2) "processing": any operation or set of operations performed on personal data or sets of personal data, whether by automated means or not, such as collection, recording, organization, structuring, storage, adaptation or alteration, retrieval, consultation, use, communication by transmission, dissemination or otherwise making available, alignment, combination, restriction, erasure, or destruction;

The processing in this case has consisted of a set of operations for the retrieval and consultation of the personal data of the data subjects.

7) "data controller" or "controller": the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that, alone or jointly with others, determines the purposes and means of the processing; where the law of the Union or of the Member States determines the purposes and means of processing, the controller or the specific criteria for its designation may be established by the law of the Union or of the Member States;

The legal entity that determines the purposes and means of processing is CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, as a provider of banking services, and the data subjects in this case are the clients linked to the banking entity through a contract. CAJA RURAL DE BAENA collects the clients' data and decides on the purposes and means of the set of operations performed on personal data by automated procedures.

8) "processor" or "data processor": the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that processes personal data on behalf of the data controller;

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has entrusted RURALVÍA S.L., by contract dated October 8, 2018, with the execution of the necessary security measures for the set of automated operations for the processing of clients' personal data, within the framework of its banking service contracts.

12) "personal data breach": a breach of security that leads to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration of, or unauthorized access to personal data transmitted, stored, or otherwise processed;

A personal data breach has occurred due to the unauthorized access of a third party (a hacker) to the personal data of the clients of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA.

The entity carries out this activity in its capacity as the data controller, as it is the one who determines the purposes and means related to the processing of personal data, pursuant to Article 4.7 of the GDPR. Therefore, if it decides the "why" and the "how" personal data should be processed, it must assume its responsibility.

Furthermore, the data controller must also be responsible for implementing the technical and organizational measures that ensure the security of personal data during processing. It must be able to demonstrate compliance with the GDPR and the LOPDGDD.

In this case, there is a security incident, categorized as a personal data breach, involving unauthorized access to personal data.

It should be noted that the identification of a personal data breach does not directly imply the imposition of a sanction by this Agency, as it is necessary to analyze the diligence of the controllers and processors and the security measures applied.

Among the principles of processing provided for in Article 5 of the GDPR, the integrity and confidentiality of personal data are guaranteed in paragraph 1.f). In turn, the security of personal data is regulated in Article 32 of the GDPR, which governs the security of processing, notification to the supervisory authority, and communication to the data subject, respectively.

As previously mentioned, it is presumed that the data controller is the entity that has the actual capacity to exercise control over the data, determining the why and how the data should be processed.

III

Description of the personal data breach

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA had the electronic banking application called Ruralvía Clásica for the purpose of providing online banking services to its customers.

For a customer to enter the Ruralvía Clásica application and log in, they needed to enter their identifier, password, and NIF.

Violation of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR.

Article 5.1.f) "Principles relating to processing" of the GDPR states:

"1. Personal data shall be:

f) processed in such a manner as to ensure appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorized or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction or damage, using appropriate technical or organizational measures ('integrity and confidentiality')."

The facts revealed in this procedure constitute a personal data breach consisting of a loss of confidentiality of personal data, considering that the regulations on the protection of personal data have been violated. The present facts have the data controller, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, as the respondent, as determined in the proven facts.

Thus, as stated in the seventeenth proven fact, regarding the personal data accessed by the attacker, the "Final Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, indicates that,

Although the personal data breach was detected on December 7, 2022, prior accesses to that date are confirmed, with the highest volume of accesses occurring between November 10 and November 23, 2022.

In this regard, in the aforementioned report of December 30, 2022, as stated in the eighth and fourteenth proven facts, it is indicated in section 1.4.2, "How was the problem detected or how did it happen?", that:

"After extracting and analyzing the activity logs of electronic banking customers, it is identified that the possible unauthorized access to customer data occurs mainly between November 10 and November 23." (the emphasis is ours).

The attacker was able to access those personal data of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA customers due to the lack of appropriate technical and organizational measures prior to the occurrence of the personal data breach.

First, it should be noted that, as stated in the eleventh proven fact, regarding the causes that allowed the personal data breach, in the "Final Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, in section 3, "Cause Analysis," it states:

Second, in the fifteenth proven fact, the mitigating measures implemented are recorded, highlighting the absence of appropriate technical and organizational measures to prevent the occurrence of the breach, emphasizing, for these purposes,

In conclusion, and in accordance with all that has been indicated, it has been established that the violation of the principle of confidentiality that indeed occurred, as the attacker accessed the personal data of (...) from CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, was possible due to the lack of appropriate technical and organizational measures highlighted by the aforementioned vulnerabilities.

The documentation in the file provides clear evidence that CAJA RURAL DE BAENA violated Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, "Principles relating to processing," by failing to adequately ensure the confidentiality and integrity of personal data as a result of the security breach that occurred.

In accordance with the evidence available in this proposal for the resolution of the sanctioning procedure, it is considered that the known facts constitute an infringement, attributable to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, for violating Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR.

V Qualification for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR

The aforementioned infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR constitutes the commission of the infringements classified in Article 83.5 a) of the GDPR, which considers that the infringement of "the basic principles for processing, including the conditions for consent under Articles 5, 6, 7, and 9" is subject to penalties, in accordance with paragraph 5 of the aforementioned Article 83 of the cited Regulation, "with administrative fines of up to €20,000,000 or, in the case of an enterprise, an amount equivalent to 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year, opting for the higher amount."

The LOPDGDD in its Article 71, Infringements, states that: "Acts and behaviors referred to in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 of Article 83 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, as well as those contrary to this organic law, constitute infringements."

And in its Article 72, it considers for the purposes of prescription that they are: "Very serious infringements:

1. In accordance with what is established in Article 83.5 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, the infringements that involve a substantial violation of the articles mentioned therein are considered very serious and will prescribe in three years, particularly the following:

a) The processing of personal data violating the principles and guarantees established in Article 5 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679.

VI Proposal for sanction for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR

In order to establish the administrative fine that should be imposed, the provisions contained in Articles 83.1 and 83.2 of the GDPR must be observed, which state:

"1. Each supervisory authority shall ensure that the imposition of administrative fines under this article for the infringements of this Regulation indicated in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 is effective, proportionate, and dissuasive in each individual case.

2. Administrative fines shall be imposed, depending on the circumstances of each individual case, as an additional or substitute measure to those provided for in Article 58, paragraph 2, letters a) to h) and j). In deciding to impose an administrative fine and its amount in each individual case, the following shall be duly taken into account:

- a) the nature, gravity, and duration of the infringement, taking into account the nature, scope, or purpose of the processing operation in question as well as the number of data subjects affected and the level of damage suffered;
- b) the intentionality or negligence in the infringement;
- c) any measures taken by the controller or processor to mitigate the damage suffered by the data subjects;
- d) the degree of responsibility of the controller or processor, taking into account the technical or organizational measures they have implemented pursuant to Articles 25 and 32;
- e) any previous infringement committed by the controller or processor;
- f) the degree of cooperation with the supervisory authority in order to remedy the infringement and mitigate the possible adverse effects of the infringement;
- g) the categories of personal data affected by the infringement;
- h) the manner in which the supervisory authority became aware of the infringement, in particular whether the controller or processor notified the infringement and, if so, to what extent;
- i) when the measures indicated in Article 58, paragraph 2, have been previously ordered against the controller or processor in relation to the same matter, the compliance with such measures;
- j) adherence to codes of conduct under Article 40 or to approved certification mechanisms under Article 42, and
- k) any other aggravating or mitigating factor applicable to the circumstances of the case, such as the financial benefits obtained or the losses avoided, directly or indirectly, through the infringement.

In relation to letter k) of Article 83.2 of the GDPR, the LOPDGDD, in its Article 76, "Sanctions and corrective measures," establishes that:

"2. In accordance with the provisions of Article 83.2.k) of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, the following may also be taken into account:

- a) The continued nature of the infringement.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es

23/59

- b) The connection of the infringer's activity with the processing of personal data.
- c) The benefits obtained as a result of the commission of the infringement.
- d) The possibility that the conduct of the affected party may have induced the commission of the infringement.
- e) The existence of a merger by absorption after the commission of the infringement, which cannot be attributed to the absorbing entity.

- f) The impact on the rights of minors.
- g) Having, when not mandatory, a data protection officer.
- h) The voluntary submission by the controller or processor to alternative dispute resolution mechanisms, in cases where there are disputes between them and any interested party.

According to the transcribed provisions, for the purpose of determining the amount of the sanction to be imposed in this case for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, classified under Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR for which CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is held responsible, the following factors are deemed concurrent:

- The nature, severity, and duration of the infringement; the facts revealed affect a basic principle related to the processing of personal data, such as confidentiality and integrity, which the regulation penalizes with the utmost severity as the personal data breach allows unauthorized third parties access to personal data, with the potential harms that this may entail.
- Regarding the level of damages and losses caused: it should be considered high since, in addition to personal data (...), economic and financial data must also be included, as users who had access to Electronic Banking would have had access to this type of data (...). Additionally, it should be noted that this situation allows access to the data, which can lead to the materialization of the risk of identity theft, among others (Article 83.2.a) of the GDPR).
- The intentionality or negligence in the infringement. There is a lack of diligence in complying with the obligations imposed by data protection regulations, allowing access by cybercriminals to personal data, thereby violating its confidentiality; in this regard, reference can be made to the SAN of 17/10/2007, which, although issued before the GDPR came into force, is perfectly extrapolable to the case we are analyzing. The ruling, after mentioning that entities whose activities involve continuous processing of customer and third-party data must observe an adequate level of diligence, specified that "(...) the Supreme Court has understood that there is negligence whenever a legal duty of care is neglected, that is, when the infringer does not behave with the required diligence. And in assessing the degree of diligence, the professionalism or lack thereof of the subject must be especially weighed, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the activity of the appellant involves constant and abundant handling of personal data, rigor and the necessity for compliance must be emphasized."

