued nature of the infringement.
- b) The connection of the infringer's activity with the processing of personal data.
- c) The benefits obtained as a result of the commission of the infringement.
- d) The possibility that the conduct of the affected party may have induced the commission of the infringement.
- e) The existence of a merger by absorption after the commission of the infringement, which cannot be attributed to the absorbing entity.
- f) The impact on the rights of minors.
- g) Having a data protection officer when not mandatory.
- h) The voluntary submission by the data controller or processor to alternative dispute resolution mechanisms, in cases where there are disputes between them and any data subject."

In accordance with the transcribed provisions, for the purpose of determining the amount of the sanction to be imposed in this case for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, classified under Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR for which CR ASTURIAS is held responsible, the following concurrent factors are considered:

- The nature, severity, and duration of the infringement; the facts revealed affect a basic principle related to the processing of personal data, namely the confidentiality and integrity of such data, which the regulation penalizes with the utmost severity as the personal data breach allows unauthorized third parties to access personal data, with the potential harms that this may entail.
- The number of affected parties: there are (...), who have not been informed of the personal data breach and who have an Electronic Banking agreement, which placed them in a position of special vulnerability as the attacker could access their economic data.
- Regarding the level of damages caused: it must be considered high since, in addition to the personal data (...), economic and financial data must also be included, as users with an Electronic Banking agreement would have had access to this type of data (account number(s) and balance(s)). Additionally, it should be noted that this situation allows access to the data, which could lead to the materialization of the risk of identity theft, among others (Article 83.2.a) of the GDPR).
- The intentionality or negligence in the infringement. There is a lack of diligence in complying with the obligations imposed by data protection regulations, allowing access by cybercriminals to personal data, thereby violating its confidentiality; in this regard, the SAN of 17/10/2007 can be cited, which, although issued before the GDPR came into effect, is perfectly extrapolable to the case we are analyzing. The ruling, after referring to the fact that entities whose activities involve continuous processing of customer and third-party data must observe an adequate level of diligence, specified that "(...) the Supreme Court has understood that there is recklessness whenever a legal duty of care is neglected, that is, when the offender does not behave with the required diligence. And in assessing the degree of diligence, the professionalism or lack thereof of the subject must be especially weighed, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the activity of the appellant involves constant and abundant handling of personal data, it must be insisted upon the rigor and exquisite care to comply with the legal provisions in this regard" (Article 83.2.b) of the GDPR).
- The activity of the allegedly infringing entity is linked to the processing of personal data of both clients and third parties. In the activity of the claimed entity, the processing of personal data is essential, so, given its object and business volume, the...

The significance of the conduct subject to this claim is undeniable (Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD in relation to Article 83.2.k).

For the purpose of deciding on the proposal for the fine and its amount, in accordance with the available evidence, taking into account the criteria of Article 83.2 of the GDPR regarding the infringement committed, violation of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, it is considered appropriate to propose a sanction of 250,000 euros.

VII Violation of Article 32.1 of the GDPR

Article 32 of the GDPR "Security of processing" establishes that:

"1. Taking into account the state of the art, the costs of implementation, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the variable probability and severity risks to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller and the processor shall implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, which may include, among others:

- a) the pseudonymization and encryption of personal data;
 - b) the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of processing systems and services;
 - c) the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data quickly in the event of a physical or technical incident;
 - d) a process for regularly verifying, assessing, and evaluating the effectiveness of technical and organizational measures to ensure the security of processing.
2. In assessing the appropriateness of the level of security, particular consideration shall be given to the risks presented by the processing of data, in particular as a consequence of the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, or alteration of personal data transmitted, stored, or otherwise processed, or the unauthorized communication or access to such data.
3. Adherence to an approved code of conduct pursuant to Article 40 or to an approved certification mechanism pursuant to Article 42 may serve as an element to demonstrate compliance with the requirements set out in paragraph 1 of this article.

4. The controller and the processor shall take measures to ensure that any person acting under the authority of the controller or the processor and having access to personal data only processes such data on instructions from the controller, unless required to do so by Union or Member State law."

After reviewing the allegations made by the respondent, and in light of them, reviewing the documentation in the administrative file and that provided by the respondent, it is evident that all the technical and organizational security measures whose absence has been proven, directly enabling the personal data breach, have not resulted in a violation, in this specific case, of Article 32 of the GDPR as the absence of other independent technical and organizational security measures unrelated to the personal data breach has not been substantiated.

VIII Violation of Article 33 of the GDPR

Article 33 of the GDPR, "Notification of a personal data breach to the supervisory authority," establishes that,

- "1. In the case of a personal data breach, the controller shall notify the competent supervisory authority in accordance with Article 55 without undue delay and, where feasible, no later than 72 hours after becoming aware of it, unless the personal data breach is unlikely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. If the notification to the supervisory authority does not take place within 72 hours, it shall be accompanied by the reasons for the delay.
2. The processor shall notify the controller without undue delay of any personal data breaches of which it becomes aware.

3. The notification referred to in paragraph 1 shall, at a minimum:

a) describe the nature of the personal data breach, including, where possible, the categories and approximate number of data subjects affected, and the categories and approximate number of personal data records affected;

b) communicate the name and contact details of the data protection officer or another contact point where more information can be obtained;

c) describe the potential consequences of the personal data breach;

d) describe the measures taken or proposed by the controller to remedy the personal data breach, including, where appropriate, the measures taken to mitigate its possible adverse effects.

4. If it is not possible to provide the information simultaneously, and to the extent that it is not possible, the information shall be provided in phases without undue delay."

5. The data controller shall document any violation of the security of personal data, including the facts related to it, its effects, and the corrective measures adopted. Such documentation will allow the supervisory authority to verify compliance with the provisions of this article.

On 21/10/2024, it was agreed to open a period for the practice of evidence, in which point 3: It is agreed to require CR ASTURIAS to provide the following information and/or documentation:

"Provide documentation proving that, if applicable, it had commissioned or instructed its data processor to notify the AEPD of the personal data breach subject to this sanctioning file (art. 33 GDPR). Evidence of both the commission and the terms thereof and its date. The result of this evidence may lead to the performance of others. In its response, it must indicate the reference of the file that appears in the heading of this document."

The requested party submitted in response to this requirement on 5/11/2024, the following documents:

Document number 1: Email dated 12/12/2022, where CR ASTURIAS agrees that RSI, in its capacity as data processor, communicates the security incident to the AEPD, after notifying the breach to the controller and indicating that they were preparing a report in this regard, notification to the AEPD and communication to the affected parties, and requesting validation by CR ASTURIAS as the data controller.

After analyzing the documentation submitted by CR ASTURIAS referred to in Proven Fact twentieth, RSI (responsible declaration in a private document by the highest authority of the entity, based on a request for prior instructions from the data processor and with the immediate subsequent action of notifying the personal data breach to the AEPD) it is determined that the requested party has provided in response to the evidence practice carried out by this Agency on 5/11/2024 regarding the accreditation of the instructions given to its data processor, to proceed with the notification on its behalf to the AEPD of the personal data breach subject to the aforementioned procedure, in accordance with Article 33 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of April 27, concerning the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and the free movement of such data (hereinafter "GDPR").

Therefore, it must be concluded that, after analyzing the investigated facts, the allegations made by the requested party, and the evidence provided in the procedure, considering the circumstances present in the specific case, the filing of the alleged infringement in relation to Article 33 of the GDPR would be appropriate.

IX Response to the allegations made regarding the initiation agreement

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

sedeagpd.gob.es

Regarding the allegations made by CR ASTURIAS to the initiation agreement, a response is provided to them in the order in which they are presented in their writing:

"FIRST. ON THE ACCUMULATION OF THE PROCEDURES TO THE ENTITIES OF THE GROUP."

1. Preliminary considerations

According to CR ASTURIAS: "All the initiation agreements in the files that have just been referenced arise, as indicated, from the security breach analyzed by the Initiation Agreement" and subsequently states that "we are faced with a single fact, referring to a single breach, suffered during the development of the aforementioned tool carried out by RSI in its capacity as data processor and which, however, is fragmented by the AEPD into twenty-six differentiated procedures processed against twenty-six different entities."

In response to these preliminary considerations, it should be noted that the requested party confuses the factors that determined the vulnerability being similar in all the procedures initiated by this Agency with the fact that only a single personal data breach has occurred.

We are dealing with incidents that have affected (...) which are completely independent, both legally and economically. Each of these entities is responsible for the data processing of its clients in a differentiated manner, and, consequently, there are as many personal data security breaches as there are data controllers who have failed to comply with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. Each entity is responsible for the processing of its own data and regarding its own clients.

All the entities referred to by the requested party in their allegations had contracted with RSI, (...).

However, the fact that RSI was the same data processor for all the Entities does not determine that one can speak of "a single fact, referring to a single breach."

Each entity, as the data controller of its clients, autonomously made the decision to contract with RSI as the data processor, for which each of them signed their own data processing agreement, on differentiated dates, signed by different persons with sufficient power for this in each of the rural banks and citing their different data protection delegates, who are not coincident.

Furthermore, as also stated in the proven facts, both the "Incident Analysis Report," dated December 9, 2022, and the "Final Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30,

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

December 2022, has been carried out individually for each of the rural banks, containing their own specificities.

