The legal entity that determines the purposes and means of the processing is CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, as a provider of banking services, and the data subjects in this case are the clients linked to the banking entity through a contract. CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO collects the clients' data and decides on the purposes and means of the set of operations carried out on personal data by automated procedures.

8) “data processor” or “processor”: the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body which processes personal data on behalf of the controller;

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has entrusted RURALVÍA S.L., by contract dated September 12, 2018, with the execution of the necessary security measures for the set of automated operations for the processing of the personal data of the clients, within the framework of its banking service contracts.

12) “personal data breach”: a breach of security leading to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorized disclosure of, or access to personal data transmitted, stored, or otherwise processed;

A personal data breach has occurred due to the unauthorized access of a third party (a hacker) to the personal data of the clients of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO.

The entity carries out this activity in its capacity as the data controller, as it is the one who determines the purposes and means related to the processing of personal data, pursuant to Article 4.7 of the GDPR. Therefore, if it decides the “why” and the “how” the personal data should be processed, it must assume its responsibility.

Moreover, the data controller must also be responsible for implementing the technical and organizational measures that ensure the security of personal data when carrying out the processing. And it must be able to demonstrate compliance with the GDPR and the LOPDGDD.

In this case, there is a record of a security incident, categorized as a personal data breach, having occurred due to unauthorized access to personal data.

It should be noted that the identification of a personal data breach does not directly imply the imposition of a sanction by this Agency, as it is necessary to analyze the diligence of the controllers and processors and the security measures applied.

Among the principles of processing provided for in Article 5 of the GDPR, the integrity and confidentiality of personal data are guaranteed in paragraph 1.f). Meanwhile, the security of personal data is regulated in Articles 32 and 33 of the GDPR.

GDPR, which regulates the security of processing, notification to the supervisory authority, as well as communication to the data subject, respectively.

As previously noted, it is presumed that the data controller is the entity that has the true capacity to exercise control over the data, who determines the why and how the data should be processed.

III

Description of the personal data breach

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO had the electronic banking application called Ruralvía Clásica for the purpose of providing online banking services to its clients.

For a client to access the Ruralvía Clásica application and log in, they needed to enter their identifier, password, and NIF.

IV

Violation of Article 5.1(f) of the GDPR.

Article 5.1(f) “Principles relating to processing” of the GDPR states:

“1. Personal data shall be:

f) processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorized or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction, or damage, using appropriate technical or organizational measures (‘integrity and confidentiality’).”

The facts revealed in this procedure constitute a personal data breach consisting of a loss of confidentiality of personal data, considering that the regulations on the protection of personal data have been violated. The present facts have as the respondent the data controller, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, as determined in the proven facts.

Thus, as stated in the seventeenth proven fact, regarding the personal data to which the attacker had access, the “Final Incident Analysis Report” dated December 30, 2022, indicates that,

“4. The information that may have been accessed includes personal and contact data such as:

Although the personal data breach was detected on December 7, 2022, prior accesses to that date are confirmed, noting that the highest volume of accesses occurred between November 10 and November 23, 2022.

In this regard, in the aforementioned report of December 30, 2022, as stated in the eighth and fourteenth proven facts, it is indicated in section 1.4.2, How was the problem detected or how did it happen?, that:

The attacker was able to access those personal data of the clients of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO due to the lack of appropriate technical and organizational measures prior to the occurrence of the personal data breach.

First, it should be noted that, as stated in the eleventh proven fact, regarding the causes that allowed the personal data breach, in the “Final Incident Analysis Report” dated December 30, 2022, in section 3, “Cause Analysis”, it states:

Second, in the fifteenth proven fact, the mitigating measures implemented are recorded, which highlight the absence of appropriate technical and organizational measures to prevent the occurrence of the breach, emphasizing, for such effects,

In conclusion and according to all that has been indicated, it has been established that the violation of the principle of confidentiality that indeed occurred, as the attacker accessed multiple personal data of 4 clients of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, was possible due to the lack of appropriate technical and organizational measures highlighted by the aforementioned vulnerabilities.

The documentation in the file provides clear indications that CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO violated Article 5.1(f) of the GDPR, “Principles relating to processing,” by failing to adequately ensure the confidentiality and integrity of personal data as a result of the security breach that occurred.

In accordance with the evidence available in this proposal for resolution of the sanctioning procedure, it is considered that the known facts constitute an infringement, attributable to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, for violation of Article 5.1(f) of the GDPR.

Classification for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR

The aforementioned infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR constitutes the commission of the infringements classified in Article 83.5 a) of the GDPR, which considers that the infringement of "the basic principles for processing, including the conditions for consent in accordance with Articles 5, 6, 7, and 9" is subject to sanction, in accordance with paragraph 5 of the aforementioned Article 83 of the cited Regulation, "with administrative fines of up to €20,000,000 or, in the case of an enterprise, an amount equivalent to a maximum of 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year, opting for the higher amount."

The LOPDGDD in its Article 71, Infringements, states that: "Acts and behaviors referred to in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 of Article 83 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, as well as those that are contrary to this organic law, constitute infringements."

And in its Article 72, it considers for the purposes of prescription that: "Very serious infringements are:

1. In accordance with what is established in Article 83.5 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, the following infringements are considered very serious and shall prescribe after three years, which imply a substantial violation of the articles mentioned therein and, in particular, the following:

a) The processing of personal data violating the principles and guarantees established in Article 5 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679.

VI

Proposal for sanction for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR

In order to establish the administrative fine that should be imposed, the provisions contained in Articles 83.1 and 83.2 of the GDPR must be observed, which state:

"1. Each supervisory authority shall ensure that the imposition of administrative fines under this Article for the infringements of this Regulation indicated in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 are effective, proportionate, and dissuasive in each individual case.

2. Administrative fines shall be imposed, depending on the circumstances of each individual case, as an additional or substitute measure for the measures provided for in Article 58, paragraph 2, letters a) to h) and j). In deciding on the imposition of an administrative fine and its amount in each individual case, the following shall be duly taken into account:

- a) the nature, gravity, and duration of the infringement, taking into account the nature, scope, or purpose of the processing operation in question as well as the number of data subjects affected and the level of damage suffered;
- b) the intentionality or negligence in the infringement;
- c) any measures taken by the data controller or processor to mitigate the damage suffered by the data subjects;
- d) the degree of responsibility of the data controller or processor, taking into account the technical or organizational measures they have applied in accordance with Articles 25 and 32;
- e) any previous infringement committed by the data controller or processor;
- f) the degree of cooperation with the supervisory authority in order to remedy the infringement and mitigate the possible adverse effects of the infringement;
- g) the categories of personal data affected by the infringement;
- h) the manner in which the supervisory authority became aware of the infringement, in particular whether the data controller or processor notified the infringement and, if so, to what extent;

i) when the measures indicated in Article 58, paragraph 2, have been previously ordered against the data controller or processor in relation to the same matter, the compliance with such measures;
j) adherence to codes of conduct under Article 40 or to certification mechanisms approved under Article 42, and

k) any other aggravating or mitigating factor applicable to the circumstances of the case, such as the financial benefits obtained or the losses avoided, directly or indirectly, through the infringement.

In relation to letter k) of Article 83.2 of the GDPR, the LOPDGDD, in its Article 76, "Sanctions and corrective measures," establishes that:

"2. In accordance with the provisions of Article 83.2.k) of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, the following may also be taken into account:

a) The continued nature of the infringement.

b) The link of the infringer's activity with the processing of personal data.

c) The benefits obtained as a result of the commission of the infringement.

d) The possibility that the conduct of the affected party may have induced the commission of the infringement.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

e) The existence of a merger by absorption process subsequent to the commission of the infringement, which cannot be attributed to the absorbing entity.

f) The impact on the rights of minors.

g) To have, when not mandatory, a data protection officer.

h) The voluntary submission by the controller or processor to alternative dispute resolution mechanisms, in cases where there are disputes between them and any interested party.

According to the transcribed provisions, for the purpose of determining the amount of the sanction to be imposed in this case for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, classified under Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR for which CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is held responsible, the following factors are considered concurrent:

1. The nature, severity, and duration of the infringement; the facts revealed affect a basic principle related to the processing of personal data, such as confidentiality and integrity, which the regulation penalizes with the utmost severity as the consequence of the personal data breach allows unauthorized third parties access to personal data, with the harm that this may entail.

2. The number of affected parties: it is (...).

3. Regarding the level of damages caused: it must be considered high as the personal data (...).

Additionally, it should be noted that this situation allows access to the data, which can lead to the materialization of the risk of identity theft, among others (Article 83.2.a) of the GDPR).

1. The intentionality or negligence in the infringement. There is a lack of diligence in complying with the obligations imposed by data protection regulations, as it allows access by cybercriminals to personal data, violating its confidentiality; in this regard, the SAN of 17/10/2007 can be cited, which, although issued before the GDPR came into force, is perfectly extrapolable to the case we are analyzing. The ruling, after referring to the fact that entities whose activities involve continuous processing of customer and third-party data must observe an adequate level of diligence, specified that "(...) the Supreme Court has understood that there is recklessness whenever a legal duty of care is neglected, that is, when the infringer does not behave with the required diligence. And in assessing the degree of diligence, the professionalism or lack thereof of the subject must be particularly weighed, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the activity of the appellant involves constant and abundant handling of personal data, it must be insisted on the rigor and exquisite care to comply with the legal provisions in this regard" (Article 83.2.b) of the GDPR).