"exquisite care to comply with the legal provisions in this regard" (Article 83.2, b) of the GDPR).

- The activity of the entity allegedly infringing is linked to the processing of personal data of both clients and third parties. In the activity of the claimed entity, the processing of personal data is essential; therefore, given its purpose and business volume, the significance of the conduct subject to this claim is undeniable (Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGD in relation to Article 83.2.k).

For the purpose of deciding on the proposal for the fine and its amount, in accordance with the available evidence, taking into account the criteria of Article 83.2 of the GDPR regarding the infringement committed, violation of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, it is proposed to impose a sanction of €10,000 (ten thousand euros).

Violation of Article 32.1 of the GDPR

Article 32 of the GDPR "Security of processing" establishes that:

"1. Taking into account the state of the art, the costs of implementation, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks of varying likelihood and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller and the processor shall implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, which may include, among others:

- a) the pseudonymization and encryption of personal data;
- b) the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of processing systems and services;

c) the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data quickly in the event of a physical or technical incident;

d) a process for regularly testing, assessing, and evaluating the effectiveness of the technical and organizational measures to ensure the security of processing.

2. In assessing the appropriateness of the level of security, particular consideration shall be given to the risks presented by the processing of data, in particular as a consequence of the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, or alteration of personal data transmitted, stored, or otherwise processed, or the unauthorized communication or access to such data.

3. Adherence to an approved code of conduct pursuant to Article 40 or to an approved certification mechanism pursuant to Article 42 may serve as an element to demonstrate compliance with the requirements set out in paragraph 1 of this article.

4. The controller and the processor shall take measures to ensure that any person acting under the authority of the controller or the processor and having access to personal data only processes such data on instructions from the controller, unless required to do so by Union or Member State law."

Upon reviewing the allegations made by the claimed party, and in light of them, reviewing the documentation in the administrative file and that provided by the claimed party, it is evident that all the technical and organizational security measures whose absence has been proven, directly enabling the personal data breach, have not resulted in a violation, in this specific case, of Article 32 of the GDPR as the absence of other independent technical and organizational security measures unrelated to the personal data breach has not been substantiated.

VIII

Response to the allegations made regarding the initiation agreement

In relation to the allegations made by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA regarding the initiation agreement, a response is provided according to the order in which they are presented in their writing:

"FIRST. ON THE ACCUMULATION OF PROCEDURES AGAINST THE ENTITIES OF THE GROUP."

1. Preliminary considerations

According to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA: "All the initiation agreements in the files just referenced stem, as indicated, from the security breach analyzed by the Initiation Agreement" and subsequently states that "we are faced with a single fact, referring to a unique breach, suffered during the development of the aforementioned tool carried out by RSI in its capacity as processor, which, however, is fragmented by the AEPD into twenty-six differentiated procedures processed against twenty-six different entities."

In response to these preliminary considerations, it should be noted that the claimed party confuses the factors that determined the vulnerability being similar in all the procedures initiated by this Agency with the assertion that only a single personal data breach has occurred.

We are dealing with incidents that have affected (...) which are completely independent, both legally and economically. Each of these entities is responsible for the processing of their clients' data in a differentiated manner, and, consequently, there are as many personal data breaches as there are data controllers who have failed to comply with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. Each entity is responsible for the processing of its own data and regarding its own clients.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

26/59

All the entities referred to by the respondent in their written allegations had contracted with RSI, (...).

However, the fact that RSI was the same entity responsible for processing for all the Entities does not imply that one can speak of "a single fact, related to a unique breach."

Each entity, as the data controller of its clients, autonomously made the decision to contract with RSI as the data processor, for which each of them signed their own data processing agreement, on different dates, signed by different individuals with sufficient authority for this purpose in each of the rural banks and referencing their respective data protection delegates, who are not the same.

Furthermore, as also stated in the proven facts, both the "Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 9, 2022, and the "Final Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, were carried out individually for each of the rural banks, containing their own specificities.

Likewise, once the personal data breach occurred, the actions of each of the entities were not the same, with each acting autonomously, both in relation to the AEPD (some banks notified the personal data breach directly while others entrusted their data processor to carry it out), as well as with their respective clients and independently of the actions of the others.

2. On the accumulation of administrative procedure files.

In this allegation, the respondent considers that: "The legal regime of the accumulation of procedures, as well as processes, in the administrative sphere responds to the central idea of connectivity, that is, that the instruction work that must be carried out is favored by the appreciation of the issue raised as a whole and the possibility that the joint review work allows for a better assessment of the elements that enable the application of the norm to the specific case."

Article 57 of the LPACAP on the accumulation of procedures establishes that: "The administrative body that initiates or processes a procedure, regardless of how it was initiated, may, ex officio or at the request of a party, order its accumulation to others with which it has substantial identity or intimate connection, provided that it is the same body that must process and resolve the procedure. No appeal shall proceed against the accumulation agreement" (the underlining corresponds to the AEPD).

Consequently, both the administrative body that initiates the procedure and the one that processes it may order its accumulation to other procedures with which it has substantial identity or intimate connection, provided that it is the same body that must process and resolve the procedure.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

27/59

Article 57 of the LPACAP grants administrative bodies the authority for better management of the procedures they handle, allowing for their accumulation as long as there is substantial identity or intimate connection between them. Therefore, it is a possibility available to the Administration, which is not obliged to proceed with the accumulation if requested, although it is required to make a reasoned decision regarding it, as occurs in the present sanctioning procedure.

3. Response to the allegation seeking the accumulation of sanctioning procedures.

In this allegation, the responding party considers that: "The legal regime of the accumulation of procedures, as well as of processes, in the administrative sphere responds to the central idea of connectivity, that is, that the instructional work to be carried out is favored by the appreciation of the issue raised as a whole and the possibility that the joint viewing work allows for a better assessment of the elements that enable the application of the norm to the specific case."

It should be noted that the claims of the responding party are not supported by either Article 57 of the LPACAP or by any type of jurisprudence or doctrine that attributes to accumulation the purpose of providing the decision-making body with a better assessment of the elements of the case.

The institution of accumulation is a technique of administrative simplification that allows the competent body to process and resolve in a main procedure the possibility of accumulating it with other procedures that have substantial identity or intimate connection, for the purpose of simultaneous processing and resolution. The instrumental nature of accumulation is determined by the first limit established by Article 57 of the LPACAP, which states that the body "must be the same body that processes and resolves the procedure."

It is a procedural act that cannot be challenged, as established by Article 57 of the LPACAP itself, unlike what is provided in Article 112.1 of the same regulation, which does allow for the challenge of other procedural acts when these "directly or indirectly decide the substance of the matter, determine the impossibility of continuing the procedure, produce defenselessness or irreparable harm to legitimate rights and interests."

However, when the LPACAP excludes the possibility of appeal, it is because it applies to the accumulation of procedures, as a procedural act, none of the cases in Article 112.1 of the LPACAP that we have just reproduced.

With these arguments as a starting point, the allegations made by the responding party must be completely dismissed, to which a specific response will also be provided.

A) Existence of "intimate connection" or "substantial identity."

The responding party reiterates the idea referred to in the preliminary considerations of this FIRST allegation, that there was "a single data security breach."

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

28/59

personal data, notified by each of the responsible parties (directly or through their data processor RSI."

It continues to assert that "Connectivity, in the present case, therefore derives from the fact that it is about clarifying responsibility for twenty-six legal entities, but for the same event."

As already established in the response to the preliminary considerations of this FIRST allegation, one cannot speak of a single breach of personal data, but rather that there have been as many breaches of personal data as there are entities, all of which are independent from one another, each responsible for its own processing and regarding its own clients, whose systems have suffered a security breach. For the responding party, there is a single event upon which responsibilities can be demanded, the security incident in the field of information technology. However, beyond the breach of personal data itself, there has been a loss of confidentiality of the personal data of the clients of each of the entities, which cannot be encompassed as a single event nor as the same event.

Likewise, it is necessary to differentiate the facts related to the actions taken after each entity became aware of the security breach. Some entities directly notified the AEPD of the breach, while in others the communication was made by the data processor at the request of each of the data controllers (in different ways and at different times).

Finally, some entities communicated the loss of confidentiality of their personal data to the affected parties, fulfilling the obligation established in Article 34 of the GDPR, while other entities did not send any type of communication.

All these diverse factual elements determine that one cannot speak of an "intimate connection" or "substantial identity" that justifies the accumulation of the proceedings, beyond the same IT vulnerability.

Regarding the ruling of the TSJ Castilla-La Mancha cited in the allegations, the following clarifications should be made:

1) There is no compliance with an obligation by several persons jointly, so the assumption of Article 28.3 of Law 40/15 does not apply.

According to Article 28.3 of Law 40/2015, of October 1: "When the fulfillment of an obligation established by a norm with the rank of Law corresponds to several persons jointly, they shall be jointly liable for the infringements that may be committed and for the sanctions that are imposed. However, when the sanction is monetary and it is possible, it shall be individualized in the resolution based on the degree of participation of each responsible party."

In the present case, one cannot speak of the existence of joint liability, as it does not concern a joint obligation of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA with the other entities referred to in its written allegation. The facts constituting the infringement attributed to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA are so in its capacity as data controller, in accordance with the provisions of Article 4 of the

sedeagpd.gob.es

29/59

GDPR, so the compliance with the principles and obligations established in the GDPR regarding the processing of data of its clients corresponds individually to them, not jointly with the other entities, since, furthermore, there is no joint liability under the GDPR.

It should also be noted that the fine imposed on each entity depends on its own circumstances, such as the number of affected clients or its business volume.