Furthermore, once the personal data breach occurred, the actions of each of the entities have not been the same, with each acting autonomously, both in relation to the AEPD (some banks have notified the personal data breach directly while others have entrusted their data processor to carry it out), as well as with their respective clients and independently of the actions of the others.

2. On the accumulation of administrative procedure files.

In this allegation, the responding party considers that: "The legal regime of the accumulation of procedures, as well as of processes, in the administrative sphere responds to the central idea of connectivity, that is, that the instruction work to be carried out is favored by the appreciation of the issue as a whole and the possibility that the joint viewing work allows for a better assessment of the elements that enable the application of the norm to the specific case."

Article 57 of the LPACAP on the accumulation of procedures establishes that: "The administrative body that initiates or processes a procedure, regardless of how it was initiated, may, on its own initiative or at the request of a party, order its accumulation to others with which it has substantial identity or intimate connection, provided that it is the same body that must process and resolve the procedure. No appeal shall proceed against the agreement of accumulation" (the underlining corresponds to the AEPD).

Consequently, both the administrative body that initiates the procedure and the one that processes it may order its accumulation to other procedures with which it has substantial identity or intimate connection, provided that it is the same body that must process and resolve the procedure. Article 57 of the LPACAP grants administrative bodies the authority for better management of the procedures they process, allowing for their accumulation as long as they have substantial identity or intimate connection among them. Therefore, it is a possibility available to the Administration, which is not obliged to proceed with the accumulation if requested, although it is required to decide on the matter with justification, as occurs in the present sanctioning procedure.

3. On the response to the allegation seeking the accumulation of sanctioning procedures.

In this allegation, the responding party considers that: "The legal regime of the accumulation of procedures, as well as of processes, in the administrative sphere responds to the central idea of connectivity, that is, that the instruction work to be carried out is favored by the appreciation of the issue as a whole and the possibility that the joint viewing work allows for a better assessment of the elements that enable the application of the norm to the specific case."

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

28/60

It should be answered that the claims of the responding party are not supported by either Article 57 of the LPACAP or by any type of jurisprudence or doctrine that attributes to the accumulation the purpose of providing the decision-making body with a better assessment of the elements of the case.

The institution of accumulation is a technique of administrative simplification that allows the competent body to process and resolve in a main procedure the possibility of accumulating it with others that have substantial identity or intimate connection, for the purposes of simultaneous processing and resolution. The instrumental nature of accumulation is determined by the first limit established by Article 57 of the LPACAP, which states that the body "must be the same body that processes and resolves the procedure."

It is a procedural act that cannot be appealed, as established by Article 57 of the LPACAP itself, unlike what is provided in Article 112.1 of the same regulation, which does allow the challenge of other procedural acts when they "directly or indirectly decide the merits of the matter, determine the impossibility of continuing the procedure, produce defenselessness or irreparable harm to legitimate rights and interests."

However, when the LPACAP excludes the possibility of appeal, it is because it applies to the accumulation of procedures, as a procedural act, none of the cases in Article 112.1 of the LPACAP that we have just reproduced.

With these arguments as a starting point, the allegations made by the responding party must be completely dismissed, to which a specific response will also be provided.

A) Existence of "intimate connection" or "substantial identity."

The responding party reiterates the idea referred to in the preliminary considerations of this FIRST allegation, stating that "there was a single breach of personal data security, notified by each of the responsible parties (directly or through their data processor RSI)." It continues to assert that "the connectivity, in this case, derives from the fact that responsibility is to be clarified for twenty-six legal entities, but for the same fact."

As already substantiated in the response to the preliminary considerations of this FIRST allegation, it cannot be said that there was a single breach of personal data; rather, there have been as many breaches of personal data as there are entities, all of which are independent of each other, each responsible for their own processing and regarding their own clients, whose systems have suffered a security breach.

For the responding party, there is a single fact for which responsibilities can be demanded, the security incident in the field of information technology. However, beyond the breach of personal data itself, there has been a loss of confidentiality of the personal data of the clients of each of the entities, which cannot be encompassed as a single fact or as the same fact.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
29/60

In the same way, it is necessary to differentiate the facts related to the actions taken after the knowledge of the security breach by each of the entities. Some entities directly notified the AEPD of the breach, while in others, the communication was made by the data processor on behalf of each of the data controllers (in different ways and at different times).

Finally, some entities communicated the loss of confidentiality of their personal data to the affected individuals, fulfilling the obligation established in Article 34 of the GDPR, while other entities did not send any type of communication. All these diverse factual elements determine that it cannot be said that, beyond the same IT vulnerability, there exists an "intimate connection" or "substantial identity" that justifies the accumulation of the proceedings.

Regarding the ruling of the TSJ Castilla-La Mancha cited in the allegations, the following clarifications should be made:

1) There is no compliance with an obligation by several persons jointly, so the assumption of Article 28.3 of Law 40/15 does not apply.

According to Article 28.3 of Law 40/2015, of October 1: "When the compliance with an obligation established by a norm with the rank of Law corresponds to several persons jointly, they will be jointly liable for the infringements that may be committed and for the sanctions that may be imposed. However, when the sanction is monetary, it will be individualized in the resolution based on the degree of participation of each responsible party."

In the present case, it cannot be said that there is a joint liability, as it does not involve a joint obligation of CR ASTURIAS with the other entities referred to in its written allegations. The facts constituting the infringement attributed to CR ASTURIAS are in its capacity as data controller, in accordance with the provisions of Article 4 of the GDPR, so the compliance with the principles and obligations established in the GDPR regarding the data processing of its clients corresponds to it individually, not jointly with the other entities, since, furthermore, there is no joint liability in the GDPR.

It should also be noted that the fine imposed on each entity depends on its own circumstances, such as the number of affected clients or its business volume.

The figure of joint controllers of processing, regulated in Article 26 of the GDPR, would also not be applicable in this case, "when two or more controllers jointly determine the purposes and means of processing, they will be considered joint controllers of processing." The purposes and means of processing have been determined by CR ASTURIAS independently of the other entities, in its capacity as the sole data controller of the personal data of its clients.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
30/60

Lastly, CR ASTURIAS does not concur with respect to the other entities regarding the assumption described in the judgment, in which "the Administration imputes different forms of cooperation or collusion among the three defendants in relation to the same facts." Here, there can be no talk of any type of cooperation or collusion in the facts; it is simply the responsibility of each of the Rural Banks, and their relationship with the data processor, due to the regime established in the GDPR, according to which the controller, in this case, each of the Rural Banks, has control and authority over the processing of personal data and assumes responsibility for compliance with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. For its part, the data processor (RSI) must only process the data according to the instructions received from the controller. It cannot determine the purposes and means of processing; its function is to execute the processing as established by the controller.

2) The separate processing of the files does not prevent each entity from presenting its allegations. In the judgment of the TSJ of Castilla La Mancha referred to by CR ASTURIAS, in the Third Legal Basis, it is stated that the plaintiff requested that all procedures be consolidated in order to adequately exercise the right of defense, "...since they referred to the same facts, and it was expressly warned that processing them separately would constitute a serious violation of the right of defense as it would prevent knowledge of the allegations of the other parties involved and the documents they might submit, all of which could be significant for the legal qualification of the facts, the determination of the existence or not of an infringement, and of the responsible party."

The non-consolidation of procedures cannot produce any of the harms mentioned in that paragraph of the judgment.

Regarding the documents submitted to the procedure, those referring to the security incident, a series of documents were submitted by the data processor during the investigation proceedings (let us remember that both the "Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 9, 2022, and the "Final Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, were prepared individually for each of the rural banks, containing their specificities) whose access to the affected entity has been guaranteed through the sending, upon request, of a copy of the file. Those documents submitted by the entities responsible for processing, which affect them individually, will be taken into consideration in the corresponding procedure.

3) CR ASTURIAS reiterates the need for the "accumulated analysis of the files," when the judgment of the TSJ of Castilla La Mancha does not include this idea. The need for accumulation is based on considerations other than those expressed by CR ASTURIAS. As we have analyzed:

- Reference is made to the access to the documents in the file that may be submitted by different controllers, a matter that we see is guaranteed here.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

31/60

- The possibility of establishing joint liability is mentioned, which, as we have substantiated, does not apply under the regime established in the GDPR. We must not confuse joint liability under Article 28 of the LRJSP with the co-responsibility under Article 26 of the GDPR, which also does not apply in this case, since, as we stated, under no circumstances are the other Rural Banks co-responsible for the processing of customer data of the other entities.

- There is no type of cooperation or collusion among the different Rural Banks in the facts. These figures must be ruled out due to the relationship between the Rural Banks, which are independent entities, each responsible for the processing of their customers, nor, as we have previously stated, in relation to the special regime established by the GDPR regarding the relationship between the data controller and the data processor.

B) That the same body is responsible for the processing and resolution of the procedure.

The processing of the various sanctioning procedures corresponds to the same body, as indicated by CR ASTURIAS, which does not determine the mandatory nature of the decision to accumulate the procedures, especially when there are no circumstances that imply the defenselessness of CR ASTURIAS.

4. Connectivity in the sanctioning field with the guarantees of Articles 24 and 25.1 of the Spanish Constitution.

In this allegation, CR ASTURIAS points out that the Constitutional Court has declared that both the substantive principles of Article 25.1 CE and the procedural guarantees of Article 24.2 CE are applicable, with certain nuances, to the exercise of sanctioning power.