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

2. The activity of the allegedly infringing entity is linked to the processing of personal data of both clients and third parties. In the activity of the claimed entity, the processing of personal data is essential, so given its object and business volume, the significance of the conduct subject to this complaint is undeniable (Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD in relation to Article 83.2.k).

For the purpose of deciding on the proposal for the fine and its amount, in accordance with the available evidence, taking into account the criteria of Article 83.2 of the GDPR regarding the committed infringement, violation of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, it is considered to propose a sanction of 15,000 euros.

Infringement of Article 32.1 of the GDPR

Article 32 of the GDPR “Security of processing” establishes that:

“1. Taking into account the state of the art, the costs of implementation, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks of varying probability and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller and the processor shall implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, which may include, among others:

- a) the pseudonymization and encryption of personal data;
- b) the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of processing systems and services;
- c) the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data quickly in the event of a physical or technical incident;
- d) a process for regularly verifying, assessing, and evaluating the effectiveness of the technical and organizational measures to ensure the security of processing.

2. In assessing the appropriateness of the level of security, particular consideration shall be given to the risks presented by the processing of data, in particular as a consequence of the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, or alteration of personal data transmitted, stored, or otherwise processed, or the unauthorized communication or access to such data.

3. Adherence to an approved code of conduct pursuant to Article 40 or to an approved certification mechanism pursuant to Article 42 may serve as an element to demonstrate compliance with the requirements set out in paragraph 1 of this article.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

4. The data controller and the data processor shall take measures to ensure that any person acting under the authority of the controller or the processor and having access to personal data can only process such data in accordance with the instructions of the controller, unless required to do so by Union law or the laws of the Member States.”

After reviewing the allegations made by the responding party, and in consideration of the same, and after reviewing the documentation in the administrative file and that provided by the responding party, it is evident that all technical and organizational security measures whose absence has been proven, directly enabling the personal data breach, do not constitute a violation, in this specific case, of Article 32 of the GDPR, as the absence of other independent technical and organizational security measures unrelated to the personal data breach has not been demonstrated.

VIII

Response to the allegations made regarding the initiation agreement

In relation to the allegations put forward by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO regarding the initiation agreement, a response is provided to them in the order in which they are presented in their submission:

“FIRST. ON THE ACCUMULATION OF THE PROCEDURES TO THE ENTITIES OF THE GROUP.”

1. Preliminary considerations

According to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO: “All of the initiation agreements in the files that have just been referenced arise, as indicated, from the security breach analyzed by the Initiation Agreement” and subsequently states that “we are faced with a single fact, related to a single breach, suffered during the development of the aforementioned tool carried out by RSI in its capacity as data processor and which, however, is fragmented by the AEPD (...)”

In response to these preliminary considerations, it should be noted that the responding party confuses the fact that the factors that determined the vulnerability are similar in all the procedures initiated by this Agency with the assertion that only a single personal data breach has occurred.

We are dealing with incidents that have affected (...) which are completely independent, both legally and economically. Each of these entities is responsible for the processing of their clients' data in a differentiated manner, and, consequently, there are as many personal data security breaches as there are data controllers who have failed to comply with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. Each entity is responsible for the processing of its own data and regarding its own clients.

All the entities referred to by the responding party in their written allegations had contracted with RSI, (...).

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

26/58

However, the fact that RSI was the same entity responsible for the processing of all the Entities does not imply that one can speak of "a single event, related to a unique breach."

Each entity, as the data controller of its clients, autonomously made the decision to contract with RSI as the data processor, for which each of them signed their own data processing agreement, on different dates, signed by different individuals with sufficient authority for that purpose in each of the rural banks and referencing their respective data protection delegates, who are not the same.

Furthermore, as also stated in the proven facts, both the "Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 9, 2022, and the "Final Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, were carried out individually for each of the rural banks, containing their own specificities.

Likewise, once the personal data breach occurred, the actions of each of the entities were not the same, with each acting autonomously, both in relation to the AEPD (some banks notified the personal data breach directly while others entrusted their data processor to carry it out), as well as with their respective clients and independently of the actions of the others.

2. On the accumulation of administrative procedure files.

In this allegation, the responding party considers that: "The legal regime of the accumulation of procedures, as well as of processes, in the administrative field responds to the central idea of connectivity, that is, that the instruction work that must be carried out is favored by the appreciation of the issue raised as a whole and the possibility that the joint viewing work allows for a better assessment of the elements that enable the application of the norm to the specific case."

Article 57 of the LPACAP on the accumulation of procedures establishes that: "The administrative body that initiates or processes a procedure, regardless of how it was initiated, may, on its own initiative or at the request of a party, order its accumulation with others that have substantial identity or intimate connection, provided that it is the same body that must process and resolve the procedure. No appeal shall proceed against the agreement of accumulation" (the underlining corresponds to the AEPD).

Consequently, both the administrative body that initiates the procedure and the one that processes it can order its accumulation with other procedures that have substantial identity or intimate connection, provided that it is the same body that must process and resolve the procedure.

Article 57 of the LPACAP grants administrative bodies the authority for better management of the procedures they process, allowing for their accumulation as long as there is substantial identity or intimate connection among them. Therefore, it is a possibility available to the Administration, not being obliged to proceed with the accumulation.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
27/58

accumulation if requested, although it must be decided with justification in this regard, as is the case in the present sanctioning procedure.

3. Response to the allegation seeking the accumulation of sanctioning procedures.

In this allegation, the responding party considers that: “The legal regime of the accumulation of procedures, as well as of processes, in the administrative sphere responds to the central idea of connectivity, that is, that the instructional work that must be carried out is favored by the appreciation of the issue raised as a whole and the possibility that the joint viewing work allows for a better assessment of the elements that enable the application of the norm to the specific case.”

It should be noted that the claims of the responding party are not supported by Article 57 of the LPACAP, nor by any type of jurisprudence or doctrine, which attributes to accumulation the purpose of providing the decision-making body with a better assessment of the elements of the case.

The institution of accumulation is a technique of administrative simplification that allows the competent body to process and resolve in a main procedure, the possibility of accumulating with those others that have substantial identity or intimate connection, for the purposes of simultaneous processing and resolution. The instrumental nature of accumulation is determined by the first limit established by Article 57 of the LPACAP, which is that the body “must be the same body that processes and resolves the procedure.”

It is a procedural act that cannot be appealed, as established by Article 57 of the LPACAP itself, unlike what is established in Article 112.1 of the same norm, which does allow the challenge of other procedural acts when these “directly or indirectly decide the substance of the matter, determine the impossibility of continuing the procedure, produce defenselessness or irreparable harm to legitimate rights and interests.”

However, when the LPACAP excludes the possibility of appeal, it is because it applies to the accumulation of procedures, as a procedural act, none of the assumptions of Article 112.1 of the LPACAP that we have just reproduced.

With these arguments as a starting point, the allegations made by the responding party must be completely dismissed, to which a specific response will also be given.

A) Existence of "intimate connection" or "substantial identity."

The responding party reiterates the idea referred to in the preliminary considerations of this FIRST allegation, stating that “there was a single breach of personal data security, notified by each of the responsible parties (directly or through their data processor RSI).” It continues to affirm that “The connectivity, in the present case, therefore derives from the fact that it is a matter of clarifying responsibility for twenty-six legal entities, but for the same fact.”

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
28/58

As already established in the response to the preliminary considerations of this FIRST allegation, it cannot be said that there is a single breach of personal data; rather, there have been as many breaches of personal data as there are entities, all of which are independent of each other, each responsible for its own processing and regarding its own clients, whose system has suffered a security breach.

For the responding party, there is a single fact for which responsibilities can be demanded, the security incident in the field of information technology. However, beyond the breach of personal data itself, there has been a loss of confidentiality of the personal data of the clients of each of the entities, which cannot be encompassed as a single fact or as the same fact.

Likewise, the facts related to the actions taken after each entity became aware of the security breach must be differentiated. Some entities notified the AEPD directly about the breach, while in others, the communication was made by the data processor on behalf of each of the data controllers (in different ways and at different times).

Finally, some entities communicated the loss of confidentiality of their personal data to the affected parties, complying with the obligation established in Article 34 of the GDPR, while other entities did not send any type of communication.

All these diverse factual elements determine that it cannot be said that, beyond the same IT vulnerability, there exists an "intimate connection" or "substantial identity" that justifies the accumulation of the proceedings.

Regarding the ruling of the TSJ Castilla-La Mancha cited in the allegations, the following clarifications should be made:

1) There is no compliance with an obligation by several persons jointly, so the assumption of Article 28.3 of Law 40/15 does not apply.

According to Article 28.3 of Law 40/2015, of October 1: "When the fulfillment of an obligation established by a norm with the rank of Law corresponds to several persons jointly, they shall be jointly liable for the infringements that may be committed and for the sanctions that may be imposed. However, when the sanction is monetary and it is possible, it shall be individualized in the resolution based on the degree of participation of each responsible party."

In the present case, it cannot be said that there is a joint liability, as it does not involve a joint obligation of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO with the other entities referred to in its written allegation. The facts constituting the infringement attributed to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO are in its capacity as data controller, in accordance with the provisions of Article 4 of the GDPR, so the fulfillment of the principles and obligations established in the GDPR regarding the data processing of its clients corresponds to it individually, not jointly with the other entities, since, moreover, there is no joint liability in the GDPR.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
29/58

It should also be noted that the fine imposed on each entity depends on its own circumstances, such as the number of affected clients or its business volume.

The concept of joint controllers of processing, regulated in Article 26 of the GDPR, would not be applicable in this case, "when two or more controllers jointly determine the purposes and means of processing, they shall be considered joint controllers of processing." The purposes and means of processing have been determined by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO independently of the other entities, in its capacity as the sole controller of the personal data of its clients.