The figure of joint controllers of the processing, regulated in Article 26 of the GDPR, would not be applicable in this case, “when two or more controllers jointly determine the purposes and means of the processing, they will be considered joint controllers of the processing.” The purposes and means of the processing have been determined by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA independently of the other entities, in its capacity as the sole controller of the personal data of its clients.

Finally, the situation described in the judgment does not apply to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA in relation to the other entities, where “the Administration imputes different forms of cooperation or collusion among the three defendants in relation to the same facts.” Here, there can be no talk of any type of cooperation or collusion in the facts; it is simply the responsibility of each of the Rural Banks, and their relationship with the data processor, due to the regime established in the GDPR, according to which the controller, in this case, each of the Rural Banks, has control and authority over the processing of personal data and assumes responsibility for compliance with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. For its part, the data processor (RSI) must only process the data according to the instructions received from the controller. It cannot determine the purposes and means of the processing; its function is to execute the processing as established by the controller.

2) The separate processing of the files does not prevent each entity from presenting its allegations. In the judgment of the TSJ of Castilla La Mancha referred to by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, in the Third Legal Basis, it is stated that the plaintiff requested that all proceedings be consolidated in order to adequately exercise the right of defense, “...since they referred to the same facts, and it was expressly warned that processing them separately would constitute a serious violation of the right of defense as it would prevent knowledge of the allegations of the other parties involved and the documents they might submit, all of which could have relevance for the legal qualification of the facts, the determination of the existence or not of an infringement and of the responsible party.”

The non-consolidation of proceedings cannot produce any of the harms mentioned in that paragraph of the judgment.

Regarding the documents submitted to the procedure, those referring to the security incident, a series of documents were submitted by the data processor during the investigation proceedings (let us remember that both the C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

sedeagpd.gob.es

“Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 9, 2022, as well as the “Final Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 30, 2022, have been prepared individually for each of the rural banks, containing their specificities) whose access to the affected entity has been guaranteed through the prior request for a copy of the file. Any documents provided by the entities responsible for processing, which affect them individually, will be taken into consideration in the corresponding procedure.

3) CAJA RURAL DE BAENA reiterates the need for the “cumulative analysis of the files,” when the ruling of the TSJ of Castilla La Mancha does not include this idea. The need for accumulation is based on considerations other than those expressed by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA. As we have analyzed:

- Reference is made to the access to the documents in the file that may be provided by different responsible parties, a matter that we see is guaranteed here.
- The possibility of establishing joint liability is mentioned, which, as we have substantiated, does not apply under the regime established in the GDPR. We should not confuse joint liability under Article 28 of the LRJSP with the co-responsibility under Article 26 of the GDPR, which also does not apply in this case, since, as we stated, in no case are the other Rural Banks co-responsible for the processing of customer data of the other entities.
- There is no type of cooperation or collusion among the different Rural Banks in the facts. These figures must be dismissed due to the relationship between the Rural Banks, which are independent entities, each of them responsible for the processing of their clients, nor, as we have previously stated, regarding the special regime established by the GDPR concerning the responsible-processor relationship.

B) That the same body is responsible for processing and resolving the procedure. The processing of the various sanctioning procedures corresponds to the same body, as CAJA RURAL DE BAENA points out, which does not determine the mandatory nature of the decision to accumulate the procedures, especially when there are no circumstances that imply the defenselessness of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA.

4. Connectivity in the sanctioning field with the guarantees of Articles 24 and 25.1 of the Spanish Constitution.

In this allegation, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA points out that the Constitutional Court has declared that both the substantive principles of Article 25.1 CE and the procedural guarantees of Article 24.2 CE are applicable, with certain nuances, to the exercise of sanctioning power.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

4.1. General aspects related to the instruction and its essential functionality.

A) Linkage of the instruction as a consequence of the factual unity.

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA cites a ruling from the Supreme Court, which states that “the initiation of a single sanctioning procedure for the commission of the same infringing act, with the aim of determining the degree of participation of each alleged responsible party in the commission of the infringement and ensuring that the resolution of the file is coherent...” According to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, “In this case, the appellant argued that, since two files were processed, each of the responsible parties was unaware of what was in the other that could benefit or harm them. This is a concrete example of the difficulties that arise in terms of the right to defense in cases of separate processing.”

As previously justified, there are as many breaches of personal data as there are responsible parties, and we cannot speak of a single infringing act, but rather of a series of infringing acts attributable to a series of independent entities concerning the processing for which they are responsible regarding their clients; nor can we speak of “degree of participation” among the various entities, nor concerning the responsible-processor relationship.

Regarding the documents that are submitted to the procedure, those relating to the security incident, a series of documents were provided by the processor during the investigation proceedings, whose access to all affected entities has been guaranteed through the prior request for a copy of the file.

Moreover, RSI provided the “Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 9, 2022, as well as the “Final Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 30, 2022, prepared individually for each of the rural banks, containing their specificities.

Any documents provided by the entities responsible for processing, which affect them individually, will be taken into consideration in the corresponding procedure. And any others that may constitute evidence relevant to the facts will be duly incorporated into the other files ex officio, in accordance with the provisions of Article 75 of the LPACAP, “the necessary instructional acts for the determination, knowledge, and verification of the facts on which the resolution must be pronounced will be carried out ex officio.”

B) Connectivity as a fundamental prerequisite for the exercise of the right to defense.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

sedeagpd.gob.es

32/59

According to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, each of the sanctioning procedures becomes “sealed” and the evidence, allegations, and expert opinions presented in one cannot be presented contradictorily in another.

However, a paragraph from the judgment transcribed by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is fully applicable to respond to the present allegation: "it is not specified to what extent it had 'prejudiced its defense'," and to reject it, just as the Supreme Court understands "that the decision of the lower court is correct, which considers that the initiation of sanctioning proceedings against each of the companies is justified... due to the clear differentiation of the conduct attributed and the failure to demonstrate that there has been real defenselessness - as reasoned in the contested judgment."

The Constitutional Court in its judgment No. 210/1999, of November 29, indicates that constitutionally relevant defenselessness is the situation in which, after the infringement of a procedural norm, one of the parties is prevented from exercising their right to defense by eliminating or limiting their power, either to assert rights and interests for them to be recognized, or to dialectically respond to opposing positions in the exercise of the principle of contracting.

An essential characteristic of defenselessness is that it must have a material character and not merely a formal one, meaning that the existence of a defect or procedural infringement is not sufficient; there must have been an effective and real right to defense (Constitutional Court judgment No. 90/1988, of May 13).

Well then, beyond a generic allegation of the potential defenselessness that could arise from the non-accumulation of the procedures, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is unable to present a single defect or procedural infringement that has effectively limited its right to defense, when the allegations presented by the affected Rural Banks regarding the security incident are substantially similar, and they have had access to all the documentation that affects them in a common manner. In any case, the instructing body will incorporate into the procedure and inform CAJA RURAL DE BAENA of any other documents that may constitute evidence relevant to the facts.

4.2.- The intimate connection as a requirement for the individualization of responsibility for the same facts.

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA argues that, since we are dealing with a single breach of personal data, the processing of separate procedures for each of the responsible entities may eventually lead to the determination of diverse responsibilities. The intimate connection translates into the principle of uniqueness in determining the concurrence of the facts when, as CAJA RURAL DE BAENA claims, it concerns unique facts that result in a single breach of personal data.

As previously reasoned, it is not appropriate to speak of a single breach of personal data, but rather as many breaches as there are data controllers who have suffered the security incident concerning their customers' data.

There cannot be different degrees of responsibility between CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and the other entities. Each data controller will have a degree of responsibility that must be determined individually regarding compliance with data protection regulations, without any type of cooperation in the commission of the infringement among the various Rural Banks that could determine different degrees of responsibility among the entities, as CAJA RURAL DE BAENA claims.

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA continues its reasoning by stating that "responsibility cannot be individualized without first objectifying the sanctioning reproach, and this cannot be projected in 26 procedures with their own dynamics, their own evidence...". Abstract arguments continue to be made, such as objectifying the sanctioning reproach, regarding its own dynamics and "its own evidence," when not even allegations have been made questioning the facts and evidence contained in the initiation agreement, nor has a request for the reception of evidence in the procedure been made.

The fact that "a single investigation procedure" has been processed and that no requirement has been directed against the data controllers but rather in relation to the processor (RSI) does not imply the "unitary factual determination," as CAJA RURAL DE BAENA argues. That the inspection actions were directed to require information from the data processor does not determine that subsequently a single procedure must be initiated to clarify administrative responsibilities. It should be noted that Article 53,

"Scope of the investigation activity," of the LOPDGDD does not impose that these must necessarily be carried out in relation to the data controller. Therefore, there is no obligation to investigate all controllers that carry out the processing in question. Inspectors can obtain evidence by consulting and requiring information from the data processor if they deem it appropriate.

4.3 Impact on the fundamental right to good administration

According to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, the accumulation becomes an obligation in case the absence of this could harm the rights of the administered, particularly those recognized in Article 24 of the Constitution, thus violating the right to good administration in accordance with Article 41 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.

In the previous allegations, the differences between the behaviors attributed to the Rural Banks have been motivated, and it has been established that no type of defenselessness has been caused to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA in the processing of the present procedure, having had access to all the documents in the file. In fact, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has not justified any type of defenselessness, nor does it point out any specific fact by which it has been caused defenselessness.

Lastly, it should be reiterated that we are not dealing with the same facts, but rather with the same technical problem that caused a security incident in the computer system of each of the responsible entities in relation to their processing of personal data (all of which are legally and economically independent from one another), which has resulted in a series of personal data breaches, not a single personal data breach, but a personal data breach in each of the Rural Savings Banks, leading to the alleged commission of a series of infringements by each of the different data controllers in relation to their processing of personal data and the rights and freedoms of their clients.