4.1. General aspects related to the instruction and its essential functionality.

A) Linkage of the instruction as a consequence of the factual unity.

CR ASTURIAS cites a ruling from the Supreme Court, which states that "the initiation of a single sanctioning procedure for the commission of the same infringing act, with the aim of determining the degree of participation of each alleged responsible party in the commission of the infringement and ensuring that the resolution of the file is coherent...” According to CR ASTURIAS, “In this case, the appellant argued that, since two files had been processed, each of the responsible parties was unaware of what was in the other that could benefit or harm them. This is a concrete example of the difficulties that arise in terms of the right to defense in cases of separate processing.”

As has been justified previously, there are as many breaches of personal data as there are data controllers, and we cannot speak of a single infringing act, but rather of a series of infringing acts attributable to a series of independent entities concerning the processing for which they are responsible regarding their customers; nor can we speak of a “degree of participation” among the various entities, nor in relation to the data controller-data processor relationship.

Regarding the documents that are submitted to the procedure, those that refer to the security incident, a series of documents were provided by the data processor during the investigation proceedings, whose access to all affected entities has been guaranteed through the prior request for a copy of the file. Furthermore, RSI provided the “Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 9, 2022, as well as the “Final Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 30, 2022, in a manner individualized for each of the rural banks, containing their specificities.

Those documents submitted by the entities responsible for the processing, which affect them individually, will be taken into consideration in the corresponding procedure. And any other documents that may constitute evidence relevant to the facts will be duly incorporated into the other official files, in accordance with the provisions of Article 75 of the LPACAP, “the necessary instructional acts for the determination, knowledge, and verification of the facts on which the resolution must be pronounced will be carried out ex officio.”

B) Connectivity as a fundamental prerequisite for the exercise of the right to defense. According to CR ASTURIAS, each of the sanctioning procedures becomes “sealed” and the evidence, allegations, and expert opinions conducted in one cannot be presented contradictorily.

However, a paragraph from the ruling transcribed by CR ASTURIAS is fully applicable to respond to the present allegation: “it is not specified to what extent it had ‘prejudiced its defense’,” and to reject it, just as the STS understands “that the decision of the court of first instance is correct, which considers that the initiation of sanctioning files against each of the companies is justified... due to the clear differentiation of the conduct attributed and it has not been demonstrated that real defenselessness has occurred - as reasoned in the contested ruling.”

The Constitutional Court in its ruling No. 210/1999, of November 29, states that constitutionally relevant defenselessness is the situation in which, after the infringement of a procedural norm, one of the parties is prevented from exercising the right to defense by eliminating or limiting its power, either to assert rights and interests to have them recognized, or to dialectically reply to opposing positions in the exercise of the principle of contracting.

As an essential characteristic of defenselessness, it must be material in nature and not merely formal; that is to say, the existence of a defect or procedural infringement is not sufficient, but rather an effective and real right to defense must have been produced (Constitutional Court ruling No. 90/1988, of May 13).

Well, beyond a generic allegation of the potential defenselessness that could arise from the non-accumulation of the proceedings, CR ASTURIAS is unable to present a single defect or procedural infringement that has effectively limited its right to defense, when the allegations made by the affected Rural Banks regarding the security incident are substantially similar, and they have had access to all the documentation that affects them in a common manner. In any case, the instructing body will incorporate into the procedure and inform CR ASTURIAS of any other documents that may constitute evidence relevant to the facts.

4.2.- The intimate connection as a requirement for the individualization of responsibility for the same facts.

CR ASTURIAS argues that, since we are dealing with a single breach of personal data, the processing of separate proceedings for each of the responsible entities may eventually lead to the determination of diverse responsibilities. The intimate connection translates into the principle of uniqueness in determining the concurrence of the facts when, as CR ASTURIAS claims, these are unique facts that result in a single breach of personal data.

As previously motivated, it is not appropriate to speak of a single breach of personal data, but rather as many as there are data controllers who have suffered the security incident regarding their clients' data. There cannot be different degrees of responsibility between CR ASTURIAS and the other entities. Each of the data controllers will have a degree of responsibility that must be determined individually regarding compliance with data protection regulations, without any type of cooperation in the commission of the infringement among the different Rural Banks that could determine different degrees of responsibility among the entities, as CR ASTURIAS claims.

CR ASTURIAS continues its reasoning by stating that "responsibility cannot be individualized without first objectifying the sanctioning reproach, and this cannot be projected in 26 proceedings with their own dynamics, their own evidence...". Abstract arguments continue to be made, such as objectifying the sanctioning reproach, regarding its own dynamics and "its own evidence," when not even allegations have been made questioning the facts and the evidence contained in the initiation agreement, nor has a request for the receipt of evidence in the procedure been made.

The fact that "only a single investigative action" has been processed and that no request has been directed against the entities responsible for the processing but rather against the processor (RSI) does not imply the "unitary factual determination," as argued by CR ASTURIAS. The fact that the inspection actions were directed at requiring information from the processor does not determine that a single procedure must subsequently be initiated to clarify administrative responsibilities. It is worth noting that Article 53, "Scope of the investigative activity," of the LOPDGDD does not impose that these must necessarily be carried out in relation to the data controller. Therefore, there is no obligation to investigate all controllers that carry out the processing in question. Inspectors can obtain evidence by consulting and requesting information from the processor if they deem it appropriate.

4.3 Impact on the fundamental right to good administration

According to CR ASTURIAS, the accumulation becomes an obligation in the event that its absence could harm the rights of the administered, particularly those recognized in Article 24 of the Constitution, thus violating the right to good administration in accordance with Article 41 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.

In the previous allegations, the differences between the behaviors attributed to the Cajas Rurales have been motivated, and it has been stated that no type of defenselessness has been caused to CR ASTURIAS in the processing of this procedure, having had access to all documents in the file. In fact, CR ASTURIAS has not justified any type of defenselessness, nor does it point out any specific fact by which it has been caused defenselessness.

Finally, it is reiterated that we are not dealing with the same facts, but rather with the same technical problem that caused a security incident in the information system of each of the responsible entities in relation to their processing of personal data (all of them legally and economically independent from each other), which has produced a series of personal data breaches, not a single personal data breach, but a personal data breach in each of the Cajas Rurales, which result in the alleged commission of a series of infringements by each of the different data controllers in relation to their processing of personal data and the rights and freedoms of their clients.

“SECOND. THE NON-EXISTENCE OF GUILT OF CR ASTURIAS IN THE PRESENT CASE”

CR ASTURIAS has invoked various arguments to justify the absence of guilt in its conduct.

Firstly, it states that it is outside the facts attributed to it, since in the present case, the processing is carried out through a processor; which, in turn, is the processor of the entities against which the procedures are directed; and that the data protection regulations...

Personal data processing not only imposes obligations related to compliance with the principle of confidentiality and the adoption of necessary security measures on the data controller but also, when the processing is carried out on behalf of the controller by a data processor, on the latter as well.

In this regard, it is important to remember that the role of the data processor responds to the need to address phenomena such as the outsourcing of services by companies and other entities, so that in cases where the data controller entrusts a third party with the provision of a service that requires the processor to process personal data on its behalf, the processing or the operations of processing are carried out by the processor, in the name and on behalf of the controller, as if it were the controller itself carrying it out.

Therefore, the existence of a data processor depends on a decision made by the data controller, who may decide to carry out certain processing operations themselves or to contract all or part of the processing with a processor.

That is to say, the processor, in order to be one, does not have any own interest regarding the outcome of the processing subject to the assignment, without prejudice to the financial compensation received for the service provided, which is what occurs in the present case. Processors have no own interest; they act on behalf of and in the name of the controller, following their orders and for their purposes, and this is what determines that they are processors from the outset.

This means that the data controller is responsible for actions contrary to the GDPR carried out by its data processors, unless the latter acted as true data controllers, deciding on the purposes and means of the processing, which has not occurred in the present case.

Thus, the CJEU ruling of December 5, 2023, issued in case C-683/21, regarding the question of whether an administrative fine can be imposed under Article 83 of the GDPR on a data controller in relation to the processing operations carried out by a processor, determines that,

“83 Regarding, secondly, the question of whether an administrative fine can be imposed under Article 83 of the GDPR on a data controller in relation to the processing operations carried out by a processor, it should be recalled that, according to the definition provided in Article 4, point 8, of the GDPR, a processor is understood to be ‘the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that processes personal data on behalf of the data controller.’

84 Given that, as indicated in paragraph 36 of this judgment, a data controller is responsible not only for all personal data processing that it carries out itself but also for the processing carried out on its behalf, an administrative fine can be imposed on that controller under Article 83 of the GDPR in a situation...

in which personal data is subject to unlawful processing and in which it is not the data controller, but rather a processor they have engaged, who has carried out the processing on their behalf.

85 However, the liability of the data controller for the actions of a processor cannot extend to situations where the processor has processed personal data for purposes that are their own or where they have processed such data in a manner incompatible with the framework or modalities of processing as determined by the data controller or in a manner that cannot reasonably be considered to have been consented to by the data controller. Indeed, in accordance with Article 28, paragraph 10, of the GDPR, the processor must, in that case, be considered responsible for the processing in relation to that processing.” (the underlining is ours)

To the above, we must add the recent SAN of February 8, 2024, rec. 0002250/2021, regarding TELEFÓNICA MÓVILES ESPAÑA S.A.U, in which it is determined that,

“Well, the appellant company is the data controller, as it determines the purpose and means of the processing carried out for the purposes indicated in its Privacy Policy: “At Movistar, we process customer or user data for the provision of the service, as well as for other purposes that the customer allows or authorizes in the terms informed in this Privacy Policy or in the specific Conditions of each contracted Movistar Product or Service.”