Finally, the situation described in the judgment, in which "the Administration imputes different forms of cooperation or collusion among the three defendants in relation to the same facts," does not apply to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO in relation to the other entities. Here, there can be no talk of any type of cooperation or collusion regarding the facts; it is simply the responsibility of each of the Rural Banks, and their relationship with the data processor, due to the regime established in the GDPR, according to which the controller, in this case, each of the Rural Banks, has control and authority over the processing of personal data and assumes responsibility for compliance with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. For its part, the data processor (RSI) must only process the data in accordance with the instructions received from the controller. It cannot determine the purposes and means of processing; its function is to execute the processing as established by the controller.

2) The separate processing of the files does not prevent each entity from presenting its allegations.

In the judgment of the TSJ of Castilla La Mancha referred to by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, in the Third Legal Ground, it is stated that the plaintiff requested that all procedures be consolidated to adequately exercise the right of defense, "...since they referred to the same facts, and it was expressly warned that processing them separately would constitute a serious violation of the right of defense as it would prevent knowledge of the allegations of the other parties involved and the documents they might submit, all of which could be significant for the legal qualification of the facts, the determination of the existence or not of an infringement, and the identification of the responsible party."

The non-consolidation of procedures cannot produce any of the harms mentioned in that paragraph of the judgment.

Regarding the documents submitted to the procedure, those related to the security incident, a series of documents were provided by the data processor during the investigation proceedings (let us remember that both the "Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 9, 2022, and the "Final Security Incident Analysis Report," dated December 30, 2022, were prepared individually for each of the rural banks, containing their own specificities) whose access to the affected entity has been guaranteed through the sending, upon request, of a copy of the file. Those documents that are submitted by the responsible entities.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
30/58

of the treatment, which affect them individually will be taken into consideration in the corresponding procedure.

3) CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO reiterates the need for the "accumulated analysis of the files," when the ruling of the TSJ of Castilla La Mancha does not include this idea. The need for accumulation is based on other considerations than those expressed by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO. As we have analyzed:

- Reference is made to access to the documents in the file that may be provided by different responsible parties, a matter that we see is guaranteed here.
- The possibility of establishing joint liability is mentioned, which, as we have substantiated, does not apply under the regime established in the GDPR. We should not confuse joint liability under Article 28 of the LRJSP with the co-responsibility of Article 26 of the GDPR, which also does not apply in this case, since, as we stated, in no case are the other Rural Banks co-responsible for the processing of customer data of the other entities.
- There is no type of cooperation or collusion among the different Rural Banks in the facts. These figures must be ruled out due to the relationship between the Rural Banks, which are independent entities, each responsible for the processing of their customers, nor, as we have previously stated, regarding the special regime established by the GDPR of the responsible-processor relationship.

B) That the same body is responsible for the processing and resolution of the procedure.

The processing of the various sanctioning procedures corresponds to the same body, as CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO points out, which does not determine the mandatory nature of the decision to accumulate the procedures, especially when there are no circumstances that imply the defenselessness of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO.

4. Connectivity in the sanctioning field with the guarantees of Articles 24 and 25.1 of the Spanish Constitution.

In this allegation, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO states that the Constitutional Court has declared that both the substantive principles of Article 25.1 CE and the procedural guarantees of Article 24.2 CE are applicable, with certain nuances, to the exercise of sanctioning power.

4.1. General aspects related to the instruction and its essential functionality.

A) Linkage of the instruction as a consequence of the factual unity.

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO cites a ruling from the Supreme Court, which states that "the initiation of a single sanctioning procedure for the commission of the same infringing act, with the aim of determining the degree of participation of each alleged responsible party in the commission of the infringement and ensuring that the resolution...

of the file is coherent...” According to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, “In this case, the appellant argued that, since two files were processed, each of the responsible parties was unaware of what was in the other that could benefit or harm them. This is a concrete example of the difficulties that arise in terms of the right to defense in cases of separate processing.”

As previously justified, there are as many breaches of personal data as there are data controllers, and we cannot speak of the same infringing act, but rather a series of infringing acts attributable to a series of independent entities concerning the processing for which they are responsible, regarding their clients; nor can we speak of a “degree of participation” among the various entities, nor in terms of the relationship between the data controller and the data processor.

Regarding the documents submitted to the procedure, those that refer to the security incident, a series of documents were provided by the data processor during the investigation proceedings, whose access to all affected entities has been guaranteed through the prior request for a copy of the file. Furthermore, RSI submitted the “Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 9, 2022, as well as the “Final Security Incident Analysis Report,” dated December 30, 2022, in a manner individualized for each of the rural banks, containing their specific details.

Those documents submitted by the entities responsible for the processing that affect them individually will be taken into consideration in the corresponding procedure. And any other documents that may constitute evidence relevant to the facts will be duly incorporated into the other official files, in accordance with the provisions of Article 75 of the LPACAP, “the necessary instructional acts for the determination, knowledge, and verification of the facts on which the resolution must be pronounced will be carried out ex officio.”

B) Connectivity as a fundamental prerequisite for the exercise of the right to defense.

According to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, each of the sanctioning procedures becomes “sealed” and the evidence, allegations, and expert opinions conducted in one cannot be presented contradictorily in another.

However, a paragraph from the judgment transcribed by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is fully applicable to respond to the present allegation: “it is not specified to what extent ‘their defense was harmed’,” and to reject it, in the same way that the Supreme Court understands “that the decision of the lower court is correct, which considers that the initiation of sanctioning files against each of the companies is justified... due to the clear differentiation of the behaviors attributed and it has not been demonstrated that there has been real defenselessness - as reasoned in the contested judgment.”

The Constitutional Court in its judgment No. 210/1999, of November 29, states that the constitutionally relevant defenselessness is the situation in which, after the Infringement of a procedural norm prevents one of the parties from exercising their right to defense by eliminating or limiting their power, either to assert rights and interests for them to be recognized, or to dialectically respond to opposing positions in the exercise of the principle of contracting.

An essential characteristic of defenselessness is that it must have a material character and not merely a formal one; that is to say, it is not sufficient for there to be a defect or procedural infringement, but there must have been an effective and real right to defense (Constitutional Court ruling No. 90/1988, of May 13).

Well, beyond a generic allegation of the potential defenselessness that could arise from the non-accumulation of the proceedings, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is unable to present a single defect or procedural infringement that has effectively limited its right to defense, when the allegations presented by the affected Rural Banks regarding the security incident are substantially similar, and they have had access to all the documentation that affects them in a common manner. In any case, the instructing body will incorporate into the procedure and inform CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO of any other documents that may constitute evidence relevant to the facts.

4.2.- The intimate connection as a requirement for the individualization of responsibility for the same facts.

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO argues that, since we are dealing with a single breach of personal data, processing separate proceedings for each of the responsible entities may eventually lead to the determination of diverse responsibilities. The intimate connection translates into the principle of uniqueness in determining the concurrence of the facts when, as CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO claims, it concerns unique facts that result in a single breach of personal data.

As previously motivated, it is not appropriate to speak of a single breach of personal data, but rather as many as there are data controllers who have suffered the security incident regarding their customers' data.

There cannot be different degrees of responsibility between CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO and the other entities. Each of the data controllers will have a degree of responsibility that must be determined individually regarding compliance with data protection regulations, without any type of cooperation in the commission of the infringement among the different Rural Banks that could determine different degrees of responsibility among the entities, as CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO claims.

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO continues its reasoning by stating that "responsibility cannot be individualized without first objectifying the sanctioning reproach, and this cannot be projected (...) its own dynamics, its own evidence...". Abstract arguments are still being made, such as objectifying the sanctioning reproach, regarding its own dynamics and "its own evidence," when not even allegations have been made questioning the facts and the evidence.

which were included in the initiation agreement, nor has a request for the receipt of evidence in the procedure been made.

The fact that "only a single investigative action" has been processed and that no request has been directed against the entities responsible for the processing but rather concerning the processor (RSI) does not imply the "unitary factual determination," as argued by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO. The fact that the inspection actions were directed at requiring information from the processor of the treatment does not determine that a single procedure must subsequently be initiated to clarify administrative responsibilities. It should be noted that Article 53, "Scope of the research activity," of the LOPDGDD does not impose that these must necessarily be carried out in relation to the data controller. Therefore, there is no obligation to investigate all controllers who carry out the processing in question. Inspectors can obtain evidence by consulting and requiring information from the processor of the treatment if they deem it appropriate.

4.3 Impact on the fundamental right to good administration

According to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, the accumulation becomes an obligation in case the absence of this could harm the rights of the administered, particularly those recognized in Article 24 of the Constitution, thus violating the right to good administration in accordance with Article 41 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.

In the previous allegations, the differences between the behaviors attributed to the Rural Savings Banks have been motivated, and it has been stated that no type of defenselessness has been caused to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO in the processing of the present procedure, having had access to all the documents in the file. In fact, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has not justified any type of defenselessness, nor does it point out any specific fact by which it has been caused defenselessness.

Finally, it is reiterated that we are not dealing with the same facts, but rather with the same technical problem that caused a security incident in the information system of each of the responsible entities concerning their processing of personal data (all of them legally and economically independent from each other), which has produced a series of personal data security breaches, not a single personal data breach, but a personal data breach in each of the Rural Savings Banks, which result in the alleged commission of a series of infringements by each of the different data controllers concerning their processing of personal data and the rights and freedoms of their clients.