"SECOND. THE NON-EXISTENCE OF GUILT OF CAJA RURAL DE BAENA IN THE PRESENT CASE"

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has invoked various arguments to justify the absence of guilt in its conduct. Firstly, it states that it is not involved in the facts attributed to it, given that in the present case, the processing is carried out through a data processor; which, in turn, is the processor for the entities against which the proceedings are directed; and that the personal data protection regulations not only impose obligations related to the compliance with the principle of confidentiality and the adoption of necessary security measures on the data controller but also, when the processing is carried out on behalf of the controller by a data processor, on the latter.

In this regard, it is worth recalling that the figure of the data processor responds to the need to address phenomena such as the outsourcing of services by companies and other entities, so that in those cases where the data controller entrusts a third party with the provision of a service that requires the processor to process personal data on its behalf, the processing or the operations of the processing are carried out by the processor, in the name and on behalf of the controller, as if it were the latter carrying it out.

Therefore, the existence of a data processor depends on a decision made by the data controller, who may decide to carry out certain processing operations themselves or to contract all or part of the processing with a processor.

That is to say, the processor, in order to be one, does not hold any own interest regarding the outcome of the processing subject to the assignment, without prejudice to the economic compensation it receives for the service rendered, which is what occurs in the present case. The processors have no own interest; they act on behalf of and in the name of the controller, following their orders and for their purposes, and this is what determines that they are processors from the outset.

This determines that the data controller is responsible for actions contrary to the GDPR carried out by its data processors, unless the latter have acted as true data controllers, deciding...

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

regarding the purposes and means of processing, an issue that has not occurred in the present case. Thus, the CJEU ruling of December 5, 2023, in case C-683/21, regarding the question of whether an administrative fine can be imposed under Article 83 of the GDPR on a data controller in relation to processing operations carried out by a processor, determines that,

“83. As for the second question, regarding whether an administrative fine can be imposed under Article 83 of the GDPR on a data controller in relation to processing operations carried out by a processor, it must be recalled that, according to the definition in Article 4, point 8, of the GDPR, a processor is understood to be ‘the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that processes personal data on behalf of the data controller.’

84. Since, as indicated in paragraph 36 of this judgment, a data controller is responsible not only for all personal data processing that it carries out itself but also for processing carried out on its behalf, an administrative fine can be imposed on that controller under Article 83 of the GDPR in a situation where personal data is subject to unlawful processing and where it is not the controller, but a processor it has engaged, that has carried out the processing on its behalf.

85. However, the responsibility of the data controller for the behavior of a processor cannot extend to situations where the processor has processed personal data for its own purposes or where it has processed such data in a manner incompatible with the framework or modalities of processing as determined by the data controller or in a manner that cannot reasonably be considered to have been consented to by that controller. Indeed, in accordance with Article 28, paragraph 10, of the GDPR, the processor must, in that case, be considered responsible for processing with respect to that processing.” (emphasis added)

To the above, we must add the recent SAN of February 8, 2024, rec. 0002250/2021, regarding TELEFÓNICA MÓVILES ESPAÑA S.A.U, in which it is determined that,

“Well, the appellant company is the data controller, as it determines the purposes and means of the processing carried out for the purposes indicated in its Privacy Policy: ‘At Movistar, we process customer or user data for the provision of the service, as well as for other purposes that the customer allows or authorizes in the terms informed in this Privacy Policy or in the specific Conditions of each contracted Movistar Product or Service.’

Whereas the companies ATENTO TELESERVICIOS ESPAÑA, S.A.U., CATHPONE-NET, S.L., and THADER TELECOMUNICACIONES S.L. are considered processors.

This is derived from the contracts signed by the plaintiff with the aforementioned companies.

Well, it has not been proven that the aforementioned companies, as processors of the plaintiff, have determined the purposes and means of processing, nor have they used the plaintiff's customer data for their own purposes, nor have they interacted with third parties outside the structure and commercial name of the appellant company, but rather they have acted under the name of the plaintiff to fulfill its purposes, using its systems to carry out operations with customers.

Therefore, it is not possible to invoke Article 28.10 of the GDPR for a presumed attribution of responsibility to the processors that also implies the exoneration of the data controller, that is, of the company here appealing. On the other hand, according to the aforementioned contracts, there is a clause that passes on to them any possible sanctions that the plaintiff company may suffer for non-compliance with data protection obligations.” (emphasis added)

On the other hand, the Guidelines 7/2020 of the EDPB on the concepts of "data controller" and "data processor" in the GDPR, version 2.0 adopted on July 7, 2021, determine that,

“30. Following the line of the fact-based approach, the word ‘determine’ means that the entity that truly exercises decisive influence over the purposes and means of processing is the controller. Generally, the processing contract establishes who is the determining party (the data controller) and who is the party that follows instructions (the data processor). Even when the data processor offers a service that is defined in advance in a specific way, it must present the data controller with a detailed description of the service, and the controller must make the final decision on the approval of how the processing will be carried out and request any changes it deems necessary. Furthermore, the data processor cannot modify, at a later time, the essential elements of the processing without the approval of the controller.

39. The question is where to draw the line between decisions reserved for the data controller and those that can be left to the discretion of the processor. It is evident that decisions regarding the purpose of the processing must always correspond to the controller.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

40. With regard to the determination of means, a distinction can be made between essential and non-essential means. Essential means are traditionally and inherently reserved for the data controller. These must be mandatorily determined by the data controller, although the determination of non-essential means may also be left to them. Essential means are closely linked to the purpose and scope of the processing, such as the type of personal data processed ("What data will be processed?"), the duration of the processing ("How long will the data be processed?"), the categories of recipients ("Who will have access to the data?"), and the categories of data subjects ("To whom do the processed personal data belong?"). In addition to being related to the purpose of the processing, essential means are closely tied to the question of whether the processing is lawful, necessary, and proportionate. Non-essential means are related to more practical aspects of the processing itself, such as the choice of a particular type of hardware or software or the decision regarding the specifics of security measures, which may be left to the processor.

41. Although decisions regarding non-essential means may be left to the processor, the controller must still stipulate certain elements in the contract with the processor: for example, regarding the security requirement, it may be ordered to adopt all measures required under Article 32 of the GDPR. The contract must also establish that the processor will assist the controller in ensuring compliance with, for example, the provisions of Article 32. In any case, the data controller remains responsible for implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure and be able to demonstrate that the processing is in compliance with the Regulation (Article 24). To this end, the controller must take into account the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. For this reason, the data controller must have complete information about the means used, as this will enable them to make an informed decision in this regard. To demonstrate the legality of the processing, it is advisable to document, in the contract or another legally binding instrument between the controller and the processor, at least the necessary technical and organizational measures.

74. The GDPR establishes specific obligations that directly bind processors, as specified in section 1 of part II of these guidelines. A processor can be held liable or sanctioned when it fails to comply with such obligations or acts outside or against the legal instructions of the controller.

80. Secondly, the processing must be carried out on behalf of a data controller, but not under their direct authority or control. Acting "on behalf of" someone means serving the interests of another and refers to the

38/59

Legal concept of "delegation." In the case of data protection regulations, the role of the data processor is to apply the instructions given by the data controller, at least concerning the purposes of the processing and the essential elements of the means. The legitimacy of the processing under Article 6 and, where applicable, Article 9 of the Regulation derives from the activity of the controller, and the processor must only process the data following the instructions given by the controller. Nevertheless, as previously indicated, the instructions of the data controller may leave some margin of discretion regarding how to best serve the interests of the controller, allowing the processor to choose the most appropriate technical and organizational means.

81. Acting "on behalf of" someone also means that the processor cannot carry out the processing for its own purposes. As stipulated in Article 28, paragraph 10, the data processor will violate the GDPR when it does not adhere to the instructions of the controller and begins to determine its own purposes and means of processing. In these cases, the data processor will be considered responsible for such processing and may be sanctioned for not having adhered to the instructions of the controller." (the emphasis is ours)

Well, in the specific case being examined, and in light of the documentation in the file, it is noted that, for the provision of IT services, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has entered into an "Individualized and Specific Service Provision Contract" with RSI.

Additionally, it has also signed within the framework of the previous contract the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L." related to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and was signed on D.D.D. and E.E.E., on behalf of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA (data controller).

In this regard, in this "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L.," CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is identified as the data controller and RSI as the data processor.

Furthermore, in this "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L.," the processing activities that could be carried out by RSI on behalf of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA, the type of information to be processed, and the categories of data subjects whose data could be processed are defined.

Additionally, it is determined that the security measures to be applied by RSI to ensure an adequate level of security in accordance with the provisions of Article 32 of the GDPR are those established in Annex B of the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts."

Service provision between CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L."

We must also highlight that it is stated in section 6 of the Agreement regarding "Responsibility" that, "If the Processor, or where applicable, the contractors, breach this Agreement or the current regulations when determining the purposes and means of processing, they shall be considered responsible for the processing concerning such processing.

In the event that a supervisory authority sanctions the Data Controller as a direct consequence of the Processor's failure to comply with the stipulations of this Agreement, the Processor shall indemnify the Data Controller as stipulated in the liability clause of the framework contract in force between the parties" (the underlining is ours).

This implies, by contrary sense and in accordance with the data protection regulations, the aforementioned rulings, and Guidelines 7/2020, that the data controller is responsible for the actions carried out by its data processor unless the latter determines the purposes and means, resulting in the fact that this latter issue has not been substantiated in the processed procedure.

Therefore, in accordance with the above, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is the data controller responsible for the processing carried out, it is the one who has decided to entrust a data processor to carry it out on its behalf and for its account, it is the entity that has the true capacity to exercise control over the processing of personal data, who determines which personal data will be processed on its behalf and for its account, the why and how these should be processed, as it defines the purpose of the personal data processing that its activity encompasses and chooses the means it deems appropriate. And in accordance with all the above and for the specific case, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is responsible for the infringement of the GDPR even when the incident has occurred within its data processor.