While the companies ATENTO TELESERVICIOS ESPAÑA, S.A.U., CATHPONE-NET, S.L. and THADER TELECOMUNICACIONES S.L. are considered processors.

What has been stated derives from the contracts signed by the plaintiff with the aforementioned companies.

Well, it has not been demonstrated that the aforementioned companies, as processors of the plaintiff, have determined the purposes and means of processing, nor have they used the data of the customers of the plaintiff for their own purposes, nor have they interacted with the data subjects outside the structure and commercial name of the appellant company, but rather they have acted under the name of the plaintiff to fulfill its purposes, using its systems to carry out operations with the customers.

Therefore, it is not possible to invoke Article 28.10 of the GDPR for a presumed attribution of liability to the processors that also implies the exoneration of the data controller, that is, of the company here.

recurrent. On the other hand, according to the aforementioned contracts, there is a clause that impacts them regarding the possible sanctions that the plaintiff company may suffer for non-compliance with data protection obligations.” (the underlining is ours)

On the other hand, the Guidelines 7/2020 of the EDPB on the concepts of "data controller" and "data processor" in the GDPR, version 2.0 Adopted on July 7, 2021, determine that,

“30 Following the line of the fact-based approach, the word ‘determine’ means that the entity that actually exercises a decisive influence over the purposes and means of the processing is the controller. Generally, the processing contract establishes who is the determining party (the data controller) and who is the party that follows the instructions (the data processor). Even when the data processor offers a service that is previously defined in a specific way, it must present the data controller with a detailed description of the service, and the data controller must make the final decision on the approval of how the processing will be carried out and request any changes it deems necessary. Furthermore, the data processor cannot modify, at a later time, the essential elements of the processing without the approval of the controller.

39. The question is where to draw the line between the decisions reserved for the data controller and those that can be left to the discretion of the processor. It is evident that decisions regarding the purpose of the processing must always correspond to the controller.

40. As for the determination of the means, it is necessary to distinguish between essential and non-essential means. Essential means are traditionally and inherently reserved for the data controller. These must be determined mandatorily by the data controller, although the determination of non-essential means can also be left to them. Essential means are closely linked to the purpose and scope of the processing, such as the type of personal data processed ("What data will be processed?"), the duration of the processing ("How long will the data be processed?"), the categories of recipients ("Who will have access to the data?"), and the categories of data subjects ("To whom do the processed personal data belong?"). In addition to being related to the purpose of the processing, essential means are closely linked to the question of whether the processing is lawful, necessary, and proportionate. Non-essential means are related to more practical aspects of the processing itself, such as the choice of a particular type of hardware or software or the decision regarding the details of security measures, which can be left to the data processor.

41. Although decisions regarding non-essential means can be left to the data processor, the controller must still stipulate certain elements in the contract with the processor: for example, in relation to

www.aepd.es

38/60

The security requirement may necessitate the adoption of all measures required under Article 32 of the GDPR. The contract must also stipulate that the processor will assist the controller in ensuring compliance with, for example, the provisions of Article 32. In any case, the controller remains responsible for implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure and be able to demonstrate that the processing is in accordance with the Regulation (Article 24). To this end, the controller must take into account the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. For this reason, the controller must have complete information about the means used, as this will enable them to make an informed decision in this regard. In order for the controller to demonstrate the legality of the processing, it is advisable to document, in the contract or another legally binding instrument between the controller and the processor, at least the necessary technical and organizational measures.

74. The GDPR establishes specific obligations that directly bind processors, as specified in Section 1 of Part II of these guidelines. It is possible to hold a processor accountable or sanction them when they fail to comply with such obligations or act outside or against the legal instructions of the controller.

80. Secondly, the processing must be carried out on behalf of a controller, but not under their direct authority or control. Acting "on behalf of" someone means serving the interests of another and refers to the legal concept of "delegation." In the case of data protection regulations, the role of the processor is to apply the instructions given by the controller, at least concerning the purposes of the processing and the essential elements of the means. The legitimacy of the processing under Article 6 and, if applicable, Article 9 of the Regulation derives from the activity of the controller, and the processor must only process the data following the instructions given by the controller. Nevertheless, as previously indicated, the instructions of the controller may leave some discretion regarding how best to serve their interests, allowing the processor to choose the most appropriate technical and organizational means.

81. Acting "on behalf of" someone also means that the processor cannot carry out the processing for their own purposes. As stipulated in Article 28, paragraph 10, the processor will violate the GDPR when they do not adhere to the instructions of the controller and begin to determine their own purposes and means of processing. In such cases, the processor will be considered responsible in relation to that processing and may be sanctioned for failing to comply with the instructions of the controller." (the underlining is ours)

Well, in the specific case being examined, and in light of the documentation in the file, it is established that, for the provision of IT services, CR ASTURIAS has entered into an "Individualized and Specific Service Provision Contract" with RSI.

Additionally, it has also entered into the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CR ASTURIAS and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L." related to CR ASTURIAS, which was signed on 25/5/2018, by A.A.A., on behalf of CR ASTURIAS (data controller).

In this regard, in this "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CR ASTURIAS and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L.", CR ASTURIAS is identified as the data controller and RSI as the data processor.

Furthermore, this "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CR ASTURIAS and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L." defines the processing activities that may be carried out by RSI on behalf of CR ASTURIAS, the type of information to be processed, and the categories of data subjects whose data may be processed.

It is also determined that the security measures that must be applied by RSI to ensure an adequate level of security in accordance with the provisions of Article 32 of the GDPR are those established in Annex B of the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CR ASTURIAS and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L."

We must also highlight that it is stated in section 6 of the Agreement regarding "Liability" that, "If the Processor, or where applicable, the contractors, breach this Agreement or the applicable regulations when determining the purposes and means of processing, they will be considered responsible for the processing concerning that processing."

In the event that a supervisory authority sanctions the Data Controller as a direct consequence of the Processor's failure to comply with the stipulations of this Agreement, the Processor shall indemnify the Data Controller as stipulated in the liability clause of the current framework contract between the parties" (the underlining is ours).

This implies, conversely and in accordance with data protection regulations, the aforementioned judgments, and Guidelines 7/2020, that the data controller is responsible for the actions carried out by its data processor unless the latter determines the purposes and means, resulting in the fact that this latter issue has not been substantiated in the processed procedure.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

Therefore, in accordance with the above, CR ASTURIAS is the entity responsible for the processing that is carried out, it is the one that has decided to entrust a data processor to carry it out on its behalf and for its account, it is the entity that has the true capacity to exercise control over the processing of personal data, determining which personal data will be processed on its behalf and for its account, the reasons and the methods by which these will be processed, as it defines the purpose of the personal data processing that its activity encompasses and chooses the means it deems appropriate.

And in accordance with all the aforementioned, in the specific case, CR ASTURIAS is responsible for the infringement of the GDPR even if the incident occurred within its data processor.

In this regard, in the very Agreement of Initiation, it is indicated in section 4 relating to the Obligations of the Data Controller that:

"Corresponds to the data controller:

- a) To provide the Data Processor with the necessary data for the provision of the service
- b) In case it is legally required, to carry out a data protection impact assessment of the processing operations to be carried out by the Data Processor.
- c) To carry out the necessary prior consultations.
- d) To ensure, prior to and throughout the processing, compliance with the GDPR by the Data

Processor.

e) To supervise the processing, including carrying out inspections and audits.” (the underlining is ours) This is directly related to the principle of proactive responsibility of the data controller provided for in Article 5.2 of the GDPR, which establishes that “the data controller shall be responsible for compliance with the provisions of paragraph 1 and capable of demonstrating it (“proactive responsibility”).” This means that the controller must ensure the effective application of the principles of processing both at the time of determining the means of processing and during the processing itself, whether it carries out the processing of personal data directly or entrusts a data processor to carry it out on its behalf (for the purposes of data protection regulation, it is the same), through the articulation of a series of technical and organizational measures of all kinds, which must be subject to periodic review and updating. This implies that the aforementioned controller is the one who assumes its own responsibility by directing, reviewing, and coordinating the processing, including that of the personnel and that of the data processor providing services to it.

The Opinion 3/2010 of the Article 29 Working Party (WP29) -WP 173- issued during the validity of the repealed Directive 95/46/EC, whose provisions are applicable today, states that the “essence” of proactive responsibility is the obligation of the data controller to implement measures that, under normal circumstances, ensure that the data protection rules are complied with in the context of the processing operations and to have available documents that demonstrate to the data subjects and to the Authorities of control what measures have been adopted to achieve compliance with data protection standards.