"SECOND. THE NON-EXISTENCE OF GUILT OF CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO IN THE PRESENT CASE"

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has invoked various arguments to justify the absence of guilt in its conduct.

Firstly, it states that it is outside the facts attributed to it, since in the present case, the processing is carried out through

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

sedeagpd.gob.es

of a data processor; which, in turn, is the processor of the entities against which the proceedings are directed; and that personal data protection regulations not only impose obligations related to compliance with the principle of confidentiality and the adoption of necessary security measures on the data controller but also, when processing is carried out on behalf of the controller by a data processor, on the latter.

In this regard, it is worth recalling that the figure of the data processor responds to the need to address phenomena such as the outsourcing of services by companies and other entities, so that in those cases where the data controller entrusts a third party with the provision of a service that requires the processor to process personal data on its own behalf, the processing or operations of the processing are carried out by the processor, in the name and on behalf of the controller, as if it were the latter who carried it out.

Therefore, the existence of a data processor depends on a decision made by the data controller, who may decide to carry out certain processing operations themselves or to contract all or part of the processing with a processor.

That is to say, the processor, in order to be one, does not hold any own interest regarding the outcome of the processing subject to the assignment, without prejudice to the financial compensation received for the service provided, which is what occurs in the present case. Processors have no own interest; they act on behalf of and in the name of the controller, following their orders and for their purposes, and this is what determines that they are processors from the outset.

This means that the data controller is responsible for actions contrary to the GDPR carried out by its data processors, unless the latter have acted as true data controllers, deciding on the purposes and means of the processing, a situation that has not occurred in the present case.

Thus, the CJEU ruling of December 5, 2023, issued in case C-683/21, regarding the question of whether an administrative fine can be imposed under Article 83 of the GDPR on a data controller in relation to the processing operations carried out by a processor, determines that,

“83 Regarding, secondly, the question of whether an administrative fine can be imposed under Article 83 of the GDPR on a data controller in relation to the processing operations carried out by a processor, it should be recalled that, according to the definition in Article 4, point 8, of the GDPR, a processor is understood to be ‘the natural or legal person, public authority, service, or other body that processes personal data on behalf of the data controller.’

84 Given that, as indicated in paragraph 36 of this judgment, a data controller is responsible not only for all processing of personal data that it carries out itself but also for the processing carried out on its behalf, an administrative fine can be imposed on that controller under Article 83 of the GDPR in a situation where personal data is subject to a

unlawful processing and in which it is not he, but a processor he has engaged, who has carried out the processing on his behalf.

85 However, the responsibility of the data controller for the behavior of a processor cannot extend to situations where the processor has processed personal data for purposes that are its own or where it has processed such data in a manner incompatible with the framework or modalities of processing as determined by the data controller or in a manner that cannot reasonably be considered that the data controller would have given consent. Indeed, in accordance with Article 28, paragraph 10, of the GDPR, the processor must, in that case, be considered responsible for the processing with respect to that processing.” (the underline is ours)

To the above, we must add the recent SAN of February 8, 2024, rec. 0002250/2021, regarding TELEFÓNICA MÓVILES ESPAÑA S.A.U, in which it is determined that,

“Well, the appellant company is the data controller, as it determines the purpose and means of the processing carried out for the purposes indicated in its Privacy Policy: “At Movistar, we process customer or user data for the provision of the service, as well as for other purposes that the customer allows or authorizes in the terms informed in this Privacy Policy or in the specific Conditions of each Movistar Product or Service contracted.”

While the companies ATENTO TELESERVICIOS ESPAÑA, S.A.U., CATHPONE-NET, S.L., and THADER TELECOMUNICACIONES S.L., are considered processors.

What has been stated derives from the contracts signed by the plaintiff with the aforementioned companies.

Well, it has not been proven that the aforementioned companies, as processors of the plaintiff, have determined the purposes and means of the processing, nor have they used the data of the customers of the plaintiff for their own purposes, nor have they interacted with third parties outside the structure and commercial name of the appellant company, but rather they have acted under the name of the plaintiff to fulfill its purposes, using its systems to carry out operations with customers.

Therefore, it is not possible to invoke Article 28.10 of the GDPR for a presumed attribution of responsibility to the processors that also implies the exoneration of the data controller, that is, of the company here appealing. On the other hand, according to the aforementioned contracts, there is a clause that impacts them.

possible sanctions that the plaintiff company may suffer for non-compliance with data protection obligations.” (the underlining is ours)

On the other hand, the Guidelines 7/2020 of the EDPB on the concepts of “data controller” and “data processor” in the GDPR, version 2.0 Adopted on July 7, 2021, determine that,

“30 Following the line of the fact-based approach, the word ‘determine’ means that the entity that actually exercises a decisive influence over the purposes and means of processing is the controller. Generally, the processing contract establishes who is the determining party (the data controller) and who is the party that follows instructions (the data processor). Even when the data processor offers a service that is predefined in a specific manner, it must present the data controller with a detailed description of the service, and the data controller must make the final decision regarding the approval of how the processing will be carried out and request any changes it deems necessary. Furthermore, the data processor cannot modify, at a later time, the essential elements of the processing without the approval of the controller.

39. The question is where to draw the line between decisions reserved for the data controller and those that can be left to the discretion of the data processor. It is evident that decisions regarding the purpose of the processing must always correspond to the controller.

40. Regarding the determination of the means, a distinction can be made between essential and non-essential means. Essential means are traditionally and inherently reserved for the data controller. These must be mandatorily determined by the data controller, although the determination of non-essential means can also be left to them. Essential means are closely linked to the purpose and scope of the processing, such as the type of personal data processed (“What data will be processed?”), the duration of the processing (“How long will the data be processed?”), the categories of recipients (“Who will have access to the data?”), and the categories of data subjects (“To whom do the processed personal data belong?”). In addition to being related to the purpose of the processing, essential means are closely tied to the question of whether the processing is lawful, necessary, and proportionate. Non-essential means are related to more practical aspects of the processing itself, such as the choice of a particular type of hardware or software or the decision regarding the details of security measures, which can be left to the data processor.

41. Although decisions regarding non-essential means can be left to the data processor, the controller must still stipulate certain elements in the contract with the processor: for example, regarding the security requirement, it may be ordered to adopt all measures required under Article 32 of the GDPR. The contract must also establish that the data processor will assist the controller in ensuring compliance with, for example, the provisions of Article 32. In any case, the data controller remains responsible for the implementation of technical and organizational measures.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

appropriate to ensure and demonstrate that the processing is in accordance with the Regulation (Article 24). To this end, the controller must take into account the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. For this reason, the data controller must have complete information about the means used, as this will allow them to make an informed decision in this regard. In order for the controller to demonstrate the legality of the processing, it is advisable to document, in the contract or other legally binding instrument between the controller and the processor, at least the necessary technical and organizational measures.

74. The GDPR establishes specific obligations that directly bind processors, as specified in section 1 of subsection II of these guidelines. It is possible to hold a processor accountable or sanction them when they do not comply with these obligations or act outside or against the legal instructions of the controller.

80. Secondly, the processing must be carried out on behalf of a data controller, but not under their direct authority or control. Acting "on behalf of" someone means serving the interests of another and refers to the legal concept of "delegation." In the case of data protection regulations, the role of the processor is to apply the instructions given by the data controller, at least concerning the purposes of the processing and the essential elements of the means. The legitimacy of the processing under Article 6 and, if applicable, Article 9 of the Regulation derives from the activity of the controller, and the processor must only process the data following the instructions given by them. Nevertheless, as previously indicated, the instructions of the data controller may leave some margin of discretion regarding how to best serve their interests, allowing the processor to choose the most appropriate technical and organizational means.

81. Acting "on behalf of" someone also means that the processor cannot carry out the processing for their own purposes. As stipulated in Article 28, subsection 10, the processor will violate the GDPR when they do not adhere to the instructions of the controller and begin to determine their own purposes and means of processing. In such cases, the processor will be considered responsible for that processing and may be sanctioned for not having adhered to the instructions of the controller.” (the underlining is ours)

Well, in the specific case being examined, and in light of the documentation in the file, it is noted that, for the provision of IT services, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has entered into an individualized and specific "Service Provision Contract" with RSI.

Additionally, it has also entered into the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts between CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L." within the framework of the previous contract.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

regarding CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO and which was signed on (...), by Mr. C.C.C., on behalf of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO (data controller).

In this regard, in this "Agreement to amend the data protection clause of the service provision contracts between D.D.D. and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L.", CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is identified as the data controller and RSI as the data processor.

Furthermore, in this "Agreement to amend the data protection clause of the service provision contracts between CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L.", the data processing activities that may be carried out by RSI on behalf of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, the type of information to be processed, and the categories of data subjects whose data may be processed are defined.

Additionally, it is determined that the security measures to be applied by RSI to ensure an adequate level of security in accordance with Article 32 of the GDPR are those established in Annex B of the "Agreement to amend the data protection clause of the service provision contracts between CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO and RURAL SERVICIOS INFORMÁTICOS, S.L."

It should also be noted that Section 6 of the Agreement on "Liability" states that,

"If the Processor, or in its case, the contractors, breach this Agreement or the applicable regulations by determining the purposes and means of the processing, they will be considered responsible for the processing concerning said processing.

In the event that a supervisory authority sanctions the Data Controller as a direct consequence of the Data Processor's failure to comply with the stipulations of this Agreement, the Processor shall indemnify the Data Controller as stipulated in the liability clause of the current framework contract between the parties" (the emphasis is ours).