In this regard, in the very Agreement of Initiation, it is indicated in section 4 relating to the Obligations of the Data Controller that:

"It is the responsibility of the data controller:

- a) To provide the Data Processor with the necessary data for the provision of the service
- b) If legally required, to carry out a data protection impact assessment of the processing operations to be carried out by the Data Processor.
- c) To carry out the corresponding prior consultations.
- d) To ensure, prior to and throughout the processing, compliance with the GDPR by the Data Processor.
- e) To supervise the processing, including the carrying out of inspections and audits." (the underlining is ours)

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

sedeagpd.gob.es

40/59

This is directly related to the principle of proactive responsibility of the data controller as provided in Article 5.2 of the GDPR, which states that "the data controller shall be responsible for compliance with the provisions of paragraph 1 and shall be able to demonstrate it ('proactive responsibility')." This means that the controller must ensure the effective application of the principles of processing both at the time of determining the means of processing and during the processing itself, whether they carry out the processing of personal data directly or entrust a processor to do it on their behalf (for the purposes of data protection legislation, it is the same), through the implementation of a series of technical and organizational measures of all kinds, which must be subject to periodic review and updating. This implies that the aforementioned controller is the one who assumes their own responsibility by directing, reviewing, and coordinating the processing, including that of the personnel and the processor providing services to them.

Opinion 3/2010, from the Article 29 Working Party (WP29) - WP 173 - issued during the validity of the repealed Directive 95/46/EC, whose provisions are currently applicable, states that the "essence" of proactive responsibility is the obligation of the data controller to apply measures that, under normal circumstances, ensure that the data protection rules are complied with in the context of processing operations and to have available documents that demonstrate to data subjects and supervisory authorities what measures have been taken to achieve compliance with data protection rules.

For these purposes, consideration is given to what is stated in Recital 74 of the GDPR, "The responsibility of the data controller must be established for any processing of personal data carried out by them or on their behalf. In particular, the controller must be obliged to implement appropriate and effective measures and must be able to demonstrate compliance of the processing activities with this Regulation, including the effectiveness of the measures. Such measures must take into account the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks to the rights and freedoms of natural persons." (the underlining is ours)

Completing the above and in development of Article 5.2 of the GDPR, Articles 24 and 25 of the same legal text should be cited, the latter indicating regarding "Data protection by design and by default" that the fundamental right to the protection of personal data is much more than mere technology, as its focus is on the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects arising from the processing of personal data,

"1. Taking into account the state of the art, the cost of implementation, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks of varying probability and severity that the processing entails for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the data controller shall apply, both at the time of determining the means of processing and at the time of the processing itself, appropriate technical and organizational measures, such as pseudonymization, designed to effectively implement the principles of

sedeagpd.gob.es

data protection, such as data minimization, and integrate the necessary safeguards in the processing, in order to comply with the requirements of this Regulation and protect the rights of the data subjects.

2. The data controller shall implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure that, by default, only personal data that is necessary for each specific purpose of the processing is subject to processing...”

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA seems to argue that the responsibility lies with the data processor with whom it entered into a contract, under which the processor was obliged to implement appropriate security measures according to the risk; however, it is important to remember that the personal data breach occurred as a result of the decision made by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA (...), subscribing to the corresponding data processing agreement with RSI, where CAJA RURAL DE BAENA established the appropriate conditions.

Moreover, this is in addition to what has been stated by this Agency in previous paragraphs regarding that CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has determined the purposes and means of the processing, that it is responsible for the processing, that it is responsible for the personal data breach in this case due to the processing actions carried out by its data processor on its behalf, and that it is subject to the obligations of the GDPR, especially concerning proactive responsibility.

This is the responsibility of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA because it is the data controller and has the obligation to integrate and deploy data protection within all that constitutes its organization, in all its areas of action, whether they affect its employees or its data processors. It must be kept in mind that ultimately the determining purpose is to ensure the protection of the data subject, as the focus is on the risks to the rights and freedoms of the data subjects arising from the processing of personal data carried out by the data controller.

Therefore, the data controller must conduct a risk analysis regarding the rights and freedoms of natural persons in data processing, implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures to apply the principles of data protection and integrate the necessary safeguards in the processing, in order to comply with the requirements of the GDPR, being able to demonstrate that the processing is in accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned regulation. And in light of the principle of proactive responsibility (art. 5.2 GDPR), the data controller must be able to demonstrate that it has taken into account all the elements provided for in the GDPR.

Thus, all of this merely reflects a lack of diligence on the part of the investigated entity in ensuring adequate security relative to the risk of the data processing it carries out. In this regard, it should not be forgotten that the affected database contains personal data of thousands of customers, which constitutes large-scale processing, to which access is also made from web applications, that is, from the internet, with a very significant exposure surface, posing greater risks to the data subjects, which requires measures.

appropriate technical and organizational measures of all kinds, including security measures, specifically aimed at ensuring that there is no unauthorized access to such personal data.

As has been demonstrated and argued throughout this sanctioning procedure, it is considered that appropriate security measures were not implemented in this case to ensure the security of the personal data of the clients, which resulted in unauthorized access to the personal data of the clients of CAJA RURAL DE BAENA. Therefore, liability is not being demanded solely as a consequence of a result caused by a cyberattack.

It is much more than that; it is a failure to comply with the obligations imposed by the GDPR.

Therefore, it is emphasized that the data controller must establish clear modalities for such assistance in its relationship with the data processor and provide precise instructions to the data processor on how to comply with them appropriately and document it beforehand through a contract or another (binding) agreement, and also subsequently during the validity of the same and verify at all times during the execution of the contract its compliance in the manner established therein.

It suffices to bring to mind the content of the STS 1562/2020, of June 15, 2020, rec. 601/2019, which states the following:

"In this regard, the Judgment of the Supreme Court of June 5, 2004, which confirms, in cassation for the Unification of Doctrine, that of this AN of October 16, 2003, echoing the arguments made by this Chamber refers to the differentiation of two controllers based on whether the decision-making power is directed at the file or at the data processing itself. Thus, the file controller is the one who decides the creation of the file and its application, as well as its purpose, content, and use, that is, who has decision-making capacity over all the data recorded in that file. The data processor, however, is the subject to whom decisions regarding the specific activities of a particular data processing can be attributed, that is, regarding a specific application. This would involve all those cases in which the decision-making power must be differentiated from the material execution of the activity that integrates the processing. With this, as also argued by the STS of April 26, 2005 (cassation for unification of doctrine 217/2004), the Spanish legislator aims to adapt to the requirements of Directive 95/46/EC, which aims to provide a legal response to the phenomenon, which is becoming increasingly frequent, of the so-called outsourcing of IT services, where multiple operators act, many of them insolvent, created with the aim of seeking impunity or irresponsibility for those who follow in the subsequent links of the chain. Currently, the new Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of April 27, 2016, on the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data (which repeals Directive 95/46/EC and is directly applicable from May 25, 2018) also distinguishes between the figures of the controller and the processor. The former is defined in paragraph 7) of Article 4 as "a natural or legal person (...)

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

that determines the purposes and means of processing." And the data processor in section 8) of the same Article 4 as one who "processes personal data on behalf of the data controller."

This is in relation to Articles 24 and 28 of the same European Data Protection Regulation. The data controller and processor are undoubtedly also responsible for violations regarding data protection, in this new regulatory framework, in accordance with the provisions of Article 82.2 of the aforementioned Regulation (EU) 2016/679, which states: Any controller participating in the processing operation shall be liable for damages caused if that operation does not comply with the provisions of this Regulation. A processor shall only be liable for damages caused by the processing when it has not complied with the obligations of this Regulation specifically directed at processors or has acted outside or against the lawful instructions of the controller. It follows from all of the above that the involvement, in this case, of a data processor ZZZZ does not exempt the entity XXXX, now the appellant, from liability, despite the strength of the clauses contained in the contract and annex signed by both companies (proven facts 9 and 10) as the personal data processed was for the purpose of carrying out an advertising campaign regarding car and motorcycle insurance marketed by XXXX, ultimately benefiting said XXXX, being the acting entity that ultimately determines the purposes and means of the repeated data processing, therefore it cannot be exempted from liability."

The Supreme Court continues, regarding the possible exemption of liability claimed concerning what was agreed in the "data processor" contract, as follows:

"The sanctioned conduct of obstruction or hindrance by XXXX of its client's exercise of the right to object to the processing of their data is manifested in that said company did not adopt any measures or precautions to prevent the sending of advertising to its client's email addresses by those companies to which it entrusted the execution of the advertising campaigns.

The adoption of the necessary measures or precautions to ensure the effectiveness of the right to object to the processing of their data by XXXX, as the data controller, persists even if the advertising campaigns are not carried out based on data from its own files, but rather with databases from other companies contracted by XXXX, and in this case, it was established that the appellant did not communicate to the companies with which it contracted the execution of advertising services the complainant's objection to receiving advertising from the Mutual, nor did it ultimately adopt any provisions to ensure the exclusion of its client from the advertising mailings contracted with third parties."

Regarding the application of the principle of culpability in the area of sanctioning law regulated by the GDPR, the investigated entity brings up the doctrine established by the STJUE, of December 5, 2023 (case C-807/21, Deutsche Wohnen SE and Staatsanwaltschaft Berlin).

Well, it is pertinent to ask what the parameters of due diligence that the investigated entity should have observed in relation to the examined conduct are. The answer is that the diligence it should have observed is the one necessary to fulfill the obligations imposed on it by Articles 5.2, 24, and 25 of the GDPR, in light of the doctrine of the Audiencia Nacional and the jurisprudence of the Supreme Court. The SAN of October 17, 2007 (rec. 63/2006) is fully applicable to the case, which, after referring to the fact that entities whose activities involve continuous processing of data from clients and third parties must observe an adequate level of diligence, states:

"[...] the Supreme Court has understood that there is negligence whenever a legal duty of care is neglected, that is, when the infringer does not behave with the required diligence. In assessing the degree of diligence, special consideration must be given to the professionalism or lack thereof of the subject, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the activity of the appellant involves constant and abundant handling of personal data, it must be insisted upon the rigor and exquisite care to comply with the legal provisions in this regard."