For these purposes, consideration is given to what is stated in Recital 74 of the GDPR,

“The controller should be responsible for any processing of personal data carried out by them or on their behalf. In particular, the controller should be obliged to implement appropriate and effective measures and should be able to demonstrate compliance of the processing activities with this Regulation, including the effectiveness of the measures. Such measures should take into account the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks to the rights and freedoms of natural persons.” (the emphasis is ours)

Completing the above and in development of Article 5.2 of the GDPR, Articles 24 and 25 of the same legal text should be cited, with the latter indicating regarding “Data protection by design and by default” that the fundamental right to the protection of personal data is much more than mere technology, as its focus is on the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects arising from the processing of personal data,

“1. Taking into account the state of the art, the cost of implementation, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks of varying probability and severity that the processing entails for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller shall implement, both at the time of determining the means of processing and at the time of the processing itself, appropriate technical and organizational measures, such as pseudonymization, designed to effectively apply the principles of data protection, such as data minimization, and to integrate the necessary safeguards into the processing, in order to comply with the requirements of this Regulation and protect the rights of data subjects.

2. The controller shall implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure that, by default, only personal data which are necessary for each specific purpose of the processing are processed...”

CR ASTURIAS seems to maintain that the responsibility lies with the processor with whom it signed a contract and under which it was obliged to implement appropriate security measures according to the risk; however, it is worth recalling that the personal data breach occurred as a result of the decision made by CR ASTURIAS (...), signing the corresponding data processing agreement with RSI where CR ASTURIAS established the appropriate conditions.

And this is in addition to what has been motivated by this Agency in preceding paragraphs regarding that CR ASTURIAS has determined the purposes and means of processing, that it is responsible for the processing, and that it is responsible for the personal data breach in this case due to the processing actions carried out by its processor on behalf of

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

that is subject to the obligations of the GDPR, especially concerning proactive responsibility.

This is the responsibility of CR ASTURIAS as it is the data controller and is obligated to integrate and implement data protection within all aspects of its organization, in all its areas of operation, whether they affect its employees or its data processors. It must be kept in mind that ultimately the determining purpose is to ensure the protection of the data subject, as the focus is on the risks to the rights and freedoms of the data subjects arising from the processing of personal data carried out by the data controller.

Therefore, the data controller must conduct a risk analysis regarding the rights and freedoms of individuals in data processing, implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures to apply the principles of data protection and integrate the necessary safeguards in the processing, in order to comply with the requirements of the GDPR, being able to demonstrate that the processing is in accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned regulation. In light of the principle of proactive responsibility (Art. 5.2 GDPR), the data controller must be able to demonstrate that it has taken into account all the elements provided for in the GDPR.

Thus, all of this merely reflects a lack of diligence on the part of the investigated entity in ensuring adequate security relative to the risks of the data processing it carries out. In this regard, it should not be forgotten that the affected database contains personal data of thousands of clients, which constitutes large-scale processing, and which is accessed from web applications, that is, from the internet, with a significant exposure surface, posing greater risks to the data subjects, which requires appropriate technical and organizational measures of all kinds, including security measures, specifically aimed at ensuring that there is no unlawful access to such personal data.

As has been demonstrated and argued throughout this sanctioning procedure, it is considered that appropriate security measures were not implemented in this case to ensure the security of the personal data of the clients, which resulted in unlawful access to the personal data of the clients of CR ASTURIAS. Therefore, responsibility is not being demanded solely as a consequence of a result caused by a cyberattack.

It is much more than that; it is a failure to comply with the obligations imposed by the GDPR.

Therefore, it is emphasized that the data controller must establish clear modalities for such assistance in its relationship with the data processor and provide precise instructions to the data processor on how to comply with them appropriately and document this in advance through a contract or another (binding) agreement, and also subsequently during the validity of the same, and verify at all times during the execution of the contract its compliance in the manner established therein.

It is sufficient to bring to attention the content of the Supreme Court ruling STS 1562/2020, dated June 15, 2020, rec. 601/2019, which states the following:

“In this regard, the Supreme Court ruling of June 5, 2004, which confirms, in cassation for the unification of doctrine, that of this National Court dated October 16, 2003, echoing the arguments made by this Chamber, refers to the differentiation of two responsible parties based on whether the decision-making power is directed at the file or at the data processing itself. Thus, the data file controller is the one who decides the creation of the file and its application, as well as its purpose, content, and use, that is, the one who has decision-making capacity over all the data recorded in that file. The data processor, however, is the subject to whom decisions regarding the specific activities of a particular data processing operation can be attributed, that is, regarding a specific application. This would pertain to all those cases in which the decision-making power must be differentiated from the material execution of the activity that comprises the processing. With this, as also argued by the Supreme Court ruling of April 26, 2005 (cassation for the unification of doctrine 217/2004), the Spanish legislator aims to adapt to the requirements of Directive 95/46/EC, which aims to provide a legal response to the increasingly frequent phenomenon of the so-called outsourcing of IT services, where multiple operators act, many of them insolvent, created with the aim of seeking impunity or irresponsibility for those who follow in the subsequent links of the chain. Currently, the new Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of April 27, 2016, regarding the protection of natural persons concerning the processing of personal data (which repeals Directive 95/46/EC and applies directly from May 25, 2018) also distinguishes between the roles of the controller and the processor. The former is defined in paragraph 7) of Article 4 as “a natural or legal person (...) who determines the purposes and means of the processing.” And the processor is defined in paragraph 8) of the same Article 4 as one who “processes personal data on behalf of the data controller.”

This is in relation to Articles 24 and 28 of the same European Data Protection Regulation. The data controller and processor are undoubtedly also responsible for violations in the field of data protection, in this new regulatory framework, in accordance with the provisions of Article 82.2 of the aforementioned Regulation (EU) 2016/679, which states: Any controller participating in the processing operation shall be liable for damages caused if that operation does not comply with the provisions of this Regulation. A processor shall only be liable for damages caused by processing when it has not complied with the obligations of this Regulation specifically directed at processors or has acted outside or against the legal instructions of the controller. It follows from all the above that the involvement, in the present case, of a data processor ZZZZ does not exempt the entity XXXX, now the appellant, from liability, and this is despite the strength of the clauses contained in the contract and its annex signed by both companies (proven facts 9 and 10) in that the personal data processed was for the purpose of carrying out.

a publicity campaign regarding car and motorcycle insurance that was marketed by (XXXX), ultimately benefiting said XXXX, being that entity the one that ultimately determines the purposes and means of the repeated data processing, therefore it cannot be exempted from liability.”

The STS continues, in relation to the possible exemption of liability alleged regarding what was subscribed in the “data processing agreement,” as follows:

“The sanctioned conduct of obstruction or impediment by XXXX of its client's exercise of the right to object to the processing of their data is manifested in that said company did not adopt any kind of measure or precaution to prevent the sending of advertising to its client's email addresses by those companies to which it entrusted the execution of the advertising campaigns.

The adoption of the necessary measures or precautions to ensure the effectiveness of the right to object to the processing of their data by XXXX, as the data controller, persists even if the advertising campaigns are not carried out based on the data from its own files, but with databases from other companies contracted by XXXX, and in this case it was evidenced that the appellant did not communicate to the companies with which it contracted the provision of advertising services the complainant's objection to receiving advertising from the Mutual, nor did it ultimately adopt any provision to ensure the exclusion of its client from the advertising mailings contracted with third entities.”

Regarding the application of the principle of culpability in the field of sanctioning law regulated by the GDPR, the investigated entity brings to attention the doctrine established by the CJEU ruling of December 5, 2023 (case C-807/21, Deutsche Wohnen SE and Staatsanwaltschaft Berlin).

Well then, it is worth asking what the parameters of due diligence that the investigated entity should have observed in relation to the examined conduct are. The answer is that the diligence it should have observed is that which was necessary to comply with the obligations imposed by Articles 5.2, 24, and 25 of the GDPR, in light of the doctrine of the National Court and the jurisprudence of the Supreme Court.

The SAN of October 17, 2007 (rec. 63/2006) is fully applicable to the case, which, after referring to the fact that entities whose activities involve continuous processing of data from clients and third parties must observe an adequate level of diligence, states:

"[...] the Supreme Court has understood that there is negligence whenever a legal duty of care is neglected, that is, when the offender does not behave with the required diligence. And in assessing the degree of diligence, the professionalism or lack thereof of the subject must be especially weighed, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the activity of the appellant involves constant and abundant handling of personal data, it must...

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

insisting on the rigor and exquisite care to comply with the legal provisions in this regard."

Furthermore, the National Court in matters of personal data protection has declared that "simple negligence or failure to comply with the duties imposed by the Law on those responsible for files or data processing to exercise extreme diligence is sufficient..." (Judgment of the National Court of June 29, 2001).

Regarding the allegation that the breach of personal data occurred within the framework of the data processing for which RSI was responsible, to the extent of carrying out the investigative actions exclusively with said entity, it should be noted that the preliminary investigative actions are precisely carried out to clarify the facts and circumstances of what happened, gathering more information in order to determine whether or not there is a possible infringement of the data protection regulations. In this sense, the initiation of preliminary investigations and their execution, a power of the AEPD, does not prejudice anything, but allows for the determination of the facts that occurred and the gathering of necessary information wherever it may be found to determine whether there are indications of infringement or not. Even after such investigation, it may be that the proceedings are archived on the grounds that, in light of the information gathered, there are no indications of infringement. This has not happened in the present case.