This implies, conversely and in accordance with data protection regulations, the aforementioned judgments, and Guidelines 7/2020, that the data controller is responsible for the actions carried out by its data processor unless the latter determines the purposes and means, resulting in the fact that this latter issue has not been substantiated in the processed procedure.

Therefore, in accordance with the above, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is the data controller for the processing carried out, it is the one who has decided to entrust a data processor to carry it out on its behalf and for its account, it is the entity that has the true capacity to exercise control over the processing of personal data, which determines what personal data will be processed on its behalf and for its account, the why and how these should be processed, as it defines the purpose of the personal data processing that its activity encompasses and chooses the means it deems appropriate.

And in accordance with all the above, in the specific case CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is responsible for the infringement of the GDPR even when the incident has occurred within its data processor.

In this regard, the Agreement of Initiation itself indicates in section 4 regarding the Obligations of the Data Controller that:

"It's the responsibility of the data controller:

- a) To provide the Data Processor with the necessary data for the provision of the service
 - b) If legally required, to carry out a data protection impact assessment of the processing operations to be carried out by the Data Processor.
 - c) To carry out the necessary prior consultations.
 - d) To ensure, both prior to and throughout the processing, compliance with the GDPR by the Data Processor.
 - e) To supervise the processing, including conducting inspections and audits." (the underlining is ours)
- This is directly related to the principle of proactive responsibility of the data controller provided for in Article 5.2 of the GDPR, which states that "the data controller shall be responsible for compliance with the provisions of paragraph 1 and be able to demonstrate it ("proactive responsibility")." This means that the controller must ensure the effective application of the principles of processing both at the time of determining the means of processing and during the processing itself, whether it carries out the processing of personal data directly or entrusts a data processor to do so on its behalf (for the purposes of data protection regulation, it is the same), through the implementation of a series of technical and organizational measures of all kinds, which must be subject to periodic review and updating. This implies that the aforementioned controller is the one who assumes its own responsibility by directing, reviewing, and coordinating the processing, including that of the personnel and that of the data processor providing services to it.

The Opinion 3/2010 of the Article 29 Working Party (GT29) -WP 173- issued during the validity of the repealed Directive 95/46/EC, whose provisions are applicable today, states that the "essence" of proactive responsibility is the obligation of the data controller to implement measures that, under normal circumstances, ensure that the rules on data protection are complied with in the context of processing operations and to have available documents that demonstrate to the data subjects and the supervisory authorities what measures have been adopted to achieve compliance with the data protection rules.

For these purposes, consideration is given to what is stated in Recital 74 of the GDPR,

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

www.aepd.es

28001 – Madrid

sedeagpd.gob.es

40/58

"It must be established that the data controller is responsible for any processing of personal data carried out by themselves or on their behalf. In particular, the controller must be obliged to apply appropriate and effective measures and must be able to demonstrate compliance of the processing activities with this Regulation, including the effectiveness of the measures. Such measures must take into account the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons." (the underlining is ours)

Completing the above and in development of Article 5.2 of the GDPR, Articles 24 and 25 of the same legal text must be cited, indicating the latter regarding "Data protection by design and by default" that the fundamental right to the protection of personal data is much more than mere technology, as its focus is on the risks to the rights and freedoms of the data subjects arising from the processing of personal data,

"1. Taking into account the state of the art, the cost of implementation, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of the processing, as well as the risks of varying probability and severity that the processing poses to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the data controller shall implement, both at the time of determining the means of processing and at the time of the processing itself, appropriate technical and organizational measures, such as pseudonymization, designed to effectively apply the principles of data protection, such as data minimization, and integrate the necessary safeguards into the processing, in order to meet the requirements of this Regulation and protect the rights of the data subjects.

2. The data controller shall implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure that, by default, only personal data that are necessary for each specific purpose of the processing are processed..."

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO seems to argue that the responsibility lies with the data processor with whom it entered into a contract and under which it was obliged to implement appropriate security measures commensurate with the risk; however, it is worth noting that the personal data breach occurred as a result of the decision of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO (...), subscribing for this purpose the corresponding data processing agreement with RSI where CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO established the appropriate conditions.

Moreover, this is in addition to what has been stated by this Agency in previous paragraphs regarding that CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has determined the purposes and means of processing, that it is responsible for the processing, that it is responsible for the personal data breach in this case due to the processing actions carried out by its data processor on its behalf, and that it is subject to the obligations of the GDPR, especially regarding proactive responsibility.

This is the responsibility of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO because it is the data controller and is the one who has the obligation to integrate and deploy data protection within everything that constitutes its organization, in all its areas of action, whether they affect its employees or its data processors.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

It must be kept in mind that ultimately the determining purpose is to guarantee the protection of the interested party, as the focus is on the risks to the rights and freedoms of the interested parties arising from the processing of personal data carried out by the data controller.

Therefore, the data controller must conduct a risk analysis regarding the rights and freedoms of individuals in data processing, implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures to apply the principles of data protection and integrate the necessary safeguards in the processing, in order to comply with the requirements of the GDPR, being able to demonstrate that the processing is in accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned regulation. In light of the principle of proactive responsibility (art. 5.2 GDPR), the data controller must be able to demonstrate that it has taken into account all the elements provided for in the GDPR.

Thus, all of this merely reflects a lack of diligence on the part of the investigated entity in ensuring adequate security relative to the risks of the data processing it carries out. In this regard, it should not be forgotten that the affected database contains personal data of thousands of clients, which constitutes large-scale processing, to which access is also granted from web applications, that is, from the internet, with a very significant exposure surface, posing greater risks to the interested parties, which requires appropriate technical and organizational measures of all kinds, including security measures, specifically aimed at ensuring that there is no unlawful access to such personal data. As has been demonstrated and argued throughout this sanctioning procedure, it is considered that appropriate security measures were not implemented in this case to ensure the security of the personal data of the clients, which resulted in unlawful access to the personal data of the clients of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO. Therefore, responsibility is not being demanded solely as a consequence of a result caused by a cyberattack.

It is much more; it is a failure to comply with the obligations imposed by the GDPR. Therefore, it is emphasized that the data controller must establish clear modalities for such assistance in its relationship with the data processor and provide precise instructions to the data processor on how to adequately comply with them and document it in advance through a contract or another (binding) agreement, and also subsequently during the validity of the same, and verify at all times during the execution of the contract its compliance in the manner established therein.

It suffices to bring to mind the content of the STS 1562/2020, of June 15, 2020, rec. 601/2019, which states the following:

"In this regard, the Supreme Court ruling of June 5, 2004, which confirms, in cassation for the Unification of Doctrine, that of this AN of October 16, 2003, echoing the arguments made by this Chamber, refers to the differentiation of two controllers depending on whether the decision-making power is directed at the file or at the data processing itself. Thus, the file controller is the one who decides the creation of the file and its application, as well as its purpose, content, and use, that is, who has..."

decision-making capacity over all the data recorded in said file. The data controller, however, is the subject to whom decisions regarding the specific activities of a particular data processing operation can be attributed, that is, regarding a specific application. This refers to all those cases in which the power of decision must be distinguished from the material execution of the activity that constitutes the processing. In this regard, as also argued by the Supreme Court ruling of April 26, 2005 (appeal for unification of doctrine 217/2004), the Spanish legislator aims to adapt to the requirements of Directive 95/46/EC, which seeks to provide a legal response to the increasingly frequent phenomenon of the so-called outsourcing of IT services, where multiple operators act, many of whom are insolvent, created with the aim of seeking impunity or irresponsibility from those who follow in the subsequent links of the chain. Currently, the new Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of April 27, 2016, regarding the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data (which repeals Directive 95/46/EC, and is directly applicable from May 25, 2018) also distinguishes between the figures of the data controller and the data processor. The former is defined in section 7) of Article 4 as "a natural or legal person (...) who determines the purposes and means of the processing." And the data processor in section 8) of the same Article 4 as one who "processes personal data on behalf of the data controller."

This is in relation to Articles 24 and 28 of the same European Data Protection Regulation. The data controller and the data processor are undoubtedly also responsible for infringements in the field of data protection, in this new regulatory framework, in accordance with the provisions of Article 82.2 of the aforementioned Regulation (EU) 2016/679, which states: Any controller participating in the processing operation shall be liable for damages caused in the event that such operation does not comply with the provisions of this Regulation. A processor shall only be liable for damages caused by processing when it has not complied with the obligations of this Regulation specifically directed to processors or has acted outside or against the legal instructions of the controller. It follows from all the above that the involvement, in the present case, of a data processor ZZZZ does not exempt the entity XXXX, now the appellant, from liability, despite the strength of the clauses contained in the contract and annexed to it signed by both companies (proven facts 9 and 10) in that the personal data processed was for the purpose of carrying out an advertising campaign regarding car and motorcycle insurance marketed by the (XXXX), ultimately benefiting said XXXX, being the acting entity that ultimately determines the purposes and means of the repeated data processing, therefore it cannot be exempted from liability." The Supreme Court continues, in relation to the possible exoneration of liability alleged regarding what was agreed in the "data processor" contract, as follows:

"The sanctioned conduct of obstruction or hindrance by XXXX of its client's exercise of the right to object to the processing of their data is manifested in that said company did not adopt any measures or precautions to prevent the sending of advertising to the email addresses of its client by those companies to which it entrusted the execution of the advertising campaigns.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
43/58

The adoption of the necessary measures or precautions to ensure the effectiveness of the right to object to the processing of their data by XXXX, as the data controller, remains in effect even if the advertising campaigns are not carried out using data from its own files, but rather with databases from other companies contracted by XXXX. In this case, it was established that the appellant did not inform the companies with which it contracted advertising services of the complainant's objection to receiving advertising from the Mutual, nor did it ultimately take any measures to ensure the exclusion of its client from the advertising mailings contracted with third parties.