Furthermore, the Audiencia Nacional in matters of personal data protection has declared that "simple negligence or failure to comply with the duties imposed by the Law on those responsible for files or data processing to exercise extreme diligence is sufficient..." (Judgment of the Audiencia Nacional of June 29, 2001).

Regarding the allegation made that the breach of personal data occurred within the framework of the data processing for which RSI was responsible, to the extent of carrying out the investigative actions exclusively with that entity, it should be noted that the preliminary investigative actions are precisely carried out to clarify the facts and circumstances of what happened, gathering more information in order to determine whether or not there is a possible infringement of the data protection regulations. In this sense, the initiation of preliminary investigations and their execution, a power of the AEPD, does not prejudice anything, but rather allows for the determination of the events that occurred and the gathering of necessary information wherever it may be found to determine whether there are indications of infringement or not. Even after such an investigation, it may be that the proceedings are archived because, based on the information gathered, it is understood that there are no indications of infringement. This, in the present case, has not happened.

Consequently, the allegations must be dismissed since the investigated entity has infringed the obligations imposed by the GDPR as the controller of the processing carried out in its name and on its behalf, in relation to the responsibilities required of all data controllers by Article 24 of the GDPR. Therefore, the allegations must be dismissed, emphasizing that the arguments presented do not undermine the content.

essential to the infringement that is declared committed nor do they constitute a cause of justification or sufficient exculpation.

“THIRD. ON THE IMPACT ON THE PRINCIPLES OF SANCTIONING LAW DERIVED FROM THE INTERPRETATION MADE BY THE AEPD”

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA considers that it has not committed any infringement of the Data Protection regulations, much less the simultaneous infringement of articles 5.1 f) and 32 of the GDPR, as the triple identity of subject, fact, and protected legal good is present; there is no doubt that in this case the principle of non bis in idem should apply, with the imposition of the sanction only for article 5.1.f) as it is the more serious of the two alleged infringements.

And in the event that the AEPD appreciates the violation, it should subsidiarily appreciate a medial concurrence as one of the infringements is subsumed and embedded in the other, according to what is provided in article 29.5 of the LRJSP, “When the commission of one infringement necessarily derives from the commission of another or others, only the sanction corresponding to the most serious infringement committed shall be imposed.”

“1. Violation of the principle of non bis in idem in the application of articles 5.1 f) and 32 of the GDPR”

In this regard, and in relation to this allegation made by CAJA RURAL DE BAENA against the initiation agreement, it should be indicated that since the filing of the initially imputed infringement of art. 32 of the GDPR has been proposed, it is no longer necessary to respond to these allegations, as the imputation of the infringement of article 5.1.f) of the GDPR no longer coincides with the imputation of the infringement of article 32 of the GDPR.

“FOURTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 32.1 OF THE GDPR”

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has stated that the AEPD considers the alleged violation of article 32 of the GDPR to be “evidenced,” that is, it considers the alleged insufficiency of the security measures adopted to be evident as a result of the occurrence of the personal data breach, making exclusive reference to the report on the breach contained in the administrative file, overlooking all the measures adopted as well as the audit carried out and that an erroneous interpretation of what occurred in the RSI systems is made.

Well, as indicated, upon reviewing the allegations made by the accused party, and in consideration of them, reviewing the documentation in the administrative file and that provided by the accused party, it is evident that all the technical and organizational security measures whose absence has been proven have had a direct impact on the personal data breach, without there having been a violation, in this specific case, of article 32 of the GDPR as the absence of other independent technical and organizational security measures from the personal data breach has not been accredited.

Regarding the sufficiency of the security measures, in relation to the non-compliance with article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, we refer to what has already been indicated in the legal basis IV of this resolution proposal, which explains and details why they were neither sufficient nor appropriate.

Furthermore, we will indicate that it is true that it is recorded that both prior to and subsequent to the security incident, the investigated entity conducted audits and reviews by third-party specialists aimed at detecting vulnerabilities exclusively related to the security of the information systems; but it is also true that despite the existence of such investigations, controls, and verifications, they were unable to locate and reveal the existing vulnerabilities, as is recorded in the proven facts.

On the other hand, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA claims that RSI has various security certifications, referenced in the third proven fact of this resolution proposal.

Article 28 of the GDPR, Processor, in its section 5, establishes that:

“5. The adherence of the processor to a code of conduct approved under article 40 or to a certification mechanism approved under article 42 may be used as an element to demonstrate the existence of sufficient guarantees referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4 of this article.”

In this sense, to demonstrate that processors offer the suitability and guarantees required by the GDPR, adherence to a certification mechanism can be used as an additional element to indicate the existence of sufficient guarantees to apply appropriate technical and organizational measures to protect personal data.

And this is because, in addition to the fact that a processor has been certified in data protection, this certification does not absolutely prove that the sufficient guarantees in relation, in this case, to the provision of art. 28.1 of the GDPR, have been implemented and are effectively acting throughout the entire processing cycle and the time during which the latter is taking place.

In the field of data protection, this type of instrument is a mechanism of voluntary compliance in which specific rules are established with the aim of contributing to the correct application of the GDPR and the LOPDPGDD.

According to the GDPR, the data controller must adopt appropriate measures, including the selection of processors, in such a way as to guarantee and be in a position to demonstrate that the processing is carried out in accordance with the GDPR (principle of active responsibility).

It is true that the certifications with which the data processor RSI appears to comply are mentioned in the data processing agreement; however, let us note that all the certifications listed in the proven fact three are not the certificates provided for in either Article 28 or Article 42 of the GDPR. They are not certifications in data protection, but rather certifications of information security or related to other obligations that must be fulfilled by the data controller or the data processor based on regulations other than data protection.

Thus, in the "Agreement to modify the data protection clause of the service provision contracts," signed between CAJA RURAL DE BAENA and RSI, in its "Annex B - Security Measures to the Agreement to modify the data protection clause of the service provision contracts," it is indicated that RSI holds the following certifications:

Moreover, its mention in the data processing agreement is not accompanied by the certification itself - for the purpose of verifying that it has indeed been certified and to see exactly what it is certified for, when it was certified, and whether at the time of the personal data breach the certification was still valid (since certifications have a validity period) - this certification is not for data protection.

In this regard, the report of the Legal Advisory Office 170/2018 of the AEPD establishes the difference between information security and the protection of personal data. Thus, it is indicated that, "Prior to analyzing the specific issue raised in the consultation, this Legal Advisory Office finds it appropriate to make a preliminary reference (...).

Regarding information security, it encompasses the set of techniques and measures aimed at ensuring the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information and data important for any organization, regardless of their format. (...)

On the contrary, the protection of personal data of individuals is configured as a true fundamental right that finds its foundation in Article 18.4 of the Spanish Constitution, according to which "the law shall limit the use of information technology to guarantee the honor and personal and family privacy of citizens and the full exercise of their rights." This has been recognized by our Constitutional Court, highlighting in Judgment 94/1998, of May 4, that the aforementioned Article 18.4 "not only entails a specific instrument for the protection of citizens' rights against the wrongful use of information technology but also enshrines an autonomous fundamental right to control the flow of information concerning each person - to 'privacy' according to the neologism stated in the Preamble of the LORTAD - whether or not they belong to the strictest realm of intimacy, in order to preserve the full exercise of their rights."

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

This is reflected in the Preamble of the Organic Law Project on Personal Data Protection and Guarantee of Digital Rights, which is transcribed below for its clarity:

"The protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data is a fundamental right protected by Article 18.4 of the Spanish Constitution. In this way, our Constitution was a pioneer in recognizing the fundamental right to the protection of personal data when it stipulated that 'the law shall limit the use of information technology to guarantee the honor and personal and family privacy of citizens and the full exercise of their rights.' This echoed the work developed since the late 1960s in the Council of Europe and the few legal provisions adopted in countries around us.

The Constitutional Court stated in its Judgment 94/1998, of May 4, that we are dealing with a fundamental right to data protection that guarantees individuals control over their data, any personal data, and over its use and destination, to prevent the illicit trafficking of such data or harm to the dignity and rights of those affected; thus, the right to data protection is configured as a citizen's power to oppose the use of certain personal data for purposes other than those that justified its acquisition. For its part, in Judgment 292/2000, of November 30, it considers it an autonomous and independent right that consists of a power of disposition and control over personal data that empowers the individual to decide which of those data to provide to a third party, whether the State or a private individual, or which this third party may collect, and that also allows the individual to know who possesses that personal data and for what purpose, being able to oppose such possession or use.

At the legislative level, the specification and development of the fundamental right of protection for individuals in relation to the processing of personal data took place initially through the approval of Organic Law 5/1992, of October 29, regulating the automated processing of personal data, known as LORTAD. Organic Law 5/1992 was replaced by Organic Law 15/1999, of December 5, on personal data protection, in order to transpose Directive 95/46/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council, of October 24, 1995, regarding the protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data and the free movement of such data. This organic law marked a second milestone in the evolution of the regulation of the fundamental right to data protection in Spain and was complemented by an increasingly abundant jurisprudence from the contentious-administrative jurisdictional bodies. Furthermore, it is also included in Article 8 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and in Article 16.1 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union. Previously, at the European level, the aforementioned Directive 95/46/EC had been adopted, whose purpose was to ensure that the guarantee of the right to personal data protection did not constitute an obstacle to the free movement of data within the Union, thus establishing a common space of guarantee of the right that, at the same time, ensures that in the case of international transfer of data, its processing in the destination country is protected by safeguards adequate to those provided for in the directive itself."