Consequently, the allegations must be dismissed since the investigated entity has infringed the obligations imposed by the GDPR as the responsible party for the treatments carried out in its name and on its behalf, in relation to the responsibilities required of every data controller by Article 24 of the GDPR. Therefore, the allegations must be dismissed, emphasizing that the arguments presented do not undermine the essential content of the infringement declared committed nor do they constitute sufficient justification or exculpation.

"THIRD. ON THE IMPACT ON THE PRINCIPLES OF SANCTIONING LAW DERIVED FROM THE INTERPRETATION MADE BY THE AEPD"

CR ASTURIAS considers that it has not committed any infringement of the Data Protection regulations, much less the simultaneous infringement of Articles 5.1 f) and 32 of the GDPR, as the triple identity of subject, fact, and protected legal asset is present; there is no doubt that in this case the principle of non bis in idem should be applied, imposing only the sanction for Article 5.1.f) as it is the more serious of the two alleged infringements.

And in the event that the AEPD finds a violation, it should subsidiarily appreciate a medial concurrence as one of the infringements is subsumed and embedded in the other, according to what is provided in Article 29.5 of the LRJSP, "When the commission of one infringement necessarily derives from the commission of another or others, only the sanction corresponding to the most serious infringement committed shall be imposed."

“1. Violation of the non bis in idem principle in the application of Articles 5.1 f) and 32 of the GDPR”
In this regard, and in relation to this allegation made by CR ASTURIAS against the initiation agreement, it should be noted that since the filing of the initially charged infringement under Article 32 of the GDPR has been proposed, it is no longer necessary to respond to these allegations, as the charge of the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR no longer coincides with the charge of the infringement of Article 32 of the GDPR.

“FOURTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 32.1 OF THE GDPR”

CR ASTURIAS has stated that the AEPD considers the alleged violation of Article 32 of the GDPR to be “evidenced,” that is, it considers the alleged insufficiency of the security measures adopted to be evident as a result of the occurrence of the personal data breach, making exclusive reference to the report on the breach contained in the administrative file, overlooking in the initiation agreement all the measures adopted as well as the audit conducted, and that there is a misinterpretation of what occurred in the RSI systems, indicating that modifications had been introduced in the SSO process for access to the NBE after the aforementioned audit.

Well, as indicated, upon reviewing the allegations made by the responding party, and in consideration of them, reviewing the documentation in the administrative file and that provided by the responding party, it is evident that all the technical and organizational security measures whose absence has been proven have had a direct impact on the personal data breach, without there being a violation, in this specific case, of Article 32 of the GDPR, as the absence of other independent technical and organizational security measures unrelated to the personal data breach has not been substantiated. Regarding the sufficiency of the security measures in relation to the breach of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, we refer to what has already been indicated in the legal basis IV of this resolution proposal, which explains and details why they were neither sufficient nor appropriate.

Furthermore, we will indicate that it is true that it is recorded that, both prior to and subsequent to the security incident, the investigated entity conducted audits and reviews by third-party specialists aimed at detecting vulnerabilities exclusively related to the security of the information systems; but it is also true that despite the existence of such investigations, controls, and checks, they were unable to locate and reveal the existing vulnerabilities, as evidenced in the proven facts.

On the other hand, CR ASTURIAS claims that RSI has various security certifications, referenced in the third proven fact of this resolution proposal.

Article 28 of the GDPR, Processor, in its paragraph 5, establishes that:

“5. The adherence of the processor to an approved code of conduct pursuant to Article 40 or to an approved certification mechanism pursuant to Article 42 may be used as an element to demonstrate the existence of sufficient guarantees referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4 of this article.”

In this sense, to demonstrate that processors offer the suitability and guarantees required by the GDPR, adherence to a certification mechanism may be used as an additional element to state the existence of sufficient guarantees to implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to protect personal data.

This is because, although a processor may be certified in data protection, this certification does not absolutely prove that sufficient guarantees in relation, in this case, to the provision of Article 28.1 of the GDPR, have been implemented and are effectively operating throughout the entire processing cycle and during the time that processing is taking place.

In the area of data protection, this type of instrument is a voluntary compliance mechanism in which specific rules are established to contribute to the correct application of the GDPR and the LOPDPGDD.

According to the GDPR, the data controller must adopt appropriate measures, including the selection of processors, in such a way as to guarantee and be able to demonstrate that the processing is carried out in accordance with the GDPR (principle of active accountability).

It is true that the certifications that the processor RSI seems to possess are mentioned in the data processing agreement; however, let us note that all the certifications listed in the third proven fact are not the certifications provided for in either Article 28 or Article 42 of the GDPR; they are not data protection certifications, but rather information security certifications or related to other obligations that must be fulfilled by the controller or the processor based on other regulations distinct from data protection.

Thus, in the “Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts,” signed between CR ASTURIAS and RSI, in its “Annex B - Security Measures to the Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts,” it is indicated that RSI has the following certifications:

Moreover, its mention in the processing agreement is not accompanied by the certification itself - for the purposes of verifying that it has indeed been certified and to see exactly what it is certified for, when it was certified, and whether at the time of the personal data breach the certification was still valid (since the certifications have a validity), such certification is not for data protection.

In this regard, the report of the Legal Cabinet 170/2018 of the AEPD establishes the difference between information security and the protection of personal data. Thus, it is indicated that,

“Prior to analyzing the specific issue raised in the consultation, this Legal Cabinet considers it appropriate to make a preliminary reference to the substantive and jurisdictional differentiation that exists between the field of information security and that of the protection of personal data.

Regarding information security, it encompasses the set of techniques and measures aimed at ensuring the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information and data important to any organization, regardless of their format. (...)

On the contrary, the protection of personal data of individuals is configured as a true fundamental right that finds its basis in Article 18.4 of the Spanish Constitution, according to which “the law will limit the use of computing to guarantee the honor and personal and family privacy of citizens and the full exercise of their rights.” This has been recognized by our Constitutional Court, highlighting in Judgment 94/1998, of May 4, that the aforementioned Article 18.4 “not only entails a specific instrument for the protection of citizens' rights against the wrongful use of computing technology but also enshrines an autonomous fundamental right to control the flow of information concerning each person - to ‘privacy’ according to the neologism stated in the Preamble of the LORTAD - whether or not they belong to the strictest realm of intimacy, in order to preserve the full exercise of their rights.” This is reflected in the Preamble of the Organic Law Project on the Protection of Personal Data and Guarantee of Digital Rights, which for its clarity is transcribed below:

“The protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data is a fundamental right protected by Article 18.4 of the Spanish Constitution. In this way, our Constitution was a pioneer in recognizing the fundamental right to the protection of personal data when it stipulated that ‘the law will limit the use of computing to guarantee the honor and personal and family privacy of citizens and the full exercise of their rights.’ It echoed the work developed since the late 1960s in the Council of Europe and the few legal provisions adopted in countries in our environment.

The Constitutional Court stated in its Judgment 94/1998, of May 4, that we are faced with a fundamental right to the protection of data that guarantees the individual control over their data, any or harmful to the dignity and rights of those affected; in this way, the right to data protection is configured as a citizen's power to oppose the use of certain personal data for purposes other than that which justified its collection. For its part, in Judgment 292/2000, of November 30, it considers it an autonomous and independent right that consists of the power of disposition and control over personal data, enabling the individual to decide which of those data to provide to a third party, whether the State or a private individual, or which data this third party may collect, and also allowing the individual to know who holds that personal data and for what purpose, being able to oppose that possession or use. At the legislative level, the specification and development of the fundamental right of protection for individuals in relation to the processing of personal data took place at its origins through the approval of Organic Law 5/1992, of October 29, regulating the automated processing of personal data, known as LORTAD. Organic Law 5/1992 was replaced by Organic Law 15/1999, of December 5, on the protection of personal data, in order to transpose Directive 95/46/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council, of October 24, 1995, regarding the protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data and the free movement of such data. This organic law represented a second milestone in the evolution of the regulation of the fundamental right to data protection in Spain and was complemented by an increasingly abundant jurisprudence from the contentious-administrative jurisdictional bodies.

On the other hand, it is also included in Article 8 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and in Article 16.1 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union. Previously, at the European level, the aforementioned Directive 95/46/EC had been adopted, whose purpose was to ensure that the guarantee of the right to personal data protection did not constitute an obstacle to the free movement of data within the Union, thus establishing a common space for the guarantee of the right that simultaneously ensured that in the case of international data transfers, their processing in the destination country was protected by safeguards adequate to those provided for in the directive itself. And in this same sense, Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of April 27, 2016, on the protection of individuals in relation to the processing of their personal data and on the free movement of such data, which repeals Directive 95/46/EC (General Data Protection Regulation, GDPR), states that its purpose is “to protect the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons and, in particular, their right to the protection of personal data” (Article 1.2.), highlighting in its Recital 1 that “the protection of natural persons in relation to the processing of personal data is a fundamental right” and in its Recital 10 that “to ensure a consistent and high level of protection of natural persons and to eliminate obstacles to the free movement of personal data within the Union, the level of protection of the rights and freedoms of natural persons by...

Regarding the processing of such data, it must be equivalent in all Member States. It must be ensured throughout the Union that the application of the rules for the protection of the rights and fundamental freedoms of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data is consistent and homogeneous.” Consequently, the right to the protection of personal data of individuals is a fundamental right and, therefore, situated at the highest level of legal protection, which is currently regulated directly by community legislation, with the aforementioned GDPR establishing a set of principles, rights, obligations, and an organizational structure aimed at guaranteeing this fundamental right. Among these, information security appears as an additional obligation for the data controllers and processors, who must implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, which will include, among other factors, “the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of processing systems and services” and “the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data quickly in the event of a physical or technical incident” (Article 32.2. b) and c) of the GDPR).