Regarding the application of the principle of culpability in the context of the sanctioning law regulated by the GDPR, the investigated entity invokes the doctrine established by the CJEU ruling of December 5, 2023 (case C-807/21, Deutsche Wohnen SE and Staatsanwaltschaft Berlin).

It is pertinent to ask what the parameters of due diligence were that the investigated entity should have observed in relation to the examined conduct. The answer is that the diligence it should have observed is that which was necessary to comply with the obligations imposed by Articles 5.2, 24, and 25 of the GDPR, in light of the doctrine of the National Court and the jurisprudence of the Supreme Court.

The SAN of October 17, 2007 (rec. 63/2006) is fully applicable to the case, which, after referring to the fact that entities whose activities involve continuous processing of data from clients and third parties must observe an adequate level of diligence, states:

"[...] the Supreme Court has understood that there is negligence whenever a legal duty of care is disregarded, that is, when the infringer does not behave with the required diligence. In assessing the degree of diligence, the professionalism or lack thereof of the subject must be especially weighed, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the activity of the appellant involves constant and abundant handling of personal data, it must be insisted upon the rigor and exquisite care to comply with the legal provisions in this regard."

Furthermore, the National Court in matters of personal data protection has declared that "simple negligence or failure to comply with the duties imposed by the Law on the data controllers or processors to exercise extreme diligence is sufficient..." (Judgment of the National Court of June 29, 2001).

Regarding the allegation that the breach of personal data occurred within the framework of the data processing for which RSI was the data processor, to the extent of carrying out the investigative actions exclusively with that entity, it should be noted that the preliminary investigative actions are precisely carried out to clarify the facts and circumstances of what occurred, gathering more information in order to determine whether or not there is a possible infringement of data protection regulations.

In this sense, the initiation of preliminary investigations and their execution, which is the authority of the AEPD, does not prejudge anything, but allows for the determination of the facts that occurred and the gathering of necessary information wherever it may be found to determine whether there are indications of an infringement or not. Even after such investigation, it may be that the proceedings are archived.

actions for understanding, in light of the information gathered, that there are no indications of infringement. This has not occurred in the present case.

Consequently, the allegations must be dismissed since the investigated entity has violated the obligations imposed under the GDPR as the data controller for the processing carried out on its behalf and for its account, in relation to the responsibilities required of all data controllers by Article 24 of the GDPR. Therefore, the allegations must be dismissed, noting that the arguments presented do not undermine the essential content of the infringement declared nor do they constitute sufficient justification or exculpation.

"THIRD. ON THE IMPACT ON THE PRINCIPLES OF SANCTIONING LAW DERIVED FROM THE INTERPRETATION MADE BY THE AEPD"

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO considers that it has not committed any infringement of Data Protection regulations, much less the simultaneous infringement of Articles 5.1 f) and 32 of the GDPR, as the triple identity of subject, fact, and protected legal asset is present; there is no doubt that in this case the principle of non bis in idem should apply, with the imposition of the sanction only for Article 5.1.f) as it is the more serious of the two alleged infringements.

And in the event that the AEPD finds a violation, it should subsidiarily recognize a medial concurrence as one of the infringements is subsumed and embedded in the other, according to what is provided in Article 29.5 of the LRJSP, "When the commission of one infringement necessarily derives from the commission of another or others, only the sanction corresponding to the most serious infringement committed shall be imposed."

"1. Violation of the principle of non bis in idem in the application of Articles 5.1 f) and 32 of the GDPR" In this regard, and concerning this allegation made by CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO against the initiation agreement, it should be noted that since the filing of the initially imputed infringement of Article 32 of the GDPR has been proposed, it is no longer necessary to respond to these allegations, as the imputation of the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR no longer coincides with the imputation of the infringement of Article 32 of the GDPR.

"FOURTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 32.1 OF THE GDPR"

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has stated that the AEPD considers the alleged violation of Article 32 of the GDPR to be "evidenced," that is, it considers the alleged insufficiency of the security measures adopted to be evident as a consequence of the occurrence of the personal data breach, making exclusive reference to the report on the breach contained in the administrative file, disregarding in the initiation agreement all the measures adopted as well as the audit carried out and that an erroneous interpretation of what occurred in the RSI systems is made, (...).

Well, as indicated, after reviewing the allegations made by the responding party, and in light of them, after reviewing the documentation in the administrative file and that provided by the responding party, it is evident that all the technical and organizational security measures whose absence has been proven have had a direct impact on the personal data breach, without there being a violation, in this specific case, of Article 32 of the GDPR, as the absence of other independent technical and organizational security measures unrelated to the personal data breach has not been substantiated. Regarding the sufficiency of the security measures, in relation to the breach of Article 5.1(f) of the GDPR, we refer to what has already been indicated in the legal basis IV of this resolution proposal, which explains and details why they were neither sufficient nor appropriate.

Furthermore, we indicate that it is true that it is recorded that, both prior to and subsequent to the security incident, the investigated entity conducted audits and reviews by third-party specialists aimed at detecting vulnerabilities exclusively related to the security of information systems; but it is also true that despite the existence of such investigations, controls, and checks, they were unable to locate and reveal the existing vulnerabilities, as recorded in the proven facts.

On the other hand, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO claims that RSI has various certifications in the field of security, referenced in the third proven fact of this resolution proposal.

Article 28 of the GDPR, on the Processor, in its paragraph 5, establishes that:

"5. The adherence of the processor to a code of conduct approved pursuant to Article 40 or to a certification mechanism approved pursuant to Article 42 may be used as an element to demonstrate the existence of the sufficient guarantees referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4 of this article."

In this sense, to demonstrate that the processors offer the suitability and guarantees required by the GDPR, adherence to a certification mechanism can be used as an additional element to indicate the existence of sufficient guarantees to apply appropriate technical and organizational measures to protect personal data.

And this is because, in addition to the fact that a processor has been certified in data protection, this certification does not absolutely prove that the sufficient guarantees in relation, in this case, to the provision of Article 28.1 of the GDPR, have been implemented and are acting effectively throughout the entire processing cycle and during the time in which the processing is taking place.

In the field of data protection, this type of instrument is a mechanism of voluntary compliance in which specific rules are established with the aim of contributing to the correct application of the GDPR and the LOPDPGDD.

According to the GDPR, the data controller must adopt appropriate measures, including the selection of processors, in such a way as to ensure and be in a position to...

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

to demonstrate that the processing is carried out in accordance with the GDPR (principle of active accountability).

It is true that the certifications that the data processor RSI seems to have are mentioned in the data processing agreement; however, let us note that all the certifications listed in the third proven fact are not the certificates provided for in either Article 28 or Article 42 of the GDPR, they are not data protection certifications, but rather certifications related to information security or other obligations that must be fulfilled by the data controller or the data processor based on regulations other than data protection.

Thus, in the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts," signed between CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO and RSI, in its "Annex B - Security Measures to the Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts," it is indicated that RSI has the following certifications:

Moreover, its mention in the data processing agreement is not accompanied by the certification itself - for the purposes of verifying that it has indeed been certified and to see exactly what it is certified for, when it was certified, and whether at the time of the personal data breach the certification was still valid (since certifications have a validity period) - this certification is not for data protection.

In this regard, the report of the Legal Advisory Office 170/2018 of the AEPD establishes the difference between information security and the protection of personal data. Thus, it is indicated that, "Prior to analyzing the specific issue raised in the consultation, this Legal Advisory Office considers it appropriate to make a prior reference to (...).

Regarding information security, it encompasses the set of techniques and measures aimed at ensuring the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information and data important for any organization, regardless of their format. (...)

On the contrary, the protection of personal data of individuals is configured as a true fundamental right that finds its foundation in Article 18.4 of the Spanish Constitution, according to which "the law shall limit the use of information technology to guarantee the honor and personal and family privacy of citizens and the full exercise of their rights." This has been recognized by our Constitutional Court, highlighting in Judgment 94/1998, of May 4, that the aforementioned Article 18.4 "not only entails a specific instrument for the protection of citizens' rights against the tortious use of information technology but also enshrines an autonomous fundamental right to control the flow of information concerning each person - 'privacy' according to the neologism stated in the Preamble of the LORTAD - whether or not it belongs to the strictest realm of intimacy, in order to preserve the full exercise of their rights."

This is reflected in the Preamble of the Organic Law Project on Personal Data Protection and Guarantee of Digital Rights, which is transcribed below for its clarity:

"The protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data is a fundamental right protected by Article 18.4 of the Spanish Constitution. In this way, our Constitution was a pioneer in recognizing the fundamental right to personal data protection when it stipulated that 'the law shall limit the use of computing to guarantee the honor and personal and family privacy of citizens and the full exercise of their rights.' This echoed the work developed since the late 1960s in the Council of Europe and the few legal provisions adopted in countries around us.

The Constitutional Court stated in its Judgment 94/1998, of May 4, that we are faced with a fundamental right to data protection that guarantees individuals control over their data, any personal data, and over its use and destination, to prevent the illicit trafficking of such data or harm to the dignity and rights of those affected; thus, the right to data protection is configured as a citizen's ability to oppose the use of certain personal data for purposes other than those that justified its acquisition. For its part, in Judgment 292/2000, of November 30, it considers it an autonomous and independent right that consists of a power of disposition and control over personal data that empowers the individual to decide which of those data to provide to a third party, whether the State or a private individual, or which data this third party may collect, and that also allows the individual to know who holds that personal data and for what purpose, being able to oppose such possession or use.