And in this same sense, the Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of April 27, 2016, on the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data, which repeals Directive 95/46/EC (General Data Protection Regulation, GDPR), states that its purpose is "to protect the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons and, in particular, their right to the protection of personal data" (Article 1.2), highlighting in its Recital 1 that "the protection of natural persons in relation to the processing of personal data is a fundamental right" and in its Recital 10 that "to ensure a consistent and high level of protection of natural persons and to eliminate obstacles to the free movement of personal data within the Union, the level of protection of the rights and freedoms of natural persons with regard to the processing of such data must be equivalent in all Member States. It must be ensured throughout the Union that the application of the rules for the protection of the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons in relation to the processing of personal data is coherent and homogeneous.” Consequently, the right to the protection of personal data of natural persons is a fundamental right and, therefore, situated at the highest level of legal protection, which is currently regulated directly by community legislation, establishing the aforementioned GDPR a set of principles, rights, obligations, and an organizational structure aimed at guaranteeing this fundamental right. Among these, information security appears as an additional obligation of the controllers and processors, who must implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, which will include, among other factors, “the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of processing systems and services” and “the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data quickly in the event of a physical or technical incident” (Article 32.2. b) and c) of the GDPR).

Therefore, there is no doubt that the guarantee of the security of personal data acquires special significance regarding its protection, but without being limited exclusively to the field of security of such information, as the protection of personal data has a much broader scope that encompasses, as we mentioned, a set of principles, rights, and obligations that are much wider. (the underlining is ours) This issue is substantial since the certification mentioned in the service contract does not serve as an element to “demonstrate the existence of sufficient guarantees referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4” of Article 28 of the GDPR, as it does not pertain to data protection. The difference in approach between mere security of the

The information and data protection is extremely important, as while the focus of the former is exclusively on information security, the risk-based approach of the GDPR (much broader as it focuses on the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects arising from the processing of personal data) is centered on natural persons, with security being just one obligation among those of the GDPR to achieve the protection of natural persons in the terms of recitals, notably 1 and 10, as well as in accordance with the provisions of Article 1 of the GDPR.

Within the management of GDPR compliance lies risk management, on which information security pivots, and not the other way around.

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA claims that the security measures initially implemented by RSI are outlined in the service contract signed with RSI and that the attackers may have legitimate credentials for access and that the attack is not due to the weakness of the implemented systems.

As a preliminary matter, we must refer to the established facts and the description of the personal data breach to understand how and why the personal data breach occurred.

Regarding the security measures included in the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts," when referencing the security measures, there is a referral to those listed in Annex B - Security Measures to the Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts.

Well, from a detailed examination of the citation of the same, as we are unaware of their development in relation to the specific measures implemented, we can again verify that they are measures that refer generally to information security and not to data protection (...), a substantially different issue from data protection. (...) A policy is a central and guiding instrument of an organization in which the responsible party addresses its objectives and establishes procedures, resources, and mechanisms to carry it out, requiring subsequent detailed development. It is not the same to address mere information security as it is to address the protection of a fundamental right such as data protection, considering the focus and purpose of each.

Moreover, the fact that a service contract includes a list of measures (in this specific case, information security measures) does not imply that they guarantee appropriate security as determined by Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, because one must consider the focus on the protection of the rights and freedoms of data subjects, and the implemented measures do not necessarily serve to fulfill such an objective if they have not been designed and implemented from the perspective required by the GDPR.

“FIFTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 5.1.f) OF THE GDPR”

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA considers the contradiction in which the Initiation Agreement incurs by stating that “the identification of a personal data breach does not imply the direct imposition of a sanction by this Agency, as it is necessary to analyze the diligence of controllers and processors and the security measures applied,” when it subsequently understands that Article 5.1.f) has been violated solely as a consequence of the mere fact that the breach has occurred.

On this particular matter, we refer to legal basis IV explaining the concurrence of the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR in this specific case, where it is detailed that the infringement has not been committed merely due to the result of loss of confidentiality, even when it is a result-based infringement.

The Judgment of the Constitutional Court (STC) 292/2000, in its analysis of the “content” of the fundamental right to data protection, refers to the power of disposition and control that belongs to the data subject over the possible use or uses of their data by a third party. Legal basis seventh states: “[...] it turns out that the content of the fundamental right to data protection consists of a power of disposition and control over personal data that enables the individual to decide which of those data to provide to a third party, whether the State or a private individual, or which this third party may collect, and that also allows the individual to know who possesses that personal data and for what purpose, being able to oppose that possession or use. These powers of disposition and control over personal data, which constitute part of the content of the fundamental right to data protection, are legally specified in the authority to consent to the collection, obtaining, and access to personal data, their subsequent storage and processing, as well as their possible use or uses by a third party, whether the State or a private individual.”

The obligation of confidentiality that Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR imposes on the data controller is an obligation of result, such that for the provision to be considered violated, the confidentiality of the data must be breached.

As specified by the Supreme Court ruling of February 15, 2022, rec. of cassation 7359/2020, “The obligation to adopt the necessary measures to guarantee the security of personal data cannot be considered an obligation of result, which implies that once a personal data leak to a third party occurs, there is liability regardless of the measures adopted and the activity carried out by the data controller or processor.

In result-based obligations, there is a commitment to fulfill a specific objective, ensuring the achievement or proposed result, in this case, guaranteeing the security of personal data and the non-existence of leaks or security breaches (...). (the underlining is ours)

It should be noted that the data controller is contradictory when, on the one hand, it considers that there has been no violation of data protection regulations and estimates that everything should be redirected to the filing of the case, while on the other hand, it confirms and indicates that it is evidenced in the file “that the attacker could access the data, but in no case alter it, ...”; (...).

Regarding the allegations reiterated by the responding party that the infringements attributed concerning Article 5.1.f) and 32 of the GDPR are identical since we are faced with the same fact subject to double attribution, we refer to what has already been indicated in the preceding legal grounds regarding the proposal to file the infringement of Article 32 of the GDPR.

In light of the above, it is established that CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has violated the principle of confidentiality and integrity of data, a principle enshrined in Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, an infringement classified in Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR.

“SIXTH. VIOLATION OF THE PRINCIPLE OF PROPORTIONALITY IN THE DETERMINATION OF SANCTIONS”

CAJA RURAL DE BAENA has argued that in the event that it is considered that there has been a violation of the data protection regulations, particular consideration should be given in determining the sanction that may be imposed by applying the principle of proportionality.

It should be noted that Article 83.1 of the GDPR states that “Each supervisory authority shall ensure that the imposition of administrative fines in accordance with this article for the infringements of this Regulation referred to in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 are, in each individual case, effective, proportionate, and dissuasive.”

Fines, therefore, as deduced from the invoked provision, must be effective, proportionate, and dissuasive to achieve the intended purpose of the GDPR.

It is true that for this system to function with all its guarantees, it is necessary for several elements to be deployed in an integral and complete manner. The application of rules external to the GDPR regarding the determination of fines in each of the Member States applying their national law, whether due to aggravating or mitigating circumstances not provided for in the GDPR - or in the LOPDGDD in the Spanish case as permitted by the GDPR itself - would undermine the effectiveness of the system, losing its meaning, its teleological purpose, the will of the legislator, resulting in fines imposed for different infringements ceasing to be effective, proportionate, and dissuasive. In this way, it would also deprive the interested parties of the effective guarantee of their rights and freedoms, weakening the uniform application.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

of the GDPR. The mechanisms for protecting the rights and freedoms of citizens would be diminished, which would be contrary to the spirit of the GDPR.

The GDPR has its own principle of proportionality that must be applied in its strict terms.

Regarding the principle of proportionality of sanctions, the National Court has stated in numerous rulings that the principle of proportionality cannot be exempt from judicial review, as the margin of appreciation granted to the Administration in imposing sanctions within the legally established limits must be developed by weighing, in all cases, the concurrent circumstances, in order to achieve the necessary and due proportion between the alleged facts and the responsibility required, given that every sanction must be determined in accordance with the severity of the infringement committed and according to a criterion of proportionality in relation to the circumstances of the fact. Thus, proportionality constitutes a normative principle that is imposed on the Administration and that reduces the scope of its sanctioning powers.

Well, in accordance with the circumstances present in this case, which have been meticulously and appropriately evaluated, this resolution does not violate the principle of proportionality in determining the imposed sanctions, resulting in a balanced and proportionate response to the severity of the infringement committed, the importance of the facts, as well as the circumstances taken into account to grade the sanction, without any reasons being appreciated that further justify the reduction made, especially considering the amount to which such sanctions may ascend in accordance with Article 83.5 of the GDPR, which provides for the infringement of Article 6.1 of the GDPR, “with administrative fines of up to €20,000,000 or, in the case of an enterprise, an amount equivalent to 4% of the total global annual turnover of the previous financial year, opting for the higher amount.”

In this case, the entity under investigation is a large company within its sector of activity; in accordance with the proven fact twenty-first, its turnover (gross margin) during the 2022 financial year amounted to €3.4 million, resulting in the fine imposed for the infringement of Article 5.1(f) of the GDPR amounting to €10,000, which would be in the lower range of the possible administrative fine that could be imposed on the data controller and far from the maximum 4% of the total global annual turnover of the previous financial year considering the turnover.

- CAJA RURAL DE BAENA considers, regarding the circumstance derived from the nature, severity, and duration of the infringement taken as an aggravating factor, the very reference to the provision subject to the infringement.

However, such an argument cannot be accepted as inconsistent; in fact, what is sought to be highlighted is that the infringement of Article 5.1(f) affects one of the basic principles on which the regulations on the protection of personal data are based, confidentiality, and this violation is heightened and aggravated by the number of affected individuals due to the incident, the damages and losses caused (irreversible loss of power and control over personal data by the clients) and its duration, as (...).