Therefore, there is no doubt that the guarantee of the security of personal data acquires special significance regarding its protection, but this is not limited exclusively to the field of the security of such information, as the protection of personal data has a much broader scope that encompasses, as we mentioned, a set of principles, rights, and obligations that are much wider. (the underlining is ours) This issue is substantial since the certification mentioned in the service contract does not serve as an element to “demonstrate the existence of sufficient guarantees referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4” of Article 28 of the GDPR, as it does not pertain to data protection. The difference in approach between mere information security and data protection is extremely important, as while the former focuses exclusively on information security, the risk-based approach of the GDPR (which is much broader as it focuses on the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects arising from the processing of personal data) is centered on individuals, with security being just one more obligation within those of the GDPR to achieve the protection of individuals in the terms of the recitals, notably 1 and 10, as well as in accordance with the provisions of Article 1 of the GDPR.

Within the management of GDPR compliance lies risk management, on which information security pivots and not the other way around.

CR ASTURIAS claims that the security measures initially implemented by RSI are outlined in the service contract signed with RSI and that the attackers may have legitimate credentials for access and that the attack is not due to the weakness of the implemented systems.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

Prior to addressing the matter, we must refer to the proven facts and the description of the personal data breach to understand how and why the personal data breach occurred.

Regarding the security measures outlined in the "Amendment Agreement for the Data Protection Clause of Service Provision Contracts," the mention of security measures refers to those listed in Annex B - Security Measures to the Amendment Agreement for the Data Protection Clause of Service Provision Contracts.

Well, from a detailed examination of the citation of these measures, as we are unaware of their development in relation to the specific measures implemented, we can again verify that they are measures that refer generally to information security and not to data protection (...), a substantially different issue from data protection. (...). A policy is a central and guiding instrument of an organization in which the responsible party addresses its objectives and establishes procedures, resources, and mechanisms to carry it out, requiring subsequent detailed development. It is not the same to address mere information security as it is to address the protection of a fundamental right such as data protection, given the focus and purpose of each.

Furthermore, the fact that a list of measures appears in a service contract (in this specific case, information security measures) does not imply that they guarantee appropriate security as determined by Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, because one must consider the focus on protecting the rights and freedoms of the data subjects, and the implemented measures do not necessarily serve to fulfill that objective if they have not been designed and implemented from the perspective required by the GDPR.

“FIFTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 5.1.f) OF THE GDPR” CR ASTURIAS considers the contradiction in which the Initial Agreement incurs by stating that “the identification of a personal data breach does not imply the direct imposition of a sanction by this Agency, as it is necessary to analyze the diligence of the controllers and processors and the security measures applied,” when it subsequently understands that Article 5.1.f) has been infringed as a consequence of the mere fact that the breach has occurred.

On this particular matter, we refer to the legal basis IV explaining the concurrence of the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR in this specific case, where it is detailed that the infringement has not been committed merely due to the result of loss of confidentiality, even though it is a result-based infringement.

The Judgment of the Constitutional Court (STC) 292/2000, in its analysis of the “content” of the fundamental right to data protection, refers to the power

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

of disposition and control that pertains to the data subject regarding the possible use or uses of their data by a third party. The seventh legal basis states:

“[...] it follows that the content of the fundamental right to data protection consists of a power of disposition and control over personal data that empowers the individual to decide which of those data to provide to a third party, whether the State or a private individual, or which this third party may collect, and that also allows the individual to know who holds that personal data and for what purpose, being able to oppose such possession or use. These powers of disposition and control over personal data, which are part of the content of the fundamental right to data protection, are legally specified in the authority to consent to the collection, obtaining, and access to personal data, its subsequent storage and processing, as well as its possible use or uses by a third party, whether the State or a private individual.”

The obligation of confidentiality imposed on the data controller by Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR is an obligation of result, such that for the provision to be considered infringed, the confidentiality of the data must be breached.

As specified in the Supreme Court ruling of February 15, 2022, rec. of cassation 7359/2020,

“The obligation to adopt the necessary measures to ensure the security of personal data cannot be considered an obligation of result, which implies that once a leak of personal data to a third party occurs, there is liability regardless of the measures adopted and the activity carried out by the data controller or processor.

In obligations of result, there is a commitment to achieving a specific objective, ensuring the achievement or proposed result, in this case, guaranteeing the security of personal data and the non-existence of leaks or security breaches (...). (the emphasis is ours)

It should be noted that the data controller incurs in contradiction when, on one hand, it considers that there has been no violation of data protection regulations and believes that everything should be redirected to the filing of the case, while on the other hand, it confirms and indicates that it is evidenced in the file “that the attacker could access the data, but in no case alter it,...”; (...).

Regarding the allegations reiterated by the responding party that the infringements attributed concerning Article 5.1.f) and 32 of the GDPR are identical since we are dealing with the same fact subject to double attribution, we refer to what has already been indicated in previous legal grounds regarding the proposal to file the infringement of Article 32 of the GDPR.

In light of the above, it is evidenced that CR ASTURIAS has violated the principle of confidentiality and integrity of the data, a principle enshrined in Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, an infringement classified under Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR.

“SIXTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 33 OF THE GDPR

Regarding the allegations made by the claimant concerning the imputation of Article 33 of the GDPR, a response is no longer necessary, as, as stated in the proven facts and in the preceding legal grounds, the filing of the initially imputed infringement is proposed in light of the specific circumstances of the case previously expressed.

“SEVENTH. VIOLATION OF THE PRINCIPLE OF PROPORTIONALITY IN THE DETERMINATION OF SANCTIONS”

CR ASTURIAS has argued that in the event that it is considered that there has been a violation of the protection regulations, it must be particularly taken into account in determining the sanction that may be imposed, the application of the principle of proportionality.

It should be noted that Article 83.1 of the GDPR provides that “Each supervisory authority shall ensure that the imposition of administrative fines in accordance with this Article for the infringements of this Regulation referred to in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 are, in each individual case, effective, proportionate, and dissuasive.”

Fines, therefore, as deduced from the invoked provision, must be effective, proportionate, and dissuasive to achieve the purpose intended by the GDPR.

It is true that for this system to function with all its guarantees, it is necessary for several elements to be deployed in an integral and complete manner. The application of rules external to the GDPR regarding the determination of fines in each of the Member States applying their national law, whether due to aggravating or mitigating circumstances not provided for in the GDPR - or in the LOPDGDD in the Spanish case as allowed by the GDPR itself - would undermine the effectiveness of the system, losing its meaning, its teleological purpose, and the will of the legislator, resulting in fines imposed for different infringements ceasing to be effective, proportionate, and dissuasive. In this way, it would also deprive the interested parties of the effective guarantee of their rights and freedoms, weakening the uniform application of the GDPR. The mechanisms for protecting the rights and freedoms of citizens would be diminished, which would be contrary to the spirit of the GDPR.

The GDPR is endowed with its own principle of proportionality that must be applied in its strict terms. Regarding the principle of proportionality of sanctions, the National Court has stated in numerous judgments that the principle of proportionality cannot be exempt from judicial review, as the margin of appreciation granted to the Administration in imposing sanctions within the legally established limits must be developed by weighing, in any case, the concurrent circumstances, in order to achieve the necessary and due proportion between the imputed facts and the responsibility required, given that every sanction must...

to be determined in accordance with the nature of the infringement committed and based on a criterion of proportionality in relation to the circumstances of the fact. Thus, proportionality constitutes a normative principle that is imposed on the Administration and that limits the scope of its sanctioning powers.

Well, in accordance with the circumstances present in this case, which have been meticulously and appropriately evaluated, this resolution does not violate the principle of proportionality in determining the imposed sanctions, resulting in a balanced and proportionate response to the severity of the infringement committed, the importance of the facts, as well as the circumstances taken into account to grade the sanction, without any reasons being appreciated that would further justify the reduction made, especially considering the amount to which such sanctions may rise in accordance with Article 83.5 of the RGDP, which provides for the infringement of Article 6.1 of the RGDP, “with administrative fines of up to €20,000,000 or, in the case of a company, an amount equivalent to a maximum of 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year, opting for the higher amount.”

In this case, the entity under investigation is a large company within its sector of activity; in accordance with the proven fact twenty-first, its turnover (gross margin) during the year 2022 amounted to €118,700,000, resulting in the fine imposed for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the RGPD amounting to €15,000, which would be in the lower range of the possible administrative fine that could be imposed on the data controller and far from the maximum of 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year considering the turnover.

- CR ASTURIAS considers regarding the circumstance derived from the nature, severity, and duration of the infringement that the mere reference to the provision subject to the infringement is taken as an aggravating factor.

However, such an argument cannot be accepted as it is inconsistent; in fact, what is sought to be highlighted is that the infringement of Article 5.1.f) affects one of the basic principles on which the data protection regulations for personal data are based, confidentiality, and this violation is heightened and aggravated by the number of affected individuals due to the incident, the damages and losses caused (irreversible loss of power and control over personal data by the clients) and its duration, as (...).