At the legislative level, the specification and development of the fundamental right of protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data took place in its origins through the approval of Organic Law 5/1992, of October 29, regulating the automated processing of personal data, known as LORTAD. Organic Law 5/1992 was replaced by Organic Law 15/1999, of December 5, on personal data protection, in order to transpose Directive 95/46/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council, of October 24, 1995, regarding the protection of individuals in relation to the processing of personal data and the free movement of such data. This organic law represented a second milestone in the evolution of the regulation of the fundamental right to data protection in Spain and was complemented by an increasingly abundant jurisprudence from the contentious-administrative jurisdiction.

On the other hand, it is also included in Article 8 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and in Article 16.1 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union. Previously, at the European level, the aforementioned Directive 95/46/EC had been adopted, whose purpose was to ensure that the guarantee of the right to personal data protection did not constitute an obstacle to the free movement of data within the Union, thus establishing a common space for the guarantee of the right that, at the same time, ensured that in the case of international data transfer, its processing in the destination country was protected by safeguards adequate to those provided for in the directive itself."

C/ Jorge Juan, 6
www.aepd.es
28001 – Madrid
sedeagpd.gob.es
48/58

And in this same sense, Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of April 27, 2016, concerning the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and the free movement of such data, and repealing Directive 95/46/EC (General Data Protection Regulation, GDPR), states that its purpose is "to protect the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons and, in particular, their right to the protection of personal data" (Article 1.2), highlighting in Recital 1 that "the protection of natural persons in relation to the processing of personal data is a fundamental right" and in Recital 10 that "in order to ensure a consistent and high level of protection of natural persons and to eliminate obstacles to the free movement of personal data within the Union, the level of protection of the rights and freedoms of natural persons with regard to the processing of such data must be equivalent in all Member States. It must be ensured throughout the Union that the application of the rules for the protection of the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons in relation to the processing of personal data is consistent and homogeneous."

Consequently, the right to the protection of personal data of natural persons is a fundamental right and, therefore, situated at the highest level of legal protection, which is currently regulated directly by community legislation, with the aforementioned GDPR establishing a set of principles, rights, obligations, and an organizational structure aimed at guaranteeing this fundamental right. Among these, information security appears as an additional obligation for data controllers and processors, who must implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, which will include, among other factors, “the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of processing systems and services” and “the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data quickly in the event of a physical or technical incident” (Article 32.2.b) and c) of the GDPR).

Therefore, there is no doubt that the guarantee of the security of personal data acquires special significance regarding its protection, but this is not limited exclusively to the realm of the security of such information, as the protection of personal data has a much broader scope that encompasses, as we mentioned, a set of principles, rights, and obligations that are much wider. (the underlining is ours) This issue is substantial since the certification mentioned in the service contract does not serve as an element to “demonstrate the existence of sufficient guarantees referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4” of Article 28 of the GDPR, as it does not pertain to data protection. The difference in approach between mere information security and data protection is extremely important, as while the former focuses exclusively on the security of information, the risk-based approach of the GDPR (which is much broader as it focuses on the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects arising from the processing of personal data) focuses on natural persons, with security being one more obligation within those of the GDPR to achieve the protection of natural persons in the terms of the recitals, particularly 1 and 10, as well as in accordance with the provisions of Article 1 of the GDPR.

Within the management of compliance with the GDPR, there is risk management, on which the security of information pivots, and not the other way around.

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO claims that the security measures initially implemented by RSI are outlined in the service agreement signed with RSI and that the attackers may have legitimate credentials for access, and that the attack is not due to the weakness of the implemented systems. Prior to this, we must refer to the proven facts and the description of the personal data breach to understand how and why the personal data breach occurred.

Regarding the security measures included in the "Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts," when referring to the security measures, there is a reference to those listed in Annex B - Security Measures to the Agreement to Modify the Data Protection Clause of the Service Provision Contracts.

Well, from the detailed examination of the citation of the same, since we are unaware of their development in relation to the specific measures implemented, we can again verify that they are measures that refer generally to information security and not to data protection (...), a substantially different issue from data protection. (...). A policy is a central and guiding instrument of an organization in which the responsible party addresses its objectives and establishes procedures, resources, and mechanisms to carry it out, which requires subsequent detailed development. It is not the same to address mere information security as it is to address the protection of a fundamental right such as data protection, given the focus and purpose of each.

Furthermore, the fact that a list of measures appears in a service agreement (also in this specific case, measures of information security) does not imply that they guarantee appropriate security as determined by Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, because it must be aligned with the focus on the protection of the rights and freedoms of the data subjects, and the measures implemented do not necessarily serve to fulfill such an objective if they have not been designed and implemented from the perspective required by the GDPR.

“FIFTH. ON THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 5.1.f) OF THE GDPR”

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO considers the contradiction in which the Start Agreement incurs by stating that “the identification of a personal data breach does not imply the direct imposition of a sanction by this Agency, as it is necessary to analyze the diligence of the controllers and processors and the security measures applied,” when subsequently it understands that Article 5.1.f) has been violated as a consequence of the mere fact that the breach has occurred.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

On this particular matter, we refer to the legal basis IV explaining the concurrence of the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR in this specific case, where it is detailed that the infringement has not been committed merely due to the result of loss of confidentiality, even though it is a result-based infringement.

The Judgment of the Constitutional Court (STC) 292/2000, in its analysis of the "content" of the fundamental right to data protection, refers to the power of disposition and control that belongs to the data subject over the possible use or uses of their data by a third party. Legal Basis seventh states: “[...] it results that the content of the fundamental right to data protection consists of a power of disposition and control over personal data that enables the individual to decide which of those data to provide to a third party, whether the State or a private individual, or which this third party may collect, and that also allows the individual to know who possesses that personal data and for what purpose, being able to oppose that possession or use. These powers of disposition and control over personal data, which are part of the content of the fundamental right to data protection, are legally specified in the authority to consent to the collection, obtaining, and access to personal data, their subsequent storage and processing, as well as their possible use or uses by a third party, whether the State or a private individual.”

The obligation of confidentiality that Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR imposes on the data controller is an obligation of result, such that for the provision to be considered infringed, it is necessary for the confidentiality of the data to be breached.

As specified by the Supreme Court ruling of February 15, 2022, rec. of cassation 7359/2020, “The obligation to adopt the necessary measures to guarantee the security of personal data cannot be considered an obligation of result, which implies that if a leak of personal data to a third party occurs, there is liability regardless of the measures adopted and the activity carried out by the data controller or processor.

In obligations of result, there is a commitment to fulfill a specific objective, ensuring the achievement or proposed result, in this case, guaranteeing the security of personal data and the non-existence of leaks or security breaches (...). (the emphasis is ours)

It should be noted that the data controller incurs in contradiction when, on one hand, it considers that there has been no violation of data protection regulations and believes that everything should be redirected to the filing of the case, while on the other hand, it confirms and indicates that it is evidenced in the file “that the attacker could access the data, but in no case alter it,...”; (...).

Regarding the allegations reiterated by the responding party that the infringements attributed concerning Article 5.1.f) and 32 of the GDPR are identical since we...

In the presence of the same fact subject to double imputation, we refer to what has already been indicated in the preceding legal grounds regarding the proposal to archive the infringement of Article 32 of the GDPR.

In light of the above, it is established that CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has violated the principle of confidentiality and integrity of data, a principle enshrined in Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR, an infringement classified under Article 83.5.a) of the GDPR.

“SIXTH. VIOLATION OF THE PRINCIPLE OF PROPORTIONALITY IN THE DETERMINATION OF SANCTIONS”

CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO has argued that in the event that it is considered that there has been an infringement of the data protection regulations, particular consideration should be given in determining the sanction that may be imposed by applying the principle of proportionality.

It should be noted that Article 83.1 of the GDPR states that “Each supervisory authority shall ensure that the imposition of administrative fines in accordance with this Article for the infringements of this Regulation referred to in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 are, in each individual case, effective, proportionate, and dissuasive.”

Fines, therefore, as deduced from the invoked provision, must be effective, proportionate, and dissuasive to achieve the intended purpose of the GDPR.

It is true that for this system to function with all its guarantees, it is necessary for several elements to be deployed in an integral and complete manner. The application of rules foreign to the GDPR regarding the determination of fines in each of the Member States applying their national law, whether due to aggravating or mitigating circumstances not provided for in the GDPR - or in the LOPDGDD in the Spanish case as permitted by the GDPR itself - would undermine the effectiveness of the system, losing its meaning, its teleological purpose, and the will of the legislator, resulting in fines imposed for different infringements ceasing to be effective, proportionate, and dissuasive. In this way, it would also deprive the interested parties of the effective guarantee of their rights and freedoms, weakening the uniform application of the GDPR. The mechanisms for protecting the rights and freedoms of citizens would be diminished, which would be contrary to the spirit of the GDPR.

The GDPR is endowed with its own principle of proportionality that must be applied in its strict terms. Regarding the principle of proportionality of sanctions, the National Court has pointed out in numerous rulings that the principle of proportionality cannot be exempt from judicial review, as the margin of appreciation granted to the Administration in imposing sanctions within the legally established limits must be developed by weighing, in any case, the concurrent circumstances, in order to achieve the necessary and due proportion between the facts.

accused and the responsibility required, given that any sanction must be determined in accordance with the nature of the infringement committed and according to a criterion of proportionality in relation to the circumstances of the act. Thus, proportionality constitutes a normative principle that is imposed on the Administration and that reduces the scope of its sanctioning powers.