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

54/59

- CAJA RURAL DE BAENA considers regarding the intentionality or negligence in the infringement that the lack of diligence in its actions is exclusively due to its status as a financial entity, and, in truth, the aforementioned assertion is surprising.

Taking into account that CAJA RURAL DE BAENA's conduct involves the element of culpability, which is essential to demand sanctioning responsibility, in this case, it is also specified as a very serious lack of diligence in complying with the principle of confidentiality of personal data, as has been demonstrated throughout the procedure.

RSI has pointed out that:

Furthermore, the lack of diligence demonstrated in the infringing conduct for which it is held responsible must be classified as very serious; CAJA RURAL DE BAENA is obliged under Article 5.2 of the GDPR to carry out the appropriate activity to comply with the principles of data protection, particularly the principle of confidentiality, and to be able to demonstrate its compliance.

- CAJA RURAL DE BAENA considers that taking its banking activity into account as an aggravating factor is a sort of objective aggravation; firstly, it is not a matter related to the specific activity carried out by a particular entity, but rather the aggravating factor provided for in Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD operates when the infringing activity is linked to the processing of personal data, and it is obvious that, in relation to the present data controller, its activity, in this particular banking case, is clearly linked, directly, to multiple processing of personal data affecting thousands of clients.

In this regard, the National Court has considered it correct to appreciate the aggravating factor provided for in Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD as long as the aforementioned link exists, and it has considered this in numerous judgments, including the one dated 04/07/2024 (rec. 382/2022), which states regarding the cited circumstance that:

“As well, the aggravating factor of the continued nature of the infringement, included in Article 76.2.a) of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on the Protection of Personal Data and guarantee of digital rights, can also be appreciated, referring to it when we analyze the application of the GDPR to the infringement at hand. As well, the appreciation of the link between the infringer's activity and the processing of personal data (Article 72.2.b) of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5), due to the fact that the activity of the appellant is linked to the processing of data from both clients and third parties; this cited link is well-known since the entity, due to its activity, is in constant contact with clients and third parties handling a large volume of data, which imposes a greater duty of diligence.” (the underlining is ours).

Finally, CAJA RURAL DE BAENA considers that the AEPD has not taken into account elements to mitigate its responsibility, such as evidence that demonstrates compliance with the highest standards in terms of security, nor the fact that the measures adopted were subjected to a system of periodic auditing or that RSI resolved the vulnerability that constituted the security breach; it is sufficient to refute what has been stated by referring to the content of the proven facts, and regarding the last issue raised, to refer to what the data processor itself indicates in its writing notifying the personal data breach, dated 14/12/2022, and the writing of 10/01/2023 transferring the final report, in which it responds to the following questions:

- Could the breach have been avoided by adopting any additional security measures?

Yes

- Did the incident occur due to any failure, deficiency, or non-compliance with implemented security measures?

Yes

And regarding the actions taken after the incident:

- Have you adapted/improved your security procedures and policies?

No

Therefore, the allegation made regarding the violation of the principle of proportionality cannot be accepted.

In light of the above, the following

PROPOSAL FOR RESOLUTION is issued, that the Director of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection sanctions CAJA RURAL DE BAENA with NIF F14016166,

- For the alleged infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, classified in Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR, with a fine of €10,000 (ten thousand euros).

That the Director of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection proceeds to archive, regarding CAJA RURAL DE BAENA with NIF F14016166,

- For the alleged infringement of Article 32.1 of the GDPR, classified in Article 83.4.a) of the GDPR.

Likewise, in accordance with the provisions of Article 85.2 of the LPACAP, it is informed that it may, at any time prior to the resolution of this procedure, make voluntary payment of the proposed sanction, which will imply a reduction of 20% of the amount thereof. With the application of this reduction, the total sanction would be established at €8,000 (eight thousand euros) and its payment will imply the termination of the procedure, without prejudice to the imposition of the corresponding measures. The effectiveness of this reduction will be conditional upon the withdrawal or renunciation of any action or appeal in the administrative pathway against the sanction.

In the event that you choose to proceed with the voluntary payment of the amount specified above, in accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned Article 85.2, you must make it effective by depositing it into the restricted account No. IBAN: ES00-0000-0000-0000-0000-0000 (BIC/SWIFT Code: CAIXESBBXXX) opened in the name of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection at the banking entity CAIXABANK, S.A., indicating in the concept the reference number of the procedure that appears in the heading of this document and the reason, for voluntary payment, for the reduction of the amount of the sanction. You must also send the proof of deposit to the General Subdirectorate of Inspection to proceed with closing the file.

SECOND: On December 18, 2024, the respondent has proceeded to pay the sanction in the amount of 8,000.00 euros making use of the reduction provided in the resolution proposal transcribed above.

LEGAL GROUNDS

Competence

In accordance with the powers granted to each supervisory authority by Article 58.2 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation, hereinafter GDPR), and as established in Articles 47, 48.1, 64.2, and 68.1 of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on Personal Data Protection and guarantee of digital rights (hereinafter, LOPDGDD), the Presidency of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection is competent to initiate and resolve this procedure.

Furthermore, Article 63.2 of the LOPDGDD states that: "The procedures processed by the Spanish Agency for Data Protection shall be governed by the provisions of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, by this organic law, by the regulatory provisions issued in its development and, in so far as they do not contradict them, subsidiarily by the general rules on administrative procedures."

II

Termination of the procedure

Article 85 of Law 39/2015, of October 1, on the Common Administrative Procedure of Public Administrations (hereinafter LPACAP), under the heading "Termination in sanctioning procedures" provides as follows:

"1. Once a sanctioning procedure has been initiated, if the offender acknowledges their responsibility, the procedure may be resolved with the imposition of the appropriate sanction.

2. When the sanction is solely of a pecuniary nature or when it is possible to impose a pecuniary sanction and another of a non-pecuniary nature but the impropriety of the latter has been justified, voluntary payment by the alleged responsible party, at any time prior to the resolution, will imply the termination of the procedure, except regarding the restoration of the altered situation or the determination of compensation for the damages caused by the commission of the infringement.

3. In both cases, when the sanction is solely of a pecuniary nature, the competent body to resolve the procedure shall apply reductions of at least 20% on the amount of the proposed sanction, which shall be cumulative. The aforementioned reductions must be determined in the notification of initiation of the procedure and their effectiveness will be conditional upon the withdrawal or renunciation of any action or appeal in the administrative pathway against the sanction. The percentage of reduction provided in this section may be increased by regulation."

III

Voluntary payment

In accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned Article 85 of the LPACAP, the notified resolution proposal allowed you to carry out the voluntary payment of the proposed sanction, which would imply a reduction of 20% of its amount. With the application of this reduction, the sanction would be established at 8,000.00 euros and its Payment will imply the termination of the procedure, without prejudice to the imposition of the corresponding measures.

Following the aforementioned proposal for resolution, and before a resolution was issued by this authority, the respondent party, on December 18, 2024, proceeded to make the voluntary payment, availing itself of the 20% reduction and waiving any action or appeal in the administrative route.

It should be noted that, in accordance with the provisions of the LPACAP, as well as the jurisprudence of the high court in this matter, the exercise of voluntary payment by the alleged responsible party does not exempt the administration from the obligation to resolve and notify all procedures, regardless of their form of initiation. Likewise, Article 88 of the aforementioned regulation establishes that the resolution that concludes the procedure will decide all issues raised by the interested parties and any others arising from it.

Therefore, in accordance with the applicable legislation and having assessed the criteria for the graduation of the sanctions whose existence has been established, the Presidency of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection RESOLVES:

FIRST: TO DECLARE the commission of the infractions and CONFIRM the sanctions determined in the dispositive part of the proposal for resolution transcribed in this resolution.

The sum of the aforementioned amounts yields a total amount of €10,000.00.

After the respondent party proceeded with the prompt payment, although without acknowledgment of responsibility, it is hereby resolved, pursuant to Article 85 of the LPACAP, to reduce the total mentioned by 20%, which results in a final amount of €8,000.00.

SECOND: TO DECLARE the termination of procedure EXP202400075, in accordance with the provisions of Article 85 of the LPACAP.

THIRD: TO NOTIFY this resolution to CAJA RURAL DE BAENA NTRA. SRA. DE GUADALUPE, S.C.C.A.

FOURTH: In accordance with the provisions of Article 85 of the LPACAP, which conditions the reduction for voluntary payment on the withdrawal or waiver of any action or appeal in the administrative route, this authority accepts the waiver expressly stated by the respondent party, consequently precluding the filing of an optional appeal for reconsideration against this resolution, all without prejudice to the possibility of resorting to the contentious-administrative jurisdiction. Consequently, taking into account the provisions of Article 90 of the LPACAP, since no administrative appeal can be made due to the express waiver, this resolution will be fully enforceable from the notification thereof.

However, in accordance with the provisions of Article 90.3 a) of the LPACAP, the firm resolution in the administrative route may be provisionally suspended if the interested party expresses their intention to file a contentious-administrative appeal. If this is the case, the interested party must formally communicate this fact by means of a written document addressed to the Spanish Agency for Data Protection, submitting it through the Agency's Electronic Registry [<https://sedeagpd.gob.es/sede-electronica-web/>], or through any of the other registries provided for in Article 16.4 of the aforementioned Law 39/2015, of October 1. They must also provide the Agency with documentation that proves the effective filing of the contentious-administrative appeal. If the Agency does not have knowledge of the filing of the contentious-administrative appeal within two months from the day following the notification of this resolution, it will consider the provisional suspension to be concluded.

In accordance with the provisions of Article 50 of the LOPDGDD, this Resolution will be made public once it has been notified to the interested parties.