- CR ASTURIAS considers regarding the intentionality or negligence in the infringement that the lack of diligence in its actions is solely due to its status as a financial entity, and, in truth, the aforementioned statement is surprising.

Taking into account that in the conduct of CR ASTURIAS the element of culpability is present, which is essential to demand sanctioning responsibility, in this case, it is also specified in a very serious lack of diligence in complying with the principle of confidentiality of personal data as has been demonstrated throughout the procedure.

RSI has indicated that:

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

Furthermore, the lack of diligence demonstrated in the infringing conduct for which it is held responsible must be classified as very serious; CR ASTURIAS is obliged under Article 5.2 of the GDPR to carry out the appropriate activity to comply with the principles of data protection, particularly the principle of confidentiality, and to be in a position to demonstrate its compliance.

- CR ASTURIAS considers that taking its banking activity into account as an aggravating factor is a form of objective aggravation; firstly, it is not a matter related to the specific activity carried out by a particular entity, but rather the aggravating factor provided for in Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD operates when the infringer's activity is linked to the processing of personal data, and it is obvious that, in relation to the present data controller, its activity, in this specific banking case, is clearly linked, directly, to multiple processing of personal data affecting thousands of clients.

In this regard, the National Court has considered it correct to appreciate the aggravating factor provided for in Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD as long as the aforementioned link exists, and it has done so in numerous judgments, including the one dated 04/07/2024, (rec. 382/2022), which states regarding the cited circumstance that:

“As well, the aggravating factor of the continued nature of the infringement, as set out in Article 76.2.a) of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on Personal Data Protection and the guarantee of digital rights, should be appreciated, referring to it when we analyze the application of the GDPR to the infringement at hand. As well, the appreciation of the link between the infringer's activity and the processing of personal data (Article 72.2.b) of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5), is due to the fact that the activity of the appellant is linked to the processing of data from both clients and third parties; this link is well known since the entity, due to its activity, is in constant contact with clients and third parties handling a large volume of data, which imposes a greater duty of diligence.” (the emphasis is ours).

Finally, CR ASTURIAS considers that the AEPD, in modulating its responsibility, has not taken into account elements to mitigate it, such as evidentiary elements that demonstrate compliance with the highest standards in security matters, nor the fact that it subjected the measures adopted to a system of periodic auditing or that RSI resolved the vulnerability that constituted the security breach; it is sufficient to refute the claims made by referring to the content of the proven facts, and regarding the last issue raised, to refer to what the data processor itself indicates in its notification of the personal data breach, dated 14/12/2022, and the document of 10/01/2023 transferring the final report, in which it responds to the following questions:

- Could the breach have been avoided by adopting any additional security measures?

Yes

- Did the incident occur due to any failure, deficiency, or non-compliance with implemented security measures?

Yes

And regarding the actions taken after the incident:

- Have you adapted/improved your security procedures and policies?

No

Therefore, the allegation made regarding the violation of the principle of proportionality cannot be accepted.

In light of the above, the following is issued by the Director of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection to sanction CAJA RURAL DE ASTURIAS, S.C.C. with NIF F33007337,

PROPOSAL FOR RESOLUTION

- For the alleged infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, classified in Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR, with a fine of €15,000 (FIFTEEN THOUSAND euros).

The Director of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection shall proceed to archive, regarding CAJA RURAL DE ASTURIAS, S.C.C. with NIF F33007337,

- For the alleged infringement of Article 32.1 of the GDPR, classified in Article 83.4.a) of the GDPR.

- For the alleged infringement of Article 33 of the GDPR, classified in Article 83.4.a) of the GDPR.

Likewise, in accordance with the provisions of Article 85.2 of the LPACAP, you are informed that you may, at any time prior to the resolution of this procedure, make voluntary payment of the proposed sanction, which will imply a reduction of 20% of its amount. With the application of this reduction, the total sanction would be set at €12,000 (TWELVE THOUSAND euros) and its payment will imply the termination of the procedure, without prejudice to the imposition of the corresponding measures. The effectiveness of this reduction will be conditioned upon the withdrawal or waiver of any action or appeal in the administrative route against the sanction.

In the event that you choose to proceed with the voluntary payment of the amount specified above, in accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned Article 85.2, you must make it effective by depositing it into the restricted account No. IBAN: ES00-0000-0000-0000-0000 (BIC/SWIFT Code: CAIXESBBXXX) opened in the name of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection at the banking entity CAIXABANK, S.A., indicating in the concept the reference number of the procedure that appears in the

I

Competence

In accordance with the powers granted to each supervisory authority by Article 58.2 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation, hereinafter GDPR), and as established in Articles 47, 48.1, 64.2, and 68.1 of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on the Protection of Personal Data and guarantee of digital rights (hereinafter, LOPDGDD), the Presidency of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection is competent to initiate and resolve this procedure.

Furthermore, Article 63.2 of the LOPDGDD states that: "The procedures processed by the Spanish Agency for Data Protection shall be governed by the provisions of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, by this organic law, by the regulatory provisions issued in its development and, as long as they do not contradict them, subsidiarily by the general rules on administrative procedures."

II

Termination of the procedure

Article 85 of Law 39/2015, of October 1, on the Common Administrative Procedure of Public Administrations (hereinafter LPACAP), under the heading "Termination in sanctioning procedures" provides as follows:

"1. Once a sanctioning procedure has been initiated, if the offender acknowledges their responsibility, the procedure may be resolved with the imposition of the appropriate sanction.

2. When the sanction is solely pecuniary or when it is possible to impose a pecuniary sanction and another non-pecuniary sanction but the impropriety of the latter has been justified, voluntary payment by the presumed responsible party, at any time prior to the resolution, will imply the termination of the procedure, except regarding the restoration of the altered situation or the determination of compensation for damages caused by the commission of the infringement.

3. In both cases, when the sanction is solely pecuniary, the competent body to resolve the procedure will apply reductions of at least 20% on the amount of the proposed sanction, which will be cumulative. The aforementioned reductions must be specified in the notification of initiation of the procedure, and their effectiveness will be conditioned on the withdrawal or waiver of any action or appeal in the administrative route against the sanction. The percentage of reduction provided in this section may be increased by regulation."

III

Voluntary payment

In accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned Article 85 of the LPACAP, the notified resolution proposal allowed for the voluntary payment of the proposed sanction, which would entail a reduction of 20% of its amount. With the application of this reduction, the sanction would be established at 12,000.00 euros, and its payment will imply the termination of the procedure, without prejudice to the imposition of the corresponding measures.

Following the aforementioned resolution proposal, and before a resolution was issued by this authority, the respondent, on December 21, 2024, proceeded to make the voluntary payment, availing themselves of the 20% reduction and waiving any action or appeal in the administrative route.

It should be noted that, in accordance with the provisions of the LPACAP, as well as the jurisprudence of the high court in this matter, the exercise of voluntary payment by the presumed responsible party does not exempt the administration from the obligation to resolve and notify all procedures, regardless of their form of initiation. Likewise, Article 88 of the aforementioned regulation establishes that the resolution that concludes the procedure will decide all issues raised by the interested parties and any others arising from it.

Therefore, in accordance with the applicable legislation and having assessed the criteria for the graduation of the sanctions whose existence has been established, the Presidency of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection RESOLVES:

FIRST: TO DECLARE the commission of the infringements and TO CONFIRM the sanctions determined in the dispositive part of the resolution proposal transcribed in this resolution. The sum of the aforementioned amounts yields a total of 15,000.00 euros.

After the respondent proceeded with the prompt payment, although without acknowledgment of responsibility, it is proceeded, by virtue of Article 85 of the LPACAP, to the reduction of 20% of the aforementioned total, which results in the final amount of 12,000.00 euros.

SECOND: DECLARE the termination of the procedure EXP202400066, in accordance with the provisions of Article 85 of the LPACAP.

THIRD: NOTIFY this resolution to CAJA RURAL DE ASTURIAS, S.C.C.

FOURTH: In accordance with the provisions of Article 85 of the LPACAP, which conditions the reduction for voluntary payment on the withdrawal or renunciation of any action or administrative appeal by the present authority, the express renunciation manifested by the claimed party is accepted. Consequently, the filing of an optional appeal for reconsideration against this resolution is not admissible, all without prejudice to the possibility of resorting to the contentious-administrative jurisdiction.

Consequently, taking into account the provisions of Article 90 of the LPACAP, since there is no administrative appeal possible due to the express renunciation, this resolution will be fully enforceable from the notification thereof.

However, in accordance with the provisions of Article 90.3 a) of the LPACAP, the firm resolution in the administrative process may be provisionally suspended if the interested party expresses their intention to file a contentious-administrative appeal. If this is the case, the interested party must formally communicate this fact by means of a written document addressed to the Spanish Agency for Data Protection, submitting it through the Agency's Electronic Registry [<https://sedeagpd.gob.es/sede-electronica-web/>], or through any of the other registries provided for in Article 16.4 of the aforementioned Law 39/2015, of October 1. They must also provide the Agency with documentation that proves the effective filing of the contentious-administrative appeal. If the Agency is not aware of the filing of the contentious-administrative appeal within two months from the day following the notification of this resolution, it will consider the provisional suspension to be concluded. In accordance with the provisions of Article 50 of the LOPDGDD, this Resolution will be made public once it has been notified to the interested parties.