Well, in accordance with the circumstances present in this case, which have been meticulously and appropriately evaluated, this resolution does not violate the principle of proportionality in the determination of the imposed sanctions, resulting in a balanced and proportionate response to the severity of the infringement committed, the importance of the facts, as well as the circumstances taken into account to grade the sanction, without any reasons being appreciated that further justify the reduction made, especially considering the amount to which such sanctions may ascend in accordance with Article 83.5 of the GDPR, which provides for the infringement of Article 6.1 of the GDPR, “with administrative fines of up to €20,000,000 or, in the case of a company, an amount equivalent to a maximum of 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year, opting for the higher amount.”

In this case, the investigated entity is a large company within its sector of activity; in accordance with the proven fact twenty-first, its turnover (gross margin) during the financial year 2022 amounted to €5,300,000, resulting in the fine imposed for the infringement of Article 5.1.f) of the GDPR amounting to €15,000, which would be in the lower range of the possible administrative fine that could be imposed on the data controller and far from the maximum of 4% of the total annual global turnover of the previous financial year considering the turnover.

- CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO considers, regarding the circumstance derived from the nature, severity, and duration of the infringement, that the mere reference to the provision subject to the infringement is taken as an aggravating factor.

However, such an argument cannot be accepted as inconsistent; in fact, what is being highlighted is that the infringement of Article 5.1.f) affects one of the basic principles on which the regulations on the protection of personal data are based, confidentiality, and this violation is heightened and aggravated by the number of affected individuals due to the incident, the damages caused (irreversible loss of power and control over personal data by the clients) and its duration, as (...).

- CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO considers, regarding the intentionality or negligence in the infringement, that the absence of diligence in its actions is solely due to its condition as a financial entity, and, in purity, the cited assertion is surprising.

Taking into account that in the conduct of CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO the element of culpability is present, which is indispensable to demand sanctioning responsibility, in this case, it is also specified in a very serious lack of diligence in complying with the principle of confidentiality of personal data as has been demonstrated throughout the procedure.

C/ Jorge Juan, 6

sedeagpd.gob.es

RSI has indicated that:

Furthermore, the lack of diligence demonstrated in the infringing conduct for which it is held responsible must be classified as very serious; CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO is obliged under Article 5.2 of the GDPR to undertake the appropriate activities to comply with data protection principles, particularly the principle of confidentiality, and to be in a position to demonstrate its compliance.

- CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO considers that taking its banking activity into account as an aggravating factor is a sort of objective aggravation; in the first instance, it is not a matter related to the specific activity carried out by a particular entity, but rather the aggravating factor provided for in Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD operates when the infringer's activity is linked to the processing of personal data, and it is obvious that, in relation to the present data controller, its activity, in this specific banking case, is clearly linked, directly, to multiple processing of personal data affecting thousands of clients. In this regard, the National Court has considered it correct to appreciate the aggravating factor provided for in Article 76.2.b) of the LOPDGDD as long as the aforementioned link exists, and it has considered this in numerous judgments, including the one dated 04/07/2024, (rec. 382/2022) which states regarding the cited circumstance that:

“As well, the aggravating factor of the continued nature of the infringement, included in Article 76.2.a) of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on the Protection of Personal Data and guarantee of digital rights, can also be appreciated, referring to it when we analyze the application of the GDPR to the infringement at hand. As well, the appreciation of the link between the infringer's activity and the processing of personal data (Article 72.2.b) of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5), due to the fact that the activity of the appellant is linked to the processing of data from both clients and third parties; this cited link is well known since the entity, due to its activity, is in permanent contact with clients and third parties processing a large volume of data, which imposes a greater duty of diligence.” (the emphasis is ours).

Finally, CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO considers that the AEPD, in modulating its responsibility, has not taken into account elements to mitigate it, such as evidential elements that demonstrate compliance with the highest standards in security matters, nor the fact of subjecting the adopted measures to a system of periodic auditing or that RSI resolved the vulnerability that constituted the security breach; it is sufficient to refute the statements made by referring to the content of the proven facts and regarding the last issue raised, to refer to what the data processor itself indicates in its writing notifying the personal data breach, dated 15/12/2022, and the writing of 10/01/2023 transferring the final report, in which it responds to the following questions:

Yes

- Did the incident occur due to any failure, deficiency, or non-compliance with implemented security measures?

And regarding the actions taken after the incident:

Therefore, the allegation made regarding the violation of the principle of proportionality cannot be accepted.

In view of the above, the following

LEGAL GROUNDS

Competence

In accordance with the powers granted to each supervisory authority by Article 58.2 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation, hereinafter GDPR), and as established in Articles 47, 48.1, 64.2, and 68.1 of Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on the Protection of Personal Data and guarantee of digital rights (hereinafter, LOPDGDD), the Presidency of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection is competent to initiate and resolve this procedure.

Furthermore, Article 63.2 of the LOPDGDD states: "The procedures processed by the Spanish Agency for Data Protection shall be governed by the provisions of Regulation (EU) 2016/679, by this organic law, by the regulatory provisions issued in its development, and, as long as they do not contradict them, subsidiarily by the general rules on administrative procedures."

II

Termination of the procedure

Article 85 of Law 39/2015, of October 1, on the Common Administrative Procedure of Public Administrations (hereinafter LPACAP), under the heading "Termination in sanctioning procedures" provides as follows:

"1. Once a sanctioning procedure has been initiated, if the offender acknowledges their responsibility, the procedure may be resolved with the imposition of the appropriate sanction.

2. When the sanction is solely of a pecuniary nature or when it is possible to impose a pecuniary sanction and another of a non-pecuniary nature but the impropriety of the second has been justified, voluntary payment by the presumed responsible party, in

Any moment prior to the resolution will imply the termination of the procedure, except regarding the restoration of the altered situation or the determination of compensation for the damages caused by the commission of the infringement.

3. In both cases, when the sanction is solely of a pecuniary nature, the competent body to resolve the procedure will apply reductions of at least 20% on the amount of the proposed sanction, which are cumulative. The aforementioned reductions must be specified in the notification of initiation of the procedure, and their effectiveness will be conditioned upon the withdrawal or renunciation of any action or administrative appeal against the sanction. The percentage of reduction provided in this section may be increased by regulation.

Voluntary Payment

In accordance with the provisions of the aforementioned Article 85 of the LPACAP, the notified resolution proposal allowed for the voluntary payment of the proposed sanction, which would entail a reduction of 20% of its amount. With the application of this reduction, the sanction would be established at 12,000.00 euros, and its payment will imply the termination of the procedure, without prejudice to the imposition of the corresponding measures.

Following the aforementioned resolution proposal, and before a resolution was issued by this authority, the party being claimed, on December 19, 2024, proceeded to make the voluntary payment, availing itself of the 20% reduction and renouncing any action or administrative appeal.

It should be noted that, according to the provisions of the LPACAP, as well as the jurisprudence of the high court in this matter, the exercise of voluntary payment by the alleged responsible party does not exempt the administration from the obligation to resolve and notify all procedures, regardless of their initiation form. Likewise, Article 88 of the aforementioned regulation establishes that the resolution that concludes the procedure will decide all issues raised by the interested parties and those arising from it. Therefore, in accordance with the applicable legislation and having assessed the criteria for the graduation of the sanctions whose existence has been established, the Presidency of the Spanish Agency for Data Protection RESOLVES:

FIRST: TO DECLARE the commission of the infringements and TO CONFIRM the sanctions determined in the dispositive part of the resolution proposal transcribed in this resolution.

The sum of the aforementioned amounts results in a total amount of 15,000.00 euros.

After the party being claimed proceeded with the prompt payment, although without acknowledgment of responsibility, a reduction of 20% of the total mentioned is applied, which results in a final amount of 12,000.00 euros.

SECOND: TO DECLARE the termination of procedure EXP202400079, in accordance with the provisions of Article 85 of the LPACAP.

THIRD: TO NOTIFY this resolution to CAIXA RURAL LA VALL SAN ISIDRO, S.C.C.

FOURTH: In accordance with the provisions of Article 85 of the LPACAP, which conditions the reduction for voluntary payment to the withdrawal or renunciation of any action or administrative appeal, this authority accepts the renunciation expressly stated by the party being claimed, and consequently, the filing of a voluntary appeal for reconsideration against this resolution is not admissible, all without prejudice to the possibility of resorting to the contentious-administrative jurisdiction.

Consequently, taking into account the provisions of Article 90 of the LPACAP, since there is no administrative appeal available due to the express renunciation, this resolution will be fully enforceable from the notification thereof.

However, in accordance with the provisions of Article 90.3 a) of the LPACAP, the firm resolution in the administrative procedure may be provisionally suspended if the interested party expresses their intention to file a contentious-administrative appeal. If this is the case, the interested party must formally communicate this fact by means of a written document addressed to the Spanish Agency for Data Protection, submitting it through the Agency's Electronic Registry [<https://sedeagpd.gob.es/sede-electronica-web/>], or through any of the other registries provided for in Article 16.4 of the aforementioned Law 39/2015, of October 1. They must also provide the Agency with documentation that proves the effective filing of the contentious-administrative appeal. If the Agency does not become aware of the filing of the contentious-administrative appeal within two months from the day following the notification of this resolution, it will consider the provisional suspension to be concluded.

In accordance with the provisions of Article 50 of the LOPDGDD, this Resolution will be made public once it has been notified to the interested parties.
